School chiefs have initial busing talks

by DIANE GRANAT

Preliminary talks involving at least one local school superintendent have begun on a voluntary plan to bus black inner-city students to the suburbs to achieve racial desegregation.

State Schools Supt. Joseph Cronin has refused to say what districts are interested in the program, but Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 Supt. Roger Bardwell told The Herald he met with Cronin and other superintendents a few weeks ago to talk about the busing plan. Cronin and Bardwell refused to release the names of the other superintendents involved in the planning sessions.

Cronin said Tuesday he met recently with school administrators who want more information about his idea to bus inner-city black students to suburban schools with empty classrooms. His plan is intended to ease the problems of racial segregation and declining enrollments.

CRONIN WOULD not say, however, who attended his meeting about the plan because "I did agree with the group assembled that they would have a chance to talk with their boards and then they could get back to me," he said.

Bardwell said Cronin did not ask for a commitment from the superintendents on the voluntary plan. Instead, Bardwell said Cronin wanted to know what problems the local administrators saw in the plan.

Bardwell said there is no relationship between the busing plan and a petition by Dist. 59 to form a unit school district with two high schools from High School Dist. 214.

"There are some people who think that I had that in mind in terms of Elk Grove, but that is not the case," Cronin said.

THE CITY-SUBURBAN busing plan got a boost last month when the State Board of Education approved $2 million in its budget for assistance in metropolitan desegregation.

Cronin said if the money is appropriated by the state legislature and approved by Gov. James Thompson it would be used to defray the costs of educational programs, tuition and transportation involved in desegregation.

If the money is appropriated this year, the voluntary busing plan probably would go into effect this fall, Cronin said. But he said some persons are asking for more planning time and "we might not be ready for the fall."

Maryland hostages released

From Herald news services

A man with two high-powered rifles held seven persons hostage in a Silver Spring, Md. bank Wednesday night but released all them one by one as police tried to get him to surrender.

A police spokesman said the man had threatened to kill himself after all the hostages were released but officials said they felt he might give himself up peacefully.

The gunman had still remained in the bank at midnight.

In Indianapolis, meanwhile, authorities offered "complete and total" immunity to gunman Anthony Kiritsis, who is holding a real estate executive hostage at gunpoint in an apartment believed wired with dynamite.

"As I understand the grant of immunity, it is complete and total if he releases the hostage unharmed," Deputy Marion County Prosecutor George Martz said.

Martz said the offer had been delivered to Kiritsis, 44, who Tuesday morning took Richard Hall hostage after complaining Hall had cheated him on some real estate he was trying to develop as a shopping center.

THE GRANT OF immunity was a key demand made by Kiritsis. Asked if Hall might decide to press charges after being released, Martz replied, "as I understand it, under the terms of the grant, he could not do that."

Baby's body found in plastic bag

The frozen body of a newborn baby girl was found in a plastic bag Wednesday afternoon in the parking lot of an Arlington Heights shopping center.

A 17-year-old employe of the Northpoint Shopping Center, Rand and Arlington Heights roads, was cleaning the parking lot at 4 p.m. Wednesday when he found a dark green plastic bag, nestled beneath evergreen bushes on a triangular 12-foot wide island.

The youth cleared away melting snow, looked inside, and found the body of a newborn girl wrapped in a white sheet.

POLICE, WHO would not speculate how long the body nad been in the parking lot, are searching for the child's parents.

Arlington Heights police and Cook County Sheriff's police evidence technicians rushed to the scene, and roped off the island to spectators.

Police said the body of the baby, a Caucasian, weighed about 8 pounds. Blood from the infant had been wiped away before it was wrapped in a white linen sheet, but its 8- to 10-inch umbilical cord was still attached.

Up to an inch of ice and snow was found on the body, which had been frozen solid in a fetal position, its legs folded upward and its arms tucked inward.

Police said employes of the shopping center told them they had last cleared the parking lot more than a month ago. Police Chief Robert P. Derks said it was anyone's guess how long the body had been there.

Nothing else was found in the bag, police said.

EVIDENCE TECHNICIANS sifted through the snow, and found a tattered grocery receipt beneath the bag, and an empty beer can nearby. A pair of gloves also were found near the scene, but quickly were discounted by investigators as unrelated to the case.

"THE INVESTIGATION will be rather cumbersome," said Paul Buckholz, Arlington Heights deputy police chief. "I have a list of about a half dozen persons who would have taken (adopted) that kid in a minute."

Police transported the body to Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights, where it was pronounced dead. An autopsy report from the Cook County Medical Examiner's Office is expected late today.

Some flooding, new pot holes reported

43 days of freezing temps over

Chicago basked in the warmest day of the year Wednesday as a record 43 consecutive days of below freezing temperatures officially came to an end at 10:10 a.m.

The weatherman promises more sunshine and even warmer temperatures today with the mercury expected to climb into the low 40s.

The weather seems downright balmy after months of the coldest winter on record. The official high was 42 degrees.

BUT THE THAW brought out some problems of its own. There were reports of minor flooding from melting snow and ice and pot holes have begun showing up on area roads.

Officials also warn that the frost in the ground still is about 4½ feet deep and the threat of freezing pipes is not over.

"It will take quite a while to get that frost out of the ground. When it does thaw there will be some shifting ground and that too may loosen up some joints and break pipes," said Palatine Public Works Director Robert Miller.

Miller also said people should not be fooled into opening basements and crawl spaces because freezing weather undoubtedly will return.

MOUNT PROSPECT Public Works Director David Creamer said motorists should "keep an eye out" for pot holes to avoid damage to their cars.

"There are a lot of predictions that there may be many, many chuck holes this spring because the frost is so deep. But it depends on the road surface, whether or not water is trapped under the road and whether there is good drainage.

"At this point we're not predicting any massive outbreaks of chuck holes," Creamer said.

Suburban officials are not too worried about widespread flooding in the area. But nationally, a sudden warming could spell disaster.

"The combination of deep-frozen rivers, high water content in the heavy snow accumulation and frozen ground is of concern," said Dr. Robert White of the U.S. Commerce Dept.

WHITE SAID flood-threatened areas include the Lake Erie-Ontario drainage basin and the tributaries of the Ohio River in New York, through western Pennsylvania and West Virginia, all the way to Cincinnati, Ohio.

New Jersey, Indiana, Illinois, western Maryland and western Michigan also were cited as areas of potential danger.

Creamer said the water running in the streets "may turn out to be a blessing" because it will clean out snow-clogged sewer drains.

"In case it rains it's important to have these drains freed up," he said.

IN THE CENTRAL Plains where the temperatures climbed into the 60s Wednesday, there were fire warnings for the rangelands of Kansas and Oklahoma.

Pockets of subzero weather held out in West Virginia and New England and it was 14 below zero Wednesday morning at Houlton, Maine.

And while the Midwest and most of the East began to thaw out, Colorado embarked on a $189,000 cloud seeding venture aimed at increasing the Rocky Mountain snowpack.

The relative heat wave was something of a birthday present to the National Weather Service which marked its 107th anniversary Wednesday.

PUDDLE JUMPING was a common sight Thursday as a 43-day siege of freezing weather ended. The mercury reached an official high of 42 degrees and th National Weather Service predicts it will be warmer today.

Finance panel urges hiring 5 policemen

The hiring of five additional police officers was recommended Wednesday by the finance committee of the Arlington Heights Village Board over the objections of Village Pres. James T. Ryan.

Ryan said "there should be more justification of some compelling reason for five additional officers."

Police Chief Robert Derks argued that more men are needed to provide flexibility during peak periods for calls.

"With five more officers we will have more saturation and with this flexibility I think we could put a dent in crime," said Derks, who was named police chief in October.

"WE ALSO WILL be able to lower our response time because we won't have calls backed up like we do now," he said.

"I don't think we can consider Arlington Heights a small suburban community in terms of law enforcement," Derks said. He cited statistics that showed the number of felonies committed in the village increased 8.3 per cent last year. Nationwide felonies were up 10 per cent and statewide they were up 6 per cent, he said.

The Arlington Heights Police Dept. also had a 12 per cent increase in calls in 1976, Derks said.

The hiring of five more officers will add about $66,000 to the village's 1977-78 budget, Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson said.

THE FINANCE COMMITTEE, composed of Frank Palmatier, O. V. Anderson and Richard Durava voted unanimously to recommend hiring the five additional police officers.

"There are far less important things in this budget we can throw out if we need to," Durava said.

Trustee August Bettman also supported the committee's recommendation, calling the police department "the backbone of the community."

"We hired a human services coordinator and a housing counselor this past year and I can't see how we can go along with these people and then deny the police department the people we need," Bettman said.

"I realize I'm taking an unpopular stand," Ryan said, "but you can't be led into a situation because it's publicly popular."

"My main point is that I'd like to see from an economic point of view, a justification and evidence that productivity can't be increased with our existing people," Ryan said.

Man dies after being hit by truck

A Schaumburg man was pronounced dead on arrival at Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights Wednesday morning after being hit by a truck at the Dundee Road-Ill. Rte. 53 intersection in Palatine Township. James Kochevar, 1304 E. Algonquin Rd., was killed after he reportedly ran out in front of a truck driven by Dominick Trznadl, Rte. 2, McHenry, traveling west on Dundee Road. Ill. State Police Dist. 17 said both the driver and a witness reported Kochevar ran into the truck's path. The victim's car was found by police a quarter mile east of the intersection. Police said they "found no apparent defect" in Kochevar's auto. No charges were filed.

Furniture store target of suit

Illinois Atty. Gen. William J. Scott filed suit Wednesday charging an Arlington Heights furniture broker owes customers about $7,000 for undelivered merchandise. However, Wayne Kahn, 500 W. Rand Rd., said the majority of the complainants already have received refunds "and I will make refunds to the three or four people involved." Kahn said he is in the process of closing his five-year-old business Sav-On-Wholesale Furniture Inc. He complained that Scott's office used consumer complaints that were more than two years old and already had been settled. Kahn said he rejected advice to file bankruptcy because he wanted to try to make refunds to customers. Scott's suit contends that 12 persons had paid Kahn $6,996.70 for furniture that was never delivered. The suit also seeks a court order requiring Kahn to account for money received by the firm since January 1975. A spokesman for Scott said the suit calls for full refunds and a $50,000 fine against Kahn.

Parks seek to buy golf course

The Wheeling Park District will ask voters March 26 to approve a $3.7 million bond issue for purchase of the 128-acre Chevy Chase Golf Club, 1000 N. Milwaukee Ave., Lake County. If the property is purchased, it will be maintained as a recreational facility with the addition of a jogging trail, winter archery shoot, cross country skiing, bicycle paths and facilities for fishing and golfing, David Phillips, park superintendent, said. Wheeling Village Mgr. Terry Zerkle said Wednesday that village officials are "exploring the possibility" of annexing the golf course and the 278 surrounding acres. The William Johnson family, owners of the property, sought annexation to Buffalo Grove last August. Village officials, however, failed to support the move because they feared Johnson's plan for a townhouse and apartment complex on the property might cause flooding problems. The Johnsons will sell to the park district if the bond issue passes.

Man dies after being hit by truck

A Schaumburg man was pronounced dead on arrival at Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights Wednesday morning after being hit by a truck at the Dundee Road-Ill. Rte. 53 intersection in Palatine Township. James Kochevar, 1304 E. Algonquin Rd., was killed after he reportedly ran out in front of a truck driven by Dominick Trznadl, Rte. 2, McHenry, traveling west on Dundee Road. Ill. State Police Dist. 17 said both the driver and a witness reported Kochevar ran into the truck's path. The victim's car was found by police a quarter mile east of the intersection. Police said they "found no apparent defect" in Kochevar's auto. No charges were filed.

Furniture store target of suit

Illinois Atty. Gen. William J. Scott filed suit Wednesday charging an Arlington Heights furniture broker owes customers about $7,000 for undelivered merchandise. However, Wayne Kahn, 500 W. Rand Rd., said the majority of the complainants already have received refunds "and I will make refunds to the three or four people involved." Kahn said he is in the process of closing his five-year-old business Sav-On-Wholesale Furniture Inc. He complained that Scott's office used consumer complaints that were more than two years old and already had been settled. Kahn said he rejected advice to file bankruptcy because he wanted to try to make refunds to customers. Scott's suit contends that 12 persons had paid Kahn $6,996.70 for furniture that was never delivered. The suit also seeks a court order requiring Kahn to account for money received by the firm since January 1975. A spokesman for Scott said the suit calls for full refunds and a $50,000 fine against Kahn.

Parks seek to buy golf course

The Wheeling Park District will ask voters March 26 to approve a $3.7 million bond issue for purchase of the 128-acre Chevy Chase Golf Club, 1000 N. Milwaukee Ave., Lake County. If the property is purchased, it will be maintained as a recreational facility with the addition of a jogging trail, winter archery shoot, cross country skiing, bicycle paths and facilities for fishing and golfing, David Phillips, park superintendent, said. Wheeling Village Mgr. Terry Zerkle said Wednesday that village officials are "exploring the possibility" of annexing the golf course and the 278 surrounding acres. The William Johnson family, owners of the property, sought annexation to Buffalo Grove last August. Village officials, however, failed to support the move because they feared Johnson's plan for a townhouse and apartment complex on the property might cause flooding problems. The Johnsons will sell to the park district if the bond issue passes.

'$46.9 million water pipeline inadequate'

A preliminary water supply report calling for construction of a $46.9 million pipeline to the Northwest suburbs may underestimate water needs of the area, Elk Grove Village Mgr. Charles Willis said Wednesday.

Testifying at a public hearing in Downers Grove, Willis praised the report as "an absolutely outstanding document on water supply in the six-county area." He said, however, the report, prepared for the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission, is based on inaccurate data that should be revised.

Willis said the report is using 1970 pumpage and consumption data. "These patterns no longer hold," he said, noting the information is 7 years old. He said this information is computed with state umbrella population figures, resulting in inaccurate conclusions.

FOR EXAMPLE, he said estimates of future water consumption in the report are 30 to 50 per cent below the estimates reached by four of the eight communities in Share + 3. That group consists of Northwest suburban communities trying to obtain Lake Michigan water.

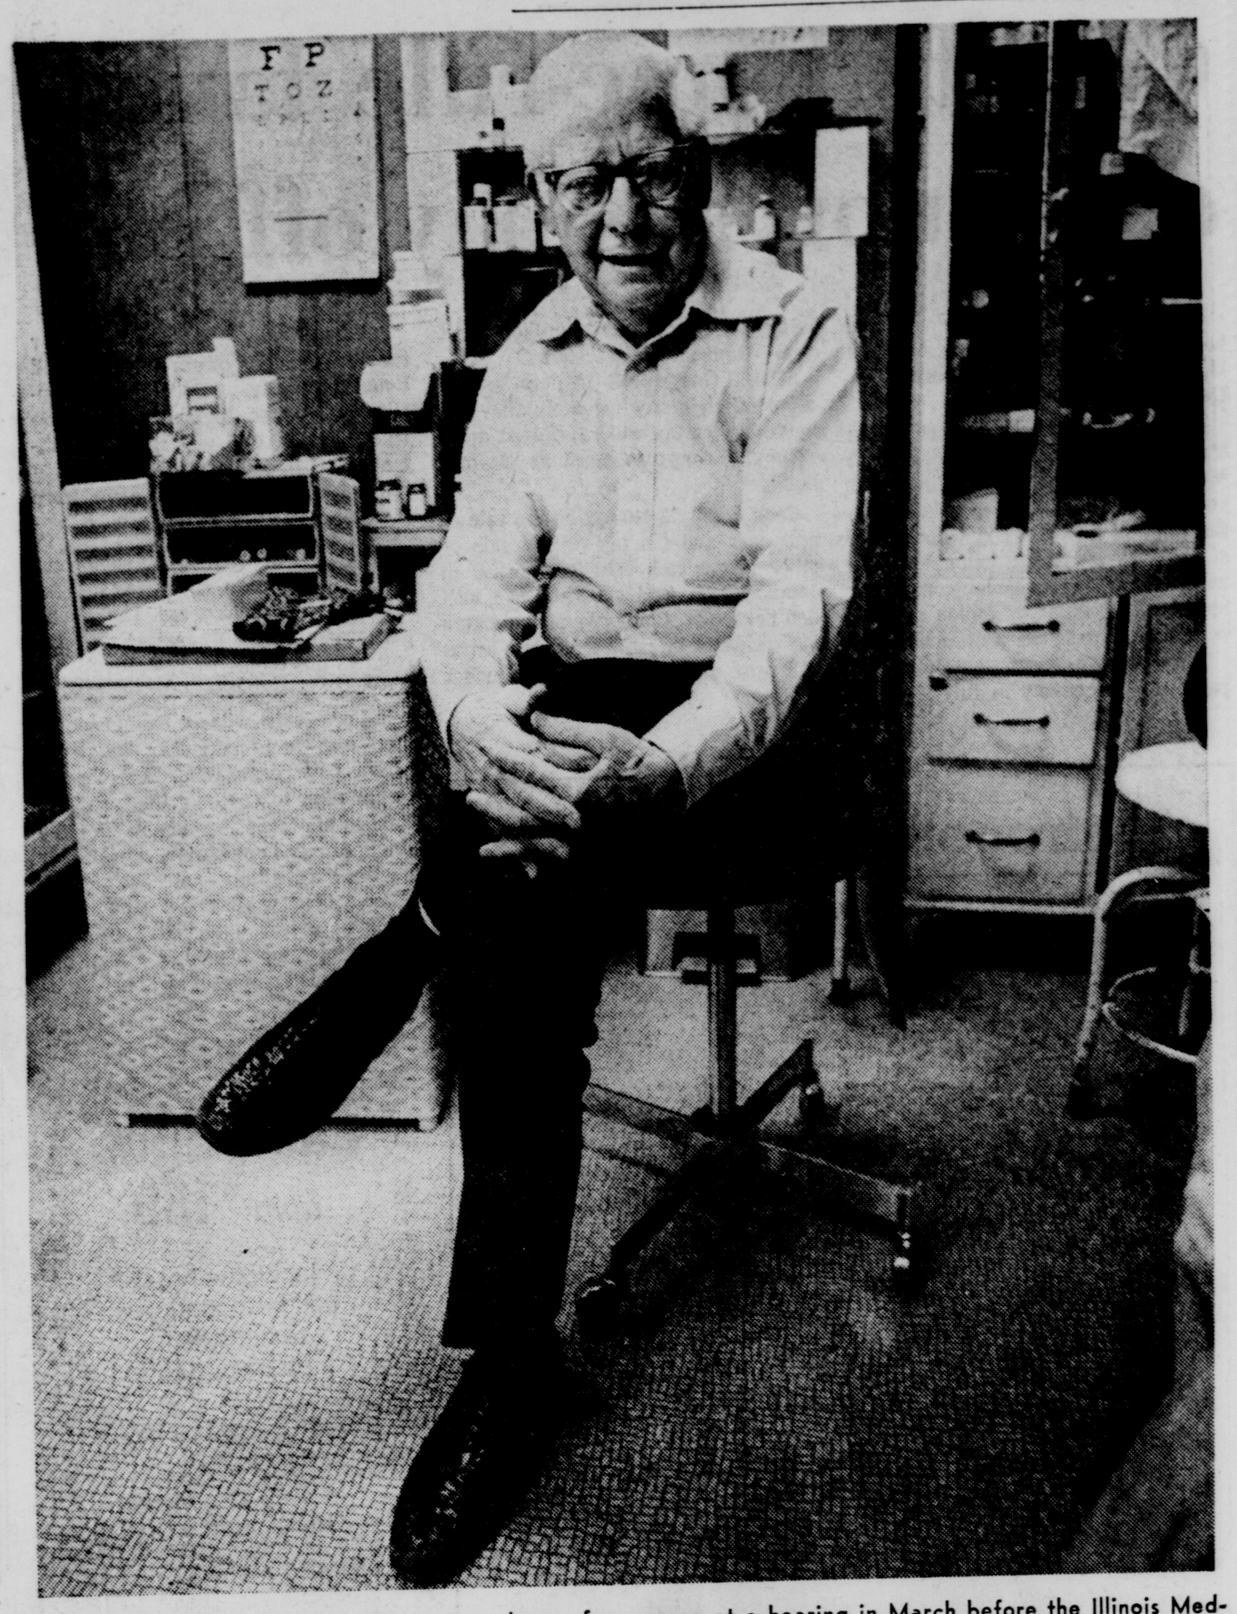
"If they (the estimates) become determining factors, somebody is going to have half a glass of water when they need a full glass," Willis said.

NIPC officials said they will take Willis' comments under consideration as they prepare a final draft of the report. The document, prepared by Keifer & Associates Inc., must go through several public hearings before being adopted this fall as a regional master plan.

THE REPORT calls for construction of eight new water systems, including a pipeline to the Northwest suburbs connecting with the Chicago water system at O'Hare Airport. A separate pipeline starting at Lake Michigan will serve southern Lake County, including Buffalo Grove. The systems are needed because of dwindling water supplies.

David Westfall, of Keifer & Associates, said the plan would be phased so communities which have requested lake water allocations from the state will be the first served. Those allocations are scheduled to be announced in mid March.

No lake water is available because of limits on the amount that can be diverted from the lake. In 1979 some water will become available because of improved Metropolitan Sanitary District treatment. That amount will continue increasing through 1985.



CHARGED WITH illegally dispensing drugs for nontherapeutic purposes Dr. Hayward Foy, 77, of Arlington Heights, will face losing his medical license at a hearing in March before the Illinois Medical Disciplinary Board. Foy has practiced medicine in Arlington Heights for 15 years.

Water shortage takes towns to well

by LYNN ASINOF

Waitresses at Mount Prospect restaurants no longer greet you with a glass of water and a smile. The smile is still there, but you have to ask for the water.

That change is expected to save the village four million gallons of water a year.

The program is just one of the water conservation efforts started in the Northwest suburbs because of dwindling ground water supplies. More are under study and in the next few years residents will find it more difficult and expensive to use water.

ESTIMATES ARE that the Northwest suburbs have only enough water to operate at present levels until 1980.

"We feel that we will be starting to feel the first impact by 1980," said Buffalo Grove public works director Charles McCoy. "At least the water levels in the Galesburg aquifers will drop to such a level that the rates will go way up."

McCoy, head of the public works water committee of the Northwest Municipal Conference, said the water problem hasn't registered with most people.

"I don't think it has really gotten through," he said. "Water for a long time has been taken for granted because there was always so much of it and it was always so cheap."

But the message is getting louder. All of the suburbs which rely on well water either passed strict sprinkling bans or tightened up existing bans during the summer. Many passed water rate increases and some changed their rate formulas to encourage conservation.

IN MOUNT PROSPECT, for example, water rates now get higher the more water you use.

All but two villages have gotten rid of the sliding rates that work on the theory "the more you use the lower the rates." Flat rates have taken their place in six towns.

Water-saving programs have reached into the village's building departments. In Schaumburg and Buffalo Grove, new homes and apartments are required to have specially designed toilets, showerheads and faucets. Use of these water-saving devices is expected to cut household water usage in half.

Although the water-saving devices appeared only recently in the Northwest suburbs, they are not new. They have been used in California and the arid Southwest for years.

McCoy's committee has met with several of the school districts to make them aware of the educational programs. He said no one has adopted the program, "but hopefully by the next school year there will be some in operation."

MANY WATER programs under study wouldn't be visible to the public. For example, a five-pound decrease in water pressure throughout a system would save a lot of water but would have little effect on the consumer.

Other programs under study include installation of self-closing faucets in public buildings, a ban on car-washes that do not recycle water and establishment of an emergency water plan that includes interconnections between villages.

McCoy said the programs will make people more aware of water usage. He said, however, he does not expect people to feel like they are running out of water for some time.

"They won't feel the water shortgage. It's just that more of the green stuff in their pocketbooks will be going to pay for it," he said.

7 hostages in Maryland released on it" and advise authorities of his decision on whether to surrender this morning.

Kiritsis, who earlier in the day boasted that police "are lucky they're dealing with me and I'm stable," was said to be considering the offer. He also has said the apology offered Tuesday night through Hall's companies, Hall Hottell Co. Realtors and Meridian Mortgage, was not adequate.

In a telephone conversation released by police late Wednesday, Hall said, "This is Dick Hall. I have food and I have water. I have been treated all right."

IN THE SILVER Spring drama, officials said they did not think anyone was injured, even though the gunman fired about 50 shots at a small army of policemen waiting outside.

One hostage who was released had hidden behind a counter and was not discovered by the gunman until about four hours after the incident began.

The bank, the Citizens Bank of Maryland, is located in an area of high rise apartment buildings populated mainly by elderly persons.

A police source said they knew the man's identity and believed the whole incident was planned.

At first police said they thought the man was attempting to rob the bank and took the hostages after being surprised by police who arrived on the scene about 6 p.m. But a police spokesman said later the man did not say anything about a robbery when he entered the bank.

THEY SAID HE told everyone except employes to leave and gradually released all but one of the hostages.

Most of my patients are very satisfied: Dr. Foy

by BILL HILL

"I do a little of everything — minor surgery, home deliveries, house calls. I'm one of the few still left who takes care of all general practices," says 77-year-old Hayward Foy.

His patients are not required to make appointments.

"If people are sick, they just come in. I take care of them as they come in," Foy said.

"We're a different breed. Everyone specializes now," Foy said.

HIS OFFICE at 203 S. Arlington Heights Rd. also is unlike most doctors' offices.

The dimly-lit waiting room has about 25 straight-backed chairs and features a small color television set.

Down a short hallway is Foy's office. It is cluttered with books and papers stacked high on desks, cabinets and extra tables. On a stool next to the office's entrance sits a bowling ball.

Immediately noticeable is a white bathrom scale which sits prominently at the foot of a padded examination table and now serves as a constant reminder of his legal problems.

FOY IS BEING accused of "simply weighing" patients before giving them diet pills.

He adamantly denies all of the charges that he has illegally dispensed drugs under the guise of weight-reduction purposes.

The indictments and recent complaints filed by the Illinois Dept. of Registration and Education charging him with such wrongdoing have made life difficult, Foy said.

"I just try to keep busy. But it isn't easy to forget about it. Only when I'm working can I forget about these things," Foy said.

FOY SPENDS four hours a day in his office at 203 S. Arlington Heights Rd. He also drives to Northlake Community Hospital most days and spends about an hour there. Because his wife is an invalid, he spends a lot of time at home, and for exercise he goes bowling three or four times a week.

Foy located his practice in Arlington Heights in February 1962, moving from Fort Wayne, Ind., where after 28 years he turned his practice over to his son, Thomas.

Foy first started his practice in Kendallville, a town north of Fort Wayne with a population of about 5,000. His service in Fort Wayne was interrupted in 1961 when he was sent to a federal prison in Springfield, Mo., for four months for failing to file income tax returns for three years.

When his son got his medical license, Foy decided to move to the Chicago area where his wife's family lived.

"This Arlington Heights was kind of a central area and looked like a good, growing town," Foy said.

NOW HE FEELS like he's being "framed."

"It just seems they're concentrating on me. I don't know if it's to make an example out of me or maybe they're just trying to get me out of town," Foy said.

"It seems strange to work hard for 48 years and then this turns up," said Foy, who has no immediate plans to retire.

He is proud of what he calls "a good practice."

"YOU'LL FIND most of my patients are very satisfied with my services. I try to be honest with them and honest with myself," he said.

Foy admits that he has been involved in two malpractice suits, but he calls them "minor things" and refuses to elaborate. One occurred about five years ago, but he points out that the patient's wife still comes to him.

"I'm needed here in this town. I have two or three thousand patients. Where are they all going to go? Other doctors in town are all filled up," Foy said.

Foy ordered before medical unit

Dr. Hayward W. Foy, has been ordered to appear before the Illinois Medical Disciplinary Board March 16 to answer charges that he has illegally dispensed drugs.

The board has the power to suspend or revoke the medical license of the 77-year-old doctor who has practiced medicine for 48 years, including 15 in Arlington Heights.

The hearing stems from a complaint filed Wednesday by the Illinois Dept. of Registration and Education charging Foy, 730 Burton, Arlington Heights, with "selling and dispensing" drugs to undercover agents of the Illinois Bureau of Investigation on seven occasions in 1975 and 1976.

FOY WAS INDICTED on similar charges in May 1976 by a Cook County Grand Jury and is awaiting trial.

The complaint filed Wednesday by the Illinois Dept. of Registration and Education alleges that Foy dispensed drugs to the agents without conducting proper medical examinations or by "simply weighing the agents while they were 'wearing boots and fully clothed.' "

The sales allegedly occurred prior to the indictment of Foy last May, but are "separate incidents," Thomas Gradel, of the department, said.

The action by the state agency was the result of a three-month investigation of Foy by the department's medical coordinator's office, the IBI and NBC News, Gradel said.

FOY IS CHARGED with dispensing phendimetrizine, a weight-reducing drug commonly called speed, said Al Augustine, chief regulatory officer for the department.

The complaint also alleges that Foy sold doriden, nipirin and Quaalude, which are sleeping pills and used as downers, Augustine said.

Foy denied all of the charges.

"To patients who want to lose weight I give diet tablets and a diet book," he said. "We go through it (the book) and I show them what they should eat and what they shouldn't eat. Some of them can't do it alone. The (diet) tablets are just to keep their appetite down. It's completely legitimate," Foy said.

Foy said he has about 200 patients receiving diet pills.

"Most of them 21 (years old) and up as high as 60. We have very few under 21," Foy said in response to charges that he distributes the pills to high school youths.

FOY STRESSED that he dispenses no amphetamines or barbiturates. The weight reduction pills he sells are phendimetrazine, Ionamine and Tenuate, he said. "They're similar to amphetamines, but much milder," Foy said.

Patients receiving the pills are given two-week supplies and are re-examined upon each visit, Foy said.

John Fultz, medical coordinator for the Illinois Dept. of Registration and Education, said Foy's sale of phendimetrazine is illegal because it is a "controlled substance."

"In street talk, phendimetrazine is an upper," Fultz said. "It is frequently abused on the street because of its excitatory, intoxicating effects. It's associated with a severe psychological dependence and severe social dysfunction. The kids call it 'speed,' " he said.

IONAMINE HAS similar effects and also is abused, but Tenuate is not a popular street drug and not abused, Fultz said.

Foy defended dispensing the drugs, saying "I've never heard anyone say they got high on them. They might make them feel better if they are depressed. They are a little stimulating, just like a cup of coffee is," Fly said.

Disciplinary action was taken by the state board 23 times in 1976, Gradel said, resulting in the revocation of 12 licenses. In most other instances, short suspensions were ordered, he said.

Down a short hallway is Foy's office. It is cluttered with books and papers stacked high on desks, cabinets and extra tables. On a stool next to the office's entrance sits a bowling ball.

Immediately noticeable is a white bathrom scale which sits prominently at the foot of a padded examination table and now serves as a constant reminder of his legal problems.

FOY IS BEING accused of "simply weighing" patients before giving them diet pills.

He adamantly denies all of the charges that he has illegally dispensed drugs under the guise of weight-reduction purposes.

The indictments and recent complaints filed by the Illinois Dept. of Registration and Education charging him with such wrongdoing have made life difficult, Foy said.

"I just try to keep busy. But it isn't easy to forget about it. Only when I'm working can I forget about these things," Foy said.

FOY SPENDS four hours a day in his office at 203 S. Arlington Heights Rd. He also drives to Northlake Community Hospital most days and spends about an hour there. Because his wife is an invalid, he spends a lot of time at home, and for exercise he goes bowling three or four times a week.

Foy located his practice in Arlington Heights in February 1962, moving from Fort Wayne, Ind., where after 28 years he turned his practice over to his son, Thomas.

Foy first started his practice in Kendallville, a town north of Fort Wayne with a population of about 5,000. His service in Fort Wayne was interrupted in 1961 when he was sent to a federal prison in Springfield, Mo., for four months for failing to file income tax returns for three years.

When his son got his medical license, Foy decided to move to the Chicago area where his wife's family lived.

"This Arlington Heights was kind of a central area and looked like a good, growing town," Foy said.

NOW HE FEELS like he's being "framed."

"It just seems they're concentrating on me. I don't know if it's to make an example out of me or maybe they're just trying to get me out of town," Foy said.

"It seems strange to work hard for 43 years and then this turns up," said Foy, who has no immediate plans to retire.

He is proud of what he calls "a good practice."

"YOU'LL FIND most of my patients are very satisfied with my services. I try to be honest with them and honest with myself," he said.

Foy admits that he has been involved in two malpractice suits, but he calls them "minor things" and refuses to elaborate. One occurred about five years ago, but he points out that the patient's wife still comes to him.

"I'm needed here in this town. I have two or three thousand patients. Where are they all going to go? Other doctors in town are all filled up," Foy said.

Foy ordered before medical unit

Dr. Hayward W. Foy, has been ordered to appear before the Illinois Medical Disciplinary Board March 16 to answer charges that he has illegally dispensed drugs.

The board has the power to suspend or revoke the medical license of the 77-year-old doctor who has practiced medicine for 48 years, including 15 in Arlington Heights.

The hearing stems from a complaint filed Wednesday by the Illinois Dept. of Registration and Education charging Foy, 730 Burton, Arlington Heights, with "selling and dispensing" drugs to undercover agents of the Illinois Bureau of Investigation on seven occasions in 1975 and 1976.

FOY WAS INDICTED on similar charges in May 1976 by a Cook County Grand Jury and is awaiting trial.

The complaint filed Wednesday by the Illinois Dept. of Registration and Education alleges that Foy dispensed drugs to the agents without conducting proper medical examinations or by "simply weighing the agents while they were 'wearing boots and fully clothed.'"

The sales allegedly occurred prior to the indictment of Foy last May, but are "separate incidents," Thomas Gradel, of the department, said.

The action by the state agency was the result of a three-month investigation of Foy by the department's medical coordinator's office, the IBI and NBC News, Gradel said.

FOY IS CHARGED with dispensing phendimetrizine, a weight-reducing drug commonly called speed, said Al Augustine, chief regulatory officer for the department.

The complaint also alleges that Foy sold doriden, nipirin and Quaalude, which are sleeping pills and used as downers, Augustine said.

Foy denied all of the charges.

"To patients who want to lose weight I give diet tablets and a diet book," he said. "We go through it (the book) and I show them what they should eat and what they shouldn't eat. Some of them can't do it alone. The (diet) tablets are just to keep their appetite down. It's completely legitimate," Foy said.

Foy said he has about 200 patients receiving diet pills.

"Most of them 21 (years old) and up as high as 60. We have very few under 21," Foy said in response to charges that he distributes the pills to high school youths.

FOY STRESSED that he dispenses no amphetamines or barbiturates. The weight reduction pills he sells are phendimetrazine, Ionamine and Tenuate, he said. "They're similar to amphetamines, but much milder," Foy said.

Patients receiving the pills are given two-week supplies and are re-examined upon each visit, Foy said.

John Fultz, medical coordinator for the Illinois Dept. of Registration and Education, said Foy's sale of phendimetrazine is illegal because it is a "controlled substance."

"In street talk, phendimetrazine is an upper," Fultz said. "It is frequently abused on the street because of its excitatory, intoxicating effects. It's associated with a severe psychological dependence and severe social dysfunction. The kids call it 'speed,'" he said.

IONAMINE HAS similar effects and also is abused, but Tenuate is not a popular street drug and not abused, Fultz said.

Foy defended dispensing the drugs, saying "I've never heard anyone say they got high on them. They might make them feel better if they are depressed. They are a little stimulating, just like a cup of coffee is," Fly said.

Disciplinary action was taken by the state board 23 times in 1976, Gradel said, resulting in the revocation of 12 licenses. In most other instances, short suspensions were ordered, he said.

County home-rule taxes on liquor, gas pay off big

Cook County's recently enacted home-rule taxes are paying off in a big, big way for County Board Pres. George W. Dunne.

Dunne's 1977 county budget shows that the county liquor tax, passed in May 1975, will raise $22 million next year. The tax adds $1 per gallon to the price of liquor, 4 cents per gallon of beer, 12 cents per gallon of wine with 14 per cent alcohol content or less, and 30 cents per gallon of wine with more than 14 per cent alcohol.

The penny-a-gallon gasoline tax passed by the county in July 1976 will bring the county $18 million next year, Dunne's budget shows.

SOME GASOLINE dealers association officials say privately they believe the gas tax will raise even more money, perhaps as much as $24 million.

Cook County's $10 tax on the sale of new cars and the tax on the sale of other new motor vehicles, passed in January 1972, will generate $4.5 million next year. County vehicle stickers for residents of unincorporated areas will raise another $650,000, the budget shows.

All four taxes were enacted under the home-rule powers given Cook County by the 1970 Illinois Constitution. Taken together, the home rule taxes in 1977 will raise an estimated $44.15 million, nearly equaling the $46.7 million that will come from the real estate property tax.

DUNNE FREQUENTLY points out that the county has not raised its real estate tax in recent years. The second paragraph of his 1977 budget message restates this theme.

"This appropriation ordinance is being presented without calling for an increse in the property tax rate in the county's corporate fund. It is our determination to continue this practice. Real estate taxes, particularly for the single family homeowner, are already a great burden to bear."

Cook County residents who don't drink or drive so far have gotten a pass from the home-rule taxman. The rest of us can only grin and bear it.

Metropolitan briefs

POLICE DETECTIVES are investigating the disappearance of four hand-rolled cigarets they believe may have belonged to Stephen Martin, 34, seen in Chicago Transit Authority photo. Martin was the motorman of the "L" train which crashed in the Loop Feb. 4 killing 11 persons. The cigarets were found at the crash scene and believed by police to belong to Martin but now the cigarets can't be found. Police said it's unknown if they contained marijuana.

Methodists allege cop squad spying

The United Methodist Church of Northern Illinois charged Wednesday that the Chicago Police Department's "red squad" spied on its routine and legitimate activities during a two-year period. Church officials demanded an apology from the city. The Rev. Gregory Dell, church board chairman, told reporters he believed this was the first time it was publicly documented that the police department had spied on a religious body.

Dell said the police intelligence division's "red squad" kept a 55-page file on the church between June 2, 1972, and at least until Oct. 14, 1974. Public disclosure of the spying was made possible by a recent court order in two federal class action suits filed by the Alliance to End Repression and the American Civil Liberties Union against the Chicago Police Dept. and the city, seeking to end police spying, he said.

Hanahan acquitted in fraud case

State Rep. Thomas J. Hanahan, D-McHenry, was acquitted Wednesday but two of his former colleagues were convicted by a federal court jury of conspiracy to commit extortion and mail fraud. The seven-man, five-woman jury deliberated about five hours Tuesday night and Wednesday morning before announcing it found former state Reps. Robert Craig, D-Danville, and Louis A. Markert, D-Mount Sterling, guilty as charged and Hanahan innocent.

Hanahan, Craig and Markert were each charged with one count of conspiracy to commit extortion and one count of mail fraud for allegedly sharing a $1,500 payoff to block legislation detrimental to the car rental industry.

Illinois briefs

Walker denies role in finance scandal

"I know what I did and I didn't do anything wrong," former Gov. Daniel Walker Wednesday said when asked about a federal grand jury investigation of his campaign finances and the award of state contracts. Walker said he was visiting Southern Illinois on a business trip for his new law firm and to say 'thank you' to supporters who helped him win election in 1972.

Walker said he has not been subpoenaed by the grand jury and has not been questioned or contacted by the FBI or any other federal agency about it. "Let me say this, anytime you are governor and have 60,000 people working for you, you appoint literally thousands of people. I, of course, don't know what everybody did," Walker said.

Senate still without leader

The Senate took five more quick ballots in its deadlocked leadership race Wednesday, then adjourned for the day without any sign of progress. So far, 179 ballots have been taken. "We've talked a lot, but nothing's changed," Sen. Terry Bruce, D-Olney, said as senators filed out of the chamber.

Panel urges attack on vandalism

A four-pronged attack on vandalism involving the police, schools, churches and parents has been proposed by the Arlington Heights Zero Vandalism Committee.

Citing "alarming" juvenile crime rates and damage figures, committee Chairman Mae Zimmanck Wednesday called for all residents to join the fight against what she terms "the deterioration of the moral fiber of our youth."

According to police and the committee's statistics, one in six children between the ages of 10 and 16 was arrested in Arlington Heights last year and almost half the homes have reported acts of vandalism.

"To have an effective program we're going to have to hit from every angle — the home, the church, the school and the village," she said.

THE COMMITTEE'S campaign against crime includes these plans:

- A public crime reporting network and police feedback to a complainant about the disposition of charges he has brought.
- Additional hours of open play time at parks, including Saturday nights and Sundays. Camelot Park has the most open gym hours and, Mrs. Zimmanck said, the lowest incidence of vandalism.
- Keeping schools open after classes and Friday nights for supervised activities.
- Discussions on vandalism in church schools.
- Cooperation of parents in supervising their own children and volunteering time and money to the cause.

The committee will meet again at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in Olympic Park, 500 N. Ridge Ave., to discuss how to implement and fund its program. Members have suggested asking parents to volunteer two nights each year to supervising children after school or on weekends and charging a $2 or $3 membership fee to families.

The committee will present its plan to citizens and village administrators April 19 at 8 p.m. in the municipal building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

"Reaching the homes is the most important part," Mrs. Zimmanck said. "It is these people who will ultimately determine whether this program succeeds or fails."

Earl Johnson, executive director of the Chamber of Commerce, agreed. "I'm appalled at the amount of vandalism and certain that some kind of program has to be initiated. The best way to solve it is to get to the people who have the prime responsibility — the parents."

Panel urges attack on vandalism

A four-pronged attack on vandalism involving the police, schools, churches and parents has been proposed by the Arlington Heights Zero Vandalism Committee.

Citing "alarming" juvenile crime rates and damage figures, committee Chairman Mae Zimmanck Wednesday called for all residents to join the fight against what she terms "the deterioration of the moral fiber of our youth."

According to police and the committee's statistics, one in six children between the ages of 10 and 16 was arrested in Arlington Heights last year and almost half the homes have reported acts of vandalism.

"To have an effective program we're going to have to hit from every angle — the home, the church, the school and the village," she said.

THE COMMITTEE'S campaign against crime includes these plans:

- A public crime reporting network and police feedback to a complainant about the disposition of charges he has brought.
- Additional hours of open play time at parks, including Saturday nights and Sundays. Camelot Park has the most open gym hours and, Mrs. Zimmanck said, the lowest incidence of vandalism.
- Keeping schools open after classes and Friday nights for supervised activities.
- Discussions on vandalism in church schools.
- Cooperation of parents in supervising their own children and volunteering time and money to the cause.

The committee will meet again at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in Olympic Park, 500 N. Ridge Ave., to discuss how to implement and fund its program. Members have suggested asking parents to volunteer two nights each year to supervising children after school or on weekends and charging a $2 or $3 membership fee to families.

The committee will present its plan to citizens and village administrators April 19 at 8 p.m. in the municipal building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

"Reaching the homes is the most important part," Mrs. Zimmanck said. "It is these people who will ultimately determine whether this program succeeds or fails."

Earl Johnson, executive director of the Chamber of Commerce, agreed. "I'm appalled at the amount of vandalism and certain that some kind of program has to be initiated. The best way to solve it is to get to the people who have the prime responsibility — the parents."

SAN FRANCISCO'S Chinatown looks like a garbage heap as Chinatown's annual free trash pickup produced this pile of junk on Mason Street. The garbage pickup was part of the Health Department's rat abatement program but is also timed ahead of the Chinese New Year — the year of the Serpent — Feb. 18. The Chinese believe they should enter a new year free of debt or unnecessary belongings.

Soviet, Chinese spying 'unabated'

FBI Director Clarence Kelley said Wednesday Soviet, Chinese and other Communist spying "continues unabated" in the United States despite detente. "The real world," he said, "is one of spies, intrigue and double-dealing." The director said the FBI faces a growing problem of "neutralizing" hostile agents because the number of communist-bloc envoys in this country has more than doubled in the past 10 years.

"Our experience has shown us that a substantial number of these Soviet-bloc and Chinese officials are directly connected with their intelligence services," Kelley said. "It must suffice to say that the intelligence initiatives of the Communist powers against the United States continue unabated."

Warnke backers see approval

Foes of Paul Warnke, President Carter's choice as chief U.S. disarmament negotiator, assailed him Wednesday as too trustful of the Soviets but his supporters predicted solid Senate approval of the nomination. Senate Republican Whip Ted Stevens of Alaska forecast Warnke "will come close to not being confirmed by the Senate." But Sen. Dick Clark, D-Iowa, of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and one of Warnke's most enthusiastic backers, predicted the former assistant secretary of defense will win Senate confirmation with possibly 25 opposing votes.

As head of the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, Warnke would be the main American negotiator with the Russians for a new strategic arms limitation agreement.

Medicaid probe squad urged

Health, Education and Welfare officials urged Congress Wednesday to let them hire more than 100 persons to help investigate an "avalanche" of fraud cases involving Medicaid, Medicare and student loans. The department began 36 new criminal investigations last month, the HEW officials told a House appropriations subcommittee.

"A heavy influx of new criminal cases is anticipated," they said. Recent audits of the federal-state Medicaid program which provides health care for the needy have found cases of duplicate charges by doctors and nursing homes, apparent drug overuse and inadequate inspection of nursing homes, the officials testified.

Flu consent forms sent out

The government, following up partial resumption of the flu vaccination program, Wednesday sent out voluntary consent forms cautioning the elderly and chronically ill that complications of the diesease can be especially serious for them. The form, sent to state and local health officers by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare to be filled out by patients, spelled out what is known about the comparative risks from the shots and from flu itself.

The world

Cosmonauts move into Salyut

Two Soviet cosmonauts moved into the orbiting Salyut 5 space lab Wednesday for a routine but probably lengthy series of experiments in earth orbit. The Tass news agency said the mission of the Soyuz 24 cosmonauts would be a study of the earth's atmosphere and surface, technological experiments, medical research and "trials" of the Salyut equipment.

"The cosmonauts have started implementing the program of flight in the piloted orbital station Salyut 5," the brief announcement said. Cosmonauts Viktor Gorbatko and Yuri Glazkov, blasted off Monday and docked their Soyuz craft with Salyut Tuesday.

Spain-Russ relations resumed

Spain and the Soviet Union Wednesday resumed full diplomatic relations after 38 years of estrangement. Rightwing extremists denounced the action as a "shame" and demanded the return of 510 tons of gold shipped to Moscow during the Spanish civil war. The gold, worth nearly $2 billion on today's gold market and long considered an obstacle to the resumpton of full relations, was not mentioned in the formal announcement.

But the government issued a note to quiet right-wing protests saying the normalization of relations does not mean the "renunciation of claims by one side against the other." "The establishment of diplomatic relations between Spain and the USSR will facilitate the further development of cooperation . . . for the benefit of the Spanish and Soviet peoples and in the interest of strenghtening peace and security in Europe and around the world," the Foreign Ministry said.

Ford, 68 others receive illegal gifts from airline

WASHINGTON (UPI) — American Airlines, saying it paid $51,000 in illegal campaign contributions in 1971 and 1972, revealed Wednesday the recipients included Gerald Ford, Speaker Thomas O'Neill and 67 others who were members of Congress.

Under a law passed in 1973, none of the present or former congressmen could be prosecuted because of a blanket statute of limitations covering contributions for the 1972 campaigns and before.

Others listed by the airline include Transportation Sec. Brock Adams, Rep. Morris Udall, D-Ariz., a presidential candidate last year, and Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., chairman of the House Ways and Means committee.

THE PAYMENTS in 1971 and 1972 amounted to about $51,000 and "were made from a cash fund . . . going back to at least 1964 in amounts which are alleged to have totaled at least $275,000," the airline said.

O'Neill, through a spokesman, said, "I've never knowingly accepted corporate contributions and of course I've never personally accepted a contribution."

A spokesman for Senate GOP Leader Howard Baker, also named, said the airline's chief lobbyist purchased five $100 tickets to a fund-raiser before the 1972 campaign and that "there was no way for him (Baker) to know it was corporate money."

Most of the congressmen said they did not know the money came from the corporation.

American said its lobbyists used money from a secret cash fund in violation of a federal law that prohibits corporate money to be spent on U.S. political campaigns. The contributions were in amounts of $33 to $1,000.

The illegal practice began in 1964 and ended in 1973 when the Watergate Special Prosecutor charged the company with making an illegal contribution of $55,000 to Richard Nixon's reelection campaign.

$500 gift private contribution: Percy

U.S. Sen. Charles H. Percy's name has ended up on the laundry list of recipients who received illegal campaign contributions from American Airlines in 1972.

Both Percy and Jack Mullins, a former airline official, say the $500 campaign donation was a personal gift and not an illegal contribution.

John Walker, a Percy press aide, said American Airlines officials notified the Illinois Republican last month his name would be included on a list of more than 100 politicians who the company said received illegal contributions in 1971 and 1972.

"The senator believed this was a personal contribution from a long time friend who worked for American," Walker said.

PERCY AND MULLINS had been college classmates at the University of Chicago in the 1940s.

"Mullins still insists it was a private contribution and not corporate money," Walker said.

Walker said despite Mullins' account of the matter, Percy sent a $500 check to the airline on Jan. 13, since the propriety of the contribution had been questioned.

Two other Illinois politicians, U.S. Rep. Daniel Rostenkowski, D-8th, and Chicago Ald. Roman Pucinski also reportedly received contributions, but were unavailable for comment.

Pucinski received the money from the airline while he was in the U.S. House. He resigned from his seat later to run against Percy in 1972.

Medicaid probe squad urged

Health, Education and Welfare officials urged Congress Wednesday to let them hire more than 100 persons to help investigate an "avalanche" of fraud cases involving Medicaid, Medicare and student loans. The department began 36 new criminal investigations last month, the HEW officials told a House appropriations subcommittee.

"A heavy influx of new criminal cases is anticipated," they said. Recent audits of the federal-state Medicaid program which provides health care for the needy have found cases of duplicate charges by doctors and nursing homes, apparent drug overuse and inadequate inspection of nursing homes, the officials testified.

Flu consent forms sent out

The government, following up partial resumption of the flu vaccination program, Wednesday sent out voluntary consent forms cautioning the elderly and chronically ill that complications of the diesease can be especially serious for them. The form, sent to state and local health officers by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare to be filled out by patients, spelled out what is known about the comparative risks from the shots and from flu itself.

Cosmonauts move into Salyut

Two Soviet cosmonauts moved into the orbiting Salyut 5 space lab Wednesday for a routine but probably lengthy series of experiments in earth orbit. The Tass news agency said the mission of the Soyuz 24 cosmonauts would be a study of the earth's atmosphere and surface, technological experiments, medical research and "trials" of the Salyut equipment.

"The cosmonauts have started implementing the program of flight in the piloted orbital station Salyut 5," the brief announcement said. Cosmonauts Viktor Gorbatko and Yuri Glazkov, blasted off Monday and docked their Soyuz craft with Salyut Tuesday.

Spain-Russ relations resumed

Spain and the Soviet Union Wednesday resumed full diplomatic relations after 38 years of estrangement. Rightwing extremists denounced the action as a "shame" and demanded the return of 510 tons of gold shipped to Moscow during the Spanish civil war. The gold, worth nearly $2 billion on today's gold market and long considered an obstacle to the resumpton of full relations, was not mentioned in the formal announcement.

But the government issued a note to quiet right-wing protests saying the normalization of relations does not mean the "renunciation of claims by one side against the other." "The establishment of diplomatic relations between Spain and the USSR will facilitate the further development of cooperation . . . for the benefit of the Spanish and Soviet peoples and in the interest of strenghtening peace and security in Europe and around the world," the Foreign Ministry said.

$500 gift private contribution: Percy

U.S. Sen. Charles H. Percy's name has ended up on the laundry list of recipients who received illegal campaign contributions from American Airlines in 1972.

Both Percy and Jack Mullins, a former airline official, say the $500 campaign donation was a personal gift and not an illegal contribution.

John Walker, a Percy press aide, said American Airlines officials notified the Illinois Republican last month his name would be included on a list of more than 100 politicians who the company said received illegal contributions in 1971 and 1972.

"The senator believed this was a personal contribution from a long time friend who worked for American," Walker said.

PERCY AND MULLINS had been college classmates at the University of Chicago in the 1940s.

"Mullins still insists it was a private contribution and not corporate money," Walker said.

Walker said despite Mullins' account of the matter, Percy sent a $500 check to the airline on Jan. 13, since the propriety of the contribution had been questioned.

Two other Illinois politicians, U.S. Rep. Daniel Rostenkowski, D-8th, and Chicago Ald. Roman Pucinski also reportedly received contributions, but were unavailable for comment.

Pucinski received the money from the airline while he was in the U.S. House. He resigned from his seat later to run against Percy in 1972.

Book-burning students dispersed in S. Africa

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — Police fired volleys of tear gas to disperse thousands of students burning their books in the black ghetto of Soweto Wednesday and warned they will use bullets to break up any future protests.

The Soweto police chief, Col. Jan Visser, warned all students to be in class Thursday or "feel the full might of the law."

Students campaigning for a boycott of school examinations stormed classrooms and dragged other pupils away from their desks. Other bands of youths attacked passing cars and trucks with rocks.

Police fired tear gas to disperse crowds of 4,000 and 2,000 youths in three hours of rioting at two high schools. Militant youths at five of the ghetto's 282 schools danced around bonfires of textbooks chanting anti-government freedom songs and waving their clenched fists in the black-power salute.

STUDENT SOURCES said police made several arrests. A police spokesman said only one 20-year-old demonstration leader was taken into custody.

The police chief told a meeting of headmasters that youths found on the streets during the day would not be considered students but troublemakers.

"Students who roam the streets will feel the full might of the law. Police have been instructed to be tough on such people," Visser said, and he warned police might begin shooting if trouble continues.

The police official in charge of riot control, Maj. Gen. Dawid Kriel, said the ghetto was "tense but under control." Officers said large contingents of reinforcements would be moved into the township.

THERE WERE NO injuries and normal routine continued at most of the schools, which have an enrollment of 200,000 pupils, in the segregated suburb 15 miles southwest of Johannesburg.

Militant students had planned mass rallies to disrupt the exams at other schools but called them off when police stationed "hippo" armored personnel carriers nearby.

House unit to probe S. Korean bribery

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Wednesday voted without dissent for its Ethics Committee to investigate charges congressmen received thousands of dollars in bribes and gifts for their legislative support of South Korea's military government.

After more than an hour of debate, the full House directed the Ethics Committee to undertake the investigation.

The vote was 388 in favor, with Rep. Henry Gonzalez, D-Tex., voting present. No one voted no.

The committee will investigate published reports that as many as 50 members of Congress accepted money, trips to Korea and gifts from Washington-based Korean businessman Tongsun Park and Seoul government officials.

Vote bares hope for topless trade in Miami Beach

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — The Commission on the Status of Women has handed the issue of topless bathing back to the city council by voting in favor of allowing barebreasted sunning on Miami Beach.

Eight voted in favor of allowing topless bathing on any of the beaches Tuesday night and five favored it in designated secluded areas only. Ten members voted against toplessness.

"I'm very surprised," Councilman Philip Sahl said. "What some of us thought was passing a hot potatoe to another group has now come back as a real fried egg right on the heads of the councilmen."

THE CITY COUNCIL will now have to deal with the issue at its next meeting Wednesday.

The council first considered the matter, proposed by the Tourist Development Authority Feb. 2. The authority's vice chairman, Ben Grenald, told the meeting this week that allowing bare bosoms on the beach would give tourist officials "the working tools that we need to sell our product."

He said about 5 per cent of the city's European and Latin visitors want to sunbathe without "ending up looking like a striped zebra." He said this would amount to about 50,000 foreign women a year.

In Tampa, meantime, a topless issue turned into an investigation of an incident in which two young women danced topless at a stag affair attended by top civic leaders and businessmen. The dancing was part of the Gasparilla Pirate Invasion festivities.

THE MATTER CAME to light when a bar owner and his manager accused the city of having a "dual standard" that allowed go-go girls to dance in their bar before about 500 members of Ye Mystic Krewe of Gasparilla with immunity, though dancers at the bar have been arrested more than 500 times for the same performance.

Gene Radney, owner of the lounge, and Joe Redner, lounge manager, said dancers Sharon Thomas and Kenna Hummon were recruited to perform at the city-owned convention center shortly before the party.

Miss Hummon said she and Miss Thomas danced in sheer black negligees and bikini bottoms a first. But she said they discarded the tops after the man who hired them told them a local judge in the audience had assured them they would not be arrested.

She said two of the pirate-garbed men got up and danced with them during the 20-minute performance.

Police officials said no officers were inside the area at the time and said they heard of the incident only after it had occurred.

"It's a double standard," Redner said. "These are the people who are prosecuting us and saying that nude dancing is lowering our community's standards. But, it is all right when the girls dance for them."

Ye Mystic Krewe of Gasparilla is an exclusive group of about 500 leading businessmen and social leaders.

Vote bares hope for topless trade in Miami Beach

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — The Commission on the Status of Women has handed the issue of topless bathing back to the city council by voting in favor of allowing barebreasted sunning on Miami Beach.

Eight voted in favor of allowing topless bathing on any of the beaches Tuesday night and five favored it in designated secluded areas only. Ten members voted against toplessness.

"I'm very surprised," Councilman Philip Sahl said. "What some of us thought was passing a hot potatoe to another group has now come back as a real fried egg right on the heads of the councilmen."

THE CITY COUNCIL will now have to deal with the issue at its next meeting Wednesday.

The council first considered the matter, proposed by the Tourist Development Authority Feb. 2. The authority's vice chairman, Ben Grenald, told the meeting this week that allowing bare bosoms on the beach would give tourist officials "the working tools that we need to sell our product."

He said about 5 per cent of the city's European and Latin visitors want to sunbathe without "ending up looking like a striped zebra." He said this would amount to about 50,000 foreign women a year.

In Tampa, meantime, a topless issue turned into an investigation of an incident in which two young women danced topless at a stag affair attended by top civic leaders and businessmen. The dancing was part of the Gasparilla Pirate Invasion festivities.

THE MATTER CAME to light when a bar owner and his manager accused the city of having a "dual standard" that allowed go-go girls to dance in their bar before about 500 members of Ye Mystic Krewe of Gasparilla with immunity, though dancers at the bar have been arrested more than 500 times for the same performance.

Gene Radney, owner of the lounge, and Joe Redner, lounge manager, said dancers Sharon Thomas and Kenna Hummon were recruited to perform at the city-owned convention center shortly before the party.

Miss Hummon said she and Miss Thomas danced in sheer black negligees and bikini bottoms a first. But she said they discarded the tops after the man who hired them told them a local judge in the audience had assured them they would not be arrested.

She said two of the pirate-garbed men got up and danced with them during the 20-minute performance.

Police officials said no officers were inside the area at the time and said they heard of the incident only after it had occurred.

"It's a double standard," Redner said. "These are the people who are prosecuting us and saying that nude dancing is lowering our community's standards. But, it is all right when the girls dance for them."

Ye Mystic Krewe of Gasparilla is an exclusive group of about 500 leading businessmen and social leaders.

UNITED STATES Steelworkers Union maverick Ed Sadlowski is comforted by his daughter, Susan, 17, as they watch election returns. Lloyd McBride defeated Sadlowski for the union's top job.

McBride labor chief, unofficial returns say

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Lloyd McBride, 60, a loyal ally of the labor establishment, won the powerful United Steelworkers union presidency by defeating insurgent Ed Sadlowski, according to unofficial returns Wednesday.

Sadlowski refused to concede, and McBride cautiously withheld his victory statement until Thursday. But McBride's big margin in the unofficial returns prompted retiring President I. W. Abel to declare him a winner.

"Why not?" Abel asked. "Why wait? He's got a victory and he ought to claim it.

"I THINK ITS pretty well determined. I don't think there is any question about it now. He has about a 60-40 margin and that's what I thought it would be all along."

McBride's claim on the $75,000-a-year job assured a smooth transition in June with Abel's retirement. McBride won Abel's strong support by defending the 68-year-old union leader against attacks from Sadlowski.

According to McBride headquarters here, McBride has 281,632 votes against the 196,263 of Sadlowski with 4,929 of the 5,251 locals reporting. UPI reporters around the country and in Canada had McBride ahead, 212,760 to 125,270, in unofficial tabulations.

About 500,000 of the 1.4 million union members voted.

IN CHICAGO, a Sadlowski spokesman questioned McBride's figures and implied that Abel was misleading the public.

"Mr. Abel said it would take two or three weeks before we knew a winner," he said. "Now all of a sudden 24 hours later (after the polls closed) they're making big statements. Either he's right or he's wrong."

An official winner will not be declared until May, and Sadlowski was expected to challenge the outcome. Labor Dept. officials already were investigating claims of irregularities involving 56 votes.

A union attorney insisted it was a fair election. "Based on what we know, this is probably the most perfect election that's been run anywhere, including public elections," said associate counsel Michael Gottesman.

Sadlowski, 38, of south Chicago, made a strong showing among workers who agreed with his criticism of the union's no-strike agreement in the basic steel industry.

Although he lost control of the union's big Chicago district to seek the presidency, he was expected to use basic steel as a powerbase to pursue his assault on the labor establishment. He claims labor has lost its muscle.

Sadlowski's criticism of the labor movement brought virtually every other union leader to the defense of McBride, who will be welcome in the highest councils of the AFL-CIO.

The dissidents were optimistic to the end, expecting the final results from big locals to turn it around for Sadlowski.

Makarios ready for compromise on Cyprus state

NICOSIA, Cyprus (UPI) — President Archbishop Makarios Wednesday said he is "prepared for a compromise" to create a federated Cyprus and grant Turkish Cypriots their own state in the north of the divided island.

"There is no disagreement between us on the question of a federation between the areas under Greek Cypriot and Turkish Cypriot administration, while preserving Cyprus as a unitary, independent state," Makarios said in an interview.

"The difficult questions, the questions on which there is disagreement, are those of territory, freedom of movement and freedom of property," he said.

"I am prepared for a compromise," he said. "Any compromise, however, must not endanger the future of Cyprus as an independent state."

Makarios declined to spell out the details of the federation on which he said he and Turkish Cypriot leader Rauf Denktash had agreed. He said the two sides agreed that a joint Greek-Turkish central government would have significant powers.

'He just couldn't live with the pressure'

Murder suspect commits suicide

NEW YORK (UPI) — Maintaining to the end he was innocent of the bedroom murders of his beautiful former wife and a maid in her luxurious suburban home, a despondent garment center executive committed suicide "because he just couldn't live with the pressure," his lawyer said Wednesday.

Chief medical examiner Dominick DiMaio said James Klein, 38, ended his life Tuesday by taking a "massive" overdose of pills in his Manhattan apartment. DeMaio said the death was "obviously a suicide."

The attorney who had been preparing Klein's defense to the double murder charge said two suicide notes found near the body indicated "he just couldn't live with the pressure."

KLEIN'S BODY was found by an unidentified male friend who let himself into the apartment with his own key.

Klein, who ran a clothing business in New York's garment district, was free on $150,000 bail pending trial for the June 2, 1976, murders of his former wife Joanna "Kim" Klein, 32, a model, and her live-in Colombian maid, Martha Lema, 28.

The Kleins had been divorced for three months. Mrs. Klein and Miss Lema were found in a bedroom of her $215,000 ranch-style house with indoor swimming pool that was built on three acres in affluent Greenwich, Conn.

Police said Mrs. Klein was shot twice in the head and the maid shot once in the head and once in the neck. Their bodies were found sprawled three feet from a vase of freshly cut roses.

KLEIN WAS arrested Sept. 4, 1976, in Pompano Beach, Fla., where he was visiting relatives. He waived extradition in Broward County Court and was brought back to Greenwich the next day.

Klein pleaded innocent to the charges. He admitted visiting his wife the day she died and arguing with her over money, but insisted both women were alive when he left.

Police said there were no signs of forced entry into the home, no indications of burglary or sexual assault of either woman.

Klein's attorney, Jack Solerwitz, said Wednesday, he learned the content of the notes through conservations with police and the friend who found Klein's body.

"From what they both told me, the contents of the notes indicated he just couldn't live with the pressure knowing he faced a double murder charge and he still maintained his innocence."

"I think he blamed the Greenwich police for falsely arresting him. That was what he said in the notes. He was just very despondent."

The dissidents were optimistic to the end, expecting the final results from big locals to turn it around for Sadlowski.

Makarios ready for compromise on Cyprus state

NICOSIA, Cyprus (UPI) — President Archbishop Makarios Wednesday said he is "prepared for a compromise" to create a federated Cyprus and grant Turkish Cypriots their own state in the north of the divided island.

"There is no disagreement between us on the question of a federation between the areas under Greek Cypriot and Turkish Cypriot administration, while preserving Cyprus as a unitary, independent state," Makarios said in an interview.

"The difficult questions, the questions on which there is disagreement, are those of territory, freedom of movement and freedom of property," he said.

"I am prepared for a compromise," he said. "Any compromise, however, must not endanger the future of Cyprus as an independent state."

Makarios declined to spell out the details of the federation on which he said he and Turkish Cypriot leader Rauf Denktash had agreed. He said the two sides agreed that a joint Greek-Turkish central government would have significant powers.

Dist. 59 wrapup

Suggestions asked on summer school

Whether Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 will have any type of summer school program this year is uncertain, and school officials hope parents will offer some suggestions before the board of education makes a decision March 7.

Anticipating no state aid for summer school, the board of education may cancel, as it did last year, the district's summer program and allow parent organizations to sponsor their own programs within the schools.

An alternative suggested by board member Gerald Smiley is to hold a special summer school tax rate referendum and let voters decide if they want to pay for the regular summer program.

Funding would require a tax rate of 5 cents per $100 of assessed valuation, Business Mgr. Arthur Perry said. Even if the referendum was approved this year, the money wouldn't be collected until the fall of 1978, he said.

Split on child care funding

Recognizing a need for after school child care, but not sure the school district should be the one to fill the need, Dist. 59 board members are split on whether to fund a pilot child-care program.

Backed by groups including the Elk Grove Township Park District, the Elk Grove Township Services Committee and the Elk Grove Community Service Organization, the 60-day pilot program would be after school for 2½ hours on weekdays at Clearmont School, 280 Clearmont Dr., Elk Grove Village, and Jay School, 1835 West Pheasant Tr., Mount Prospect.

Parents would pay $1 a day for each child enrolled. The program would offer remedial lessons, study groups, quiet game activities, arts and crafts projects and recreational activities, Supt. Roger Bardwell said.

Most of the funding for the pilot child-care program is to come from Elk Grove Township and Dist. 59. Each district will be asked to pay $2,000.

"Sixty-seven per cent of our parents work, leaving the problem of after school care pretty much in limbo," Bardwell said. "Our principals recognize this imposes serious limitations on positive experiences children can have between 3:30 and 6 p.m."

Unit plan backers in closed session

Supporters of the proposed Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 unit school district Wednesday closed their meeting at Grove Junior High School to the public, saying public discussion of their strategy in the upcoming referendum would hurt their cause.

"It would not be in the best interests of this committee to discuss our strategy until we've hashed it out among ourselves," said Thomas Guy, chairman of the committee of 10 Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 residents who filed the petition seeking formation of the unit district.

"We don't intend to become an unknown entity, though, and will become quite vocal in the near future," he said.

BEFORE ASKING THREE student council members from Forest View High School in Arlington Heights to leave the meeting, committee members answered questions from the students regarding the advantages of the new district.

The unit district would combine Dist. 59 schools, Elk Grove High School in Elk Grove Village and Forest View High School, Arlington Heights, under one school board and one administration. Dist. 59 is one of seven elementary districts now in the Dist. 214 area.

Formation of the unit district would mean "more attention, more programs and improved facilities" for students at Elk Grove and Forest View high schools," Dist. 59 Board of Education Pres. Judith Zanca told the three students at Wednesday night's meeting.

"There'll be more dollars to spend on Forest View High School and all the students within the proposed unit district without having to raise taxes," she said.

THE UNIT district would offer all the programs currently offered by Dist. 214, many of which now are inaccessible to Elk Grove Township students who lack transportation to get to the north ends of the district where the classes are taught, Mrs. Zanca said.

Finding people with the expertise for developing new high school programs will be no problem because of the autonomy Dist. 214 has allowed its buildings in curriculum development Charlene Bessey, committee member said.

"Forest View and Elk Grove high schools have developed their own programs and are in a position to continue the kind of programs they think are appropriate," she said.

Teachers from Elk Grove and Forest View high schools are likely to find it beneficial to stay with the unit district because they'll retain their seniority, will be paid well, and won't have to worry about losing jobs because of declining enrollments, Guy said.

Village board wrapup

Plan to construct fountain rejected

A proposal by the Arlington Heights Park District and the Arlington Beautification Council to build a fountain in the rose garden at Windsor Drive and Northwest Highway has been rejected by the village board.

Several residents of Stonegate subdivision attended the meeting to oppose the projects, which would have been funded through a donation to the council.

Anthony Vickers, president of the homeowners group, said residents met last week and voted against the proposed fountain because they feared it might attract vandals to the area.

Council Pres. Mae Zimmanck said another site will be selected for the fountain.

Mall construction extended

Jack Jacobs and Co. Monday was given a nine-month extension to begin construction of an enclosed shopping center at Palatine and Rand roads.

The project was approved three years ago but has been delayed because of financing and leasing difficulties.

Donald Kahan, an attorney for the developer, said construction of the 32-acre project should begin in 1977.

The center still will include a Dominick's supermarket, but will not have a Robert Hall Village discount department store as originally planned, Kahan said.

Negotiations are being conducted with another department store chain, he said.

Dist. 25 to discuss school closings

Residents of Arlington Heights Dist. 25 will have an opportunity to discuss possible school closings in the district at a meeting at 8 p.m. today at Ridge School, 800 N. Fernandez Ave., Arlington Heights where the Dist. 25 Board of Education will be holding its regular meeting.

Because of declining enrollment and financial problems, the board is considering closing at the end of this school year one elementary school and one junior high school, or two junior high schools.

Queen Alia of Jordan dies in crash

AMMAN, Jordan (UPI) — Queen Alia of Jordan, 28, third wife of King Hussein, was killed Wednesday in the crash of a Jordanian military helicopter caught in a violent rainstorm.

His voice breaking with emotion, King Hussein went on national radio to announce the queen's death.

"I mourn my Alia, the queen, my precious companion," Hussein said in a deep, trembling voice.

AMMAN RADIO said the crash, which also killed Minister of Health Mohammed Al Bashir, occurred near the town of Tafila, about 140 miles south of the capital.

The king, who met Tuesday with U.N. Sec. Gen. Kurt Waldheim on the prospects for Arab-Israeli peace talks, said Alia spent the day inspecting a hospital in the southern Jordanian town. Her aircraft crashed in a violent rainstorm as she was returning home to Amman, he said.

"My Alia will not return because God decided to take her to his side," Hussein said. "She gave me a lot and I depended on her. We had a very happy life together."

The royal household and the palaces went into a 40-day period of mourning, the radio said. In Damascus, West German Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher, scheduled to arrive in Jordan Tuesday morning, called off the trip, members of Genscher's party said.

The way we see it

School lunches not all the same

Institutional cooking — whether in the Army, college dormitories or a hospital — is a frequent topic of complaint and bad jokes.

But as a Herald survey of hot lunch programs in Northwest suburban elementary and high schools this week proves, all institutional cooking is not alike.

The Herald education staff sampled the food in the area's school districts and found edibles ranging from delicious fresh-baked apple pie to underdone Tater Tots.

In addition, some dietitians checked on sample meals. They found the meal in Palatine Township Dist. 15 more than adequate and the one in Wheeling Township Dist. 21 — prepared by a private food distributing company — less than nutritionally satisfactory.

There is little indication, even considering the dietitians' judgment, that Northwest suburban children are being underfed in the hot lunch programs. They don't, cafeteria workers say, always eat their vegetables, but they probably share that trait with many of their parents.

In addition, growing junior high school boys — the notorious constant munchers who eat families right out of their refrigerators — are sometimes seen stocking up on three or four ice cream bars after lunch, just to make sure they survive until after-school snack time.

For adults, the review of school lunches has nostalgia value. Who among us has not encountered "mystery meat" in some institutional setting? There is something encouraging in the knowledge that through the medium of salisbury steak, suburban youngsters are being initiated in that tradition.

Also, there is a serious possibility raised by the survey. Reporters found generally school districts with their own kitchens and cooks served better, more palatable meals than those which hire private firms.

That raises the possibility that local schools could cooperate in this area, with neighboring school districts pooling kitchen facilities, to provide more "home cooked" lunches for school children than are now available.

Such cooperative programs might or might not result in financial savings — that would be something school officials would have to study carefully.

But they could improve the quality of food for many youngsters. Who knows, some of the lunches might be better than those Mom defrosts for dinner each evening.

Cheers—it's a heat wave

Is that the first robin of spring, tra-la?

Of course not. That's just your average every day suburbanite skipping down the street, celebrating the fact that the windchill factor has finally gotten above zero.

Let's face it. If the weathermen are right and the temperature creeps up to 40 degrees by today, we're all going to be acting a little foolish. It's going to feel WARM.

It won't be warm, of course, and we'll all be embarrassed when, after running around in shirt sleeves, we all catch colds.

However, it is worth noting that the difference between 10 below zero and 40 degrees above is the same as the difference between 40 degrees and 90 degrees — a hot summer day.

So it may not be spring but at least it's thawed.

After this winter's cold, that's good enough reason to celebrate.

How about a rousing game of softball?

Are you sure we're not being tricked into a nutritional lunch?

Dixon notably unnotable

Nader wasn't dishonored

Paul Greenberg

Not the silliest thing about Ralph Nader's being called a dirty name and "a dirty Arab" to boot is that he's about the cleanest guy in public life — as General Motors discovered at great expense, including the expense of a settlement with Nader after some of its investigative techniques came to light.

Nader, who is of Lebanese descent, is about as Arab, and as American, as Danny Thomas. If the Lebanese have any more such material for export, the United States would be much obliged. After the late unpleasantness in Lebanon, there may be some question in the narrower circles of Arabdom whether Lebanese, Christians still qualify as Arab. But that remains an honorable title among the civilizations of the world, a title only those who hold it can dishonor, and certainly not some Nixon-Ford holdover on the Federal Trade Commission.

In addition to the insensibility these remarks from Paul Rand Dixon betray, they also convey a remarkable imprudence. Imagine insulting the Lebanese at a convention of grocers. Of course word would get out and satisfaction be demanded. Dixon might as well have badmouthed the Chinese at a convention of laundrymen. If nothing else, his outburst indicates a remarkable ignorance of the demographics of the American economy on the part of a commissioner of trade.

BUT SUCH DISTINCTIONS may have been the farthest thing from Dixon's mind, or rather emotions, at the time. He probably just wanted to call Ralph Nader some choice names and reached out for those he thought would be most painful. They were painful, all right, but scarcely to Ralph Nader. Mostly they indicated the kind of public official Paul Rand Dixon is and should cease to be forthwith.

Dixon has done nothing so notable or invigorating before this incident in all his years on the Federal Trade Commission. The general public had scarcely noticed him before and one devoutly hopes he will not be heard of again because of such behavior. Dixon released a general apology and should not have hesitated so long to address it specifically to Ralph Nader.

TO MAKE MATTERS clearer in his mind, he should be disciplined not only by public opinion but by official opinion. Happily, a number of congressmen already appear to be taking on that duty. And somebody ought to send this guy an ethnic survey of American trade. If it doesn't improve his perceptions, it might at least make him more cautious in expressing them.

The file on the new American ambassador to the United Nations begins to swell with disconcerting little items. And before long the collection might have to be filed under N for Naivete. The latest news clip has him describing the Cuban troops in Angola as a "stabilizing" factor.

Stabilizing? The role of Fidel's Sepoys in the occupation of Angola has spread shock waves through the whole of Southern Africa, scaring white regimes rigid (which may be the most self-destructive of postures) and alarming all those regardless of color who still hope for an independent, peaceful, democratic, and stable Africa.

AMBASSADOR YOUNG'S comment says a lot more about his perceptions than it does about reality. He sounds a lot like the last American ambassador to the United Nations — William Scranton — but without the polish. Ambassador Scranton could follow masochistic policies from time to time, but he would never have uttered them so baldly.

Even Cyrus Vance, the new secretary of state, didn't feel it necessary to mention the good the Cubans were doing in Angola when he announced, incredibly enough, that the Carter Administration was moving to reopen relations with Fidel Castro's regime. Even while it supplies the manpower for Soviet ambitions in Africa.

Mr. Young's relative candor about what the Carter Administration has in mind does have one advantage. It's not likely to scare off the Communists, but it ought to alarm Americans.

JIMMY CARTER promised he would do it, and on his first full day in office, in his very first executive order, he did it — issued a full, complete and unconditional pardon for most draft evaders during the Vietnam War.

One hopes this blanket pardon will not have the same searing effect, and leave the same bitter aftertaste, of The Pardon his predecessor handed out — and which still undermines the concept of the law being no respecter of persons in America.

Many have cheered the pardons. Others have denounced them. But perhaps most lasting, somewhere silently in their hearts, surely many Americans will remember those who went to Vietnam when they were called, and those who came back less than whole, and those who did not come back at all. And they will question not only the statecraft of this pardon (wondering what will happen the next time the uncertain trumpet is sounded) but the Justice, and yes, even the mercy of it.

'Other side' on MD issue

Regarding the article by Kurt Baer concerning foreign educated med students, I would like to comment on the "other side."

I believe the difficulty for these young men lies in the fact that although they finished four years of med school in Mexico, they have not remained there the necessary time to be licensed MDs in that country.

The foreign-born, foreign-trained doctor on the other hand becomes licensed to practice medicine in that country before he comes to the United States.

The law, as I understand it, states that the foreign educated MD must be duly licensed to practice medicine in that country before he is granted a temporary license to practice medicine here while waiting to take his exams here.

A simple solution for Americans studying medicine in foreign countries would be to remain there, complete the program and become licensed there before returning. This is what foreign born, foreign educated doctors have always done.

I think Mr. Baer should be aware of all the facts before he writes such an article.

Since a medical education program is so difficult to get into here, the young men should feel lucky to have been able to go to medical school anywhere.

Joan Cruz
Arlington Heights

(Contrary to Mrs. Cruz's impression, it is no simple matter for an American to become a licensed doctor in Mexico. After finishing medical school, the student must complete a one-year pre-graduate internship and another year in social service.

After the student receives a license, he cannot use it without suing the Mexican government for the right to practice as a non-citizen. Long delays are encountered in processing the license application and taking legal action.

Because of these complications, many Americans depend on a program like the one described in Baer's article in order to become eligible for a license here.)

School lauded

I refer to your article in the Wed. Feb. 2 edition of The Herald concerning Christian Liberty Academy in Prospect Heights. The article begins: "The desks are old, the halls are narrow and the library is just an attic full of books."

Well, I should like to set the record straight. Certainly this fine school does not boast the finest in equipment and material trappings. Money is spent on things that really count: the finest Christian textbooks available, and beautiful books for the school library, rather than brand new desks. The new three-story school building was completed last year, built entirely by parents and friends of the academy, and the classrooms are large and airy, each with its own attractive decor. Many sports events with surrounding Christian schools are held in the huge new gymnasium, and there is no, not an attic, but a spacious library which houses thousands of books on every topic for all students from kindergarten through high school.

The maximum class size at the academy is 15 students, so that each child is given a great deal of individual attention and problem areas are quickly corrected. The academy stresses academic achievement and the majority of students are reading two to three years above the national average. Four year olds learn to read fluently in Junior Kindergarten, where they also enjoy classes in Bible, science and mathematics. American history, spelling and penmanship are added at first grade, with Latin, geography and economics taught at fourth grade level. Eighth graders learn French, algebra and auto mechanics in addition to the preceding subjects, and high schoolers are offered a wide range of subjects, including biology, all the math sciences, and English literature.

The word of God permeates each class and His law is the guideline for each student's life. The staff are highly qualified, dedicated Christians and the result is academic superiority in a world where mediocrity seems to have become the norm. We parents of children at Christian Liberty Academy are proud of our school and dedicated to its continued success.

They have no picket signs

Ex-protestors patriotic about Carter

by IRA ALLEN
(Commentary)

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Susan on the West Coast is a traveling saleswoman and leader of a Girl Scout troop. Susan on the East Coast is a lawyer for a small but prestigious firm with political connections.

Then there's Tom, about to graduate from law school and become an assistant prosecutor. And Gail, an artist who finally married her boyfriend five years ago and lives in a suburban Washington garden apartment.

They were all part of a sizable group of radical students, part of the drug and protest scene of the late 1960s, who participated in many of the big Washington demonstrations.

BUT INSTEAD of marching in a "Freaks for Peace" brigade like they did at the 1969 counter-inaugural, or screaming dirty words and tossing rocks at the president like some did at the 1973 inaugural, they either came down to watch Jimmy Carter's Inauguration quietly or stayed home and went about their business.

And then there is Tom Paxton, still singing "two-hanky" love ballads and kick-you-in-the-conscience "message" songs for which he won a wide following a dozen years ago and more.

EMERGING FROM a relative obscurity in recent years, Paxton played to enthusiastic crowds at a Washington nightclub the week after he stood along Pennsylvania Avenue to watch Carter's inaugural parade.

"I get itchy being in Washington without a picket sign," the balding troubador said to the knowing laughter of his fans, now in their late 20s to mid-30s. He said it felt "strange" to watch this inauguration in the capital of what he said was once an "occupied" country.

The word that finally came to him, after some fumbling around to describe the emotion of not having Lyndon Johnson, Richard Nixon or Gerald Ford running things, was "patriotic."

WHILE HE still sings the poignant songs of lost love, alienated youth and Vietnam, Paxton now sings also of the foibles of married life and small children.

He jokes about having gone to drama school to learn to lose his southern drawl, and now, after living in England, having to learn how to speak southern again.

And after an evening of gentle humor and satiric sing-alongs, it seems as if Tom Paxton, author of "A Rumbling in the Land" — and perhaps other folk era artists — is on the way back. Back to celebrate the end of an "occupation" that started with the death of John Kennedy and ended on Inauguration Day, 1977. Back to keep the new establishment honest with songs and commentary about ecology, capital punishment and the plight of Vietnam veterans.

Many in the audience were sympathetic with Paxton's strange feelings of not needing to protest, of feeling patriotic. The applause for those sentiments outweighed the self-conscious giggling. Not quite loud enough for Carter to hear, but loud enough to signal that perhaps there is a president the last few generations of disaffected college students might respect.

Tomorrow...

The impression the Carter administration has made on four leaders from Illinois — Sen. Charles Percy, Sen. Adlai Stevenson, U.S. Rep. Abner Mikva and U.S. Rep. Philip Crane.

The way we see it

School lunches not all the same

Institutional cooking — whether in the Army, college dormitories or a hospital — is a frequent topic of complaint and bad jokes.

But as a Herald survey of hot lunch programs in Northwest suburban elementary and high schools this week proves, all institutional cooking is not alike.

The Herald education staff sampled the food in the area's school districts and found edibles ranging from delicious fresh-baked apple pie to underdone Tater Tots.

In addition, some dietitians checked on sample meals. They found the meal in Palatine Township Dist. 15 more than adequate and the one in Wheeling Township Dist. 21 — prepared by a private food distributing company — less than nutritionally satisfactory.

There is little indication, even considering the dietitians' judgment, that Northwest suburban children are being underfed in the hot lunch programs. They don't, cafeteria workers say, always eat their vegetables, but they probably share that trait with many of their parents.

In addition, growing junior high school boys — the notorious constant munchers who eat families right out of their refrigerators — are sometimes seen stocking up on three or four ice cream bars after lunch, just to make sure they survive until after-school snack time.

For adults, the review of school lunches has nostalgia value. Who among us has not encountered "mystery meat" in some institutional setting? There is something encouraging in the knowledge that through the medium of salisbury steak, suburban youngsters are being initiated in that tradition.

Also, there is a serious possibility raised by the survey. Reporters found generally school districts with their own kitchens and cooks served better, more palatable meals than those which hire private firms.

That raises the possibility that local schools could cooperate in this area, with neighboring school districts pooling kitchen facilities, to provide more "home cooked" lunches for school children than are now available.

Such cooperative programs might or might not result in financial savings — that would be something school officials would have to study carefully.

But they could improve the quality of food for many youngsters. Who knows, some of the lunches might be better than those Mom defrosts for dinner each evening.

Cheers—it's a heat wave

Is that the first robin of spring, tra-la?

Of course not. That's just your average every day suburbanite skipping down the street, celebrating the fact that the windchill factor has finally gotten above zero.

Let's face it. If the weathermen are right and the temperature creeps up to 40 degrees by today, we're all going to be acting a little foolish. It's going to feel WARM.

It won't be warm, of course, and we'll all be embarrassed when, after running around in shirt sleeves, we all catch colds.

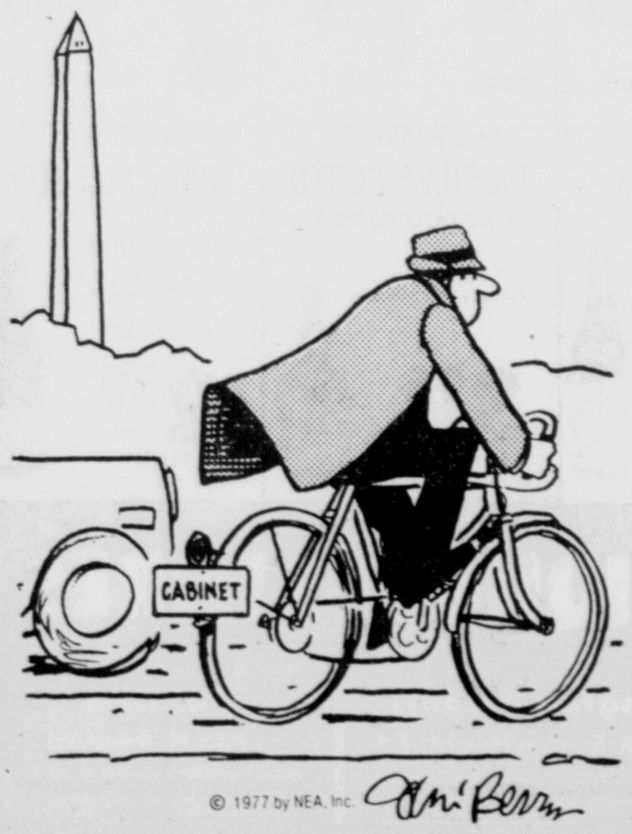
However, it is worth noting that the difference between 10 below zero and 40 degrees above is the same as the difference between 40 degrees and 90 degrees — a hot summer day.

So it may not be spring but at least it's thawed.

After this winter's cold, that's good enough reason to celebrate.

How about a rousing game of softball?

Berry's world



Are you sure we're not being tricked into a nutritional lunch?

Nader wasn't dishonored

Paul Greenberg

Not the silliest thing about Ralph Nader's being called a dirty name and "a dirty Arab" to boot is that he's about the cleanest guy in public life — as General Motors discovered at great expense, including the expense of a settlement with Nader after some of its investigative techniques came to light.

Nader, who is of Lebanese descent, is about as Arab, and as American, as Danny Thomas. If the Lebanese have any more such material for export, the United States would be much obliged. After the late unpleasantness in Lebanon, there may be some question in the narrower circles of Arabdom whether Lebanese, Christians still qualify as Arab. But that remains an honorable title among the civilizations of the world, a title only those who hold it can dishonor, and certainly not some Nixon-Ford holdover on the Federal Trade Commission.

In addition to the insensibility these remarks from Paul Rand Dixon betray, they also convey a remarkable imprudence. Imagine insulting the Lebanese at a convention of grocers. Of course word would get out and satisfaction be demanded. Dixon might as well have badmouthed the Chinese at a convention of laundrymen. If nothing else, his outburst indicates a remarkable ignorance of the demographics of the American economy on the part of a commissioner of trade.

BUT SUCH DISTINCTIONS may have been the farthest thing from Dixon's mind, or rather emotions, at the time. He probably just wanted to call Ralph Nader some choice names and reached out for those he thought would be most painful. They were painful, all right, but scarcely to Ralph Nader. Mostly they indicated the kind of public official Paul Rand Dixon is and should cease to be forthwith.

Dixon has done nothing so notable or invigorating before this incident in all his years on the Federal Trade Commission. The general public had scarcely noticed him before and one devoutly hopes he will not be heard of again because of such behavior. Dixon released a general apology and should not have hesitated so long to address it specifically to Ralph Nader.

TO MAKE MATTERS clearer in his mind, he should be disciplined not only by public opinion but by official opinion. Happily, a number of congressmen already appear to be taking on that duty. And somebody ought to send this guy an ethnic survey of American trade. If it doesn't improve his perceptions, it might at least make him more cautious in expressing them.

The file on the new American ambassador to the United Nations begins to swell with disconcerting little items. And before long the collection might have to be filed under N for Naivete. The latest news clip has him describing the Cuban troops in Angola as a "stabilizing" factor.

Stabilizing? The role of Fidel's Sepoys in the occupation of Angola has spread shock waves through the whole of Southern Africa, scaring white regimes rigid (which may be the most self-destructive of postures) and alarming all those regardless of color who still hope for an independent, peaceful, democratic, and stable Africa.

AMBASSADOR YOUNG'S comment says a lot more about his perceptions than it does about reality. He sounds a lot like the last American ambassador to the United Nations — William Scranton — but without the polish. Ambassador Scranton could follow masochistic policies from time to time, but he would never have uttered them so baldly.

Even Cyrus Vance, the new secretary of state, didn't feel it necessary to mention the good the Cubans were doing in Angola when he announced, incredibly enough, that the Carter Administration was moving to reopen relations with Fidel Castro's regime. Even while it supplies the manpower for Soviet ambitions in Africa.

Mr. Young's relative candor about what the Carter Administration has in mind does have one advantage. It's not likely to scare off the Communists, but it ought to alarm Americans.

JIMMY CARTER promised he would do it, and on his first full day in office, in his very first executive order, he did it — issued a full, complete and unconditional pardon for most draft evaders during the Vietnam War.

One hopes this blanket pardon will not have the same searing effect, and leave the same bitter aftertaste, of The Pardon his predecessor handed out — and which still undermines the concept of the law being no respecter of persons in America.

Many have cheered the pardons. Others have denounced them. But perhaps most lasting, somewhere silently in their hearts, surely many Americans will remember those who went to Vietnam when they were called, and those who came back less than whole, and those who did not come back at all. And they will question not only the statecraft of this pardon (wondering what will happen the next time the uncertain trumpet is sounded) but the Justice, and yes, even the mercy of it.

They have no picket signs

by IRA ALLEN
(Commentary)

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Susan on the West Coast is a traveling saleswoman and leader of a Girl Scout troop. Susan on the East Coast is a lawyer for a small but prestigious firm with political connections.

Then there's Tom, about to graduate from law school and become an assistant prosecutor. And Gail, an artist who finally married her boyfriend five years ago and lives in a suburban Washington garden apartment.

They were all part of a sizable group of radical students, part of the drug and protest scene of the late 1960s, who participated in many of the big Washington demonstrations.

BUT INSTEAD of marching in a "Freaks for Peace" brigade like they did at the 1969 counter-inaugural, or screaming dirty words and tossing rocks at the president like some did at the 1973 inaugural, they either came down to watch Jimmy Carter's Inauguration quietly or stayed home and went about their business.

And then there is Tom Paxton, still singing "two-hanky" love ballads and kick-you-in-the-conscience "message" songs for which he won a wide following a dozen years ago and more.

EMERGING FROM a relative obscurity in recent years, Paxton played to enthusiastic crowds at a Washington nightclub the week after he stood along Pennsylvania Avenue to watch Carter's inaugural parade.

"I get itchy being in Washington without a picket sign," the balding troubador said to the knowing laughter of his fans, now in their late 20s to mid-30s. He said it felt "strange" to watch this inauguration in the capital of what he said was once an "occupied" country.

The word that finally came to him, after some fumbling around to describe the emotion of not having Lyndon Johnson, Richard Nixon or Gerald Ford running things, was "patriotic."

WHILE HE still sings the poignant songs of lost love, alienated youth and Vietnam, Paxton now sings also of the foibles of married life and small children.

He jokes about having gone to drama school to learn to lose his southern drawl, and now, after living in England, having to learn how to speak southern again.

And after an evening of gentle humor and satiric sing-alongs, it seems as if Tom Paxton, author of "A Rumbling in the Land" — and perhaps other folk era artists — is on the way back. Back to celebrate the end of an "occupation" that started with the death of John Kennedy and ended on Inauguration Day, 1977. Back to keep the new establishment honest with songs and commentary about ecology, capital punishment and the plight of Vietnam veterans.

Many in the audience were sympathetic with Paxton's strange feelings of not needing to protest, of feeling patriotic. The applause for those sentiments outweighed the self-conscious giggling. Not quite loud enough for Carter to hear, but loud enough to signal that perhaps there is a president the last few generations of disaffected college students might respect.

Tomorrow...

The impression the Carter administration has made on four leaders from Illinois — Sen. Charles Percy, Sen. Adlai Stevenson, U.S. Rep. Abner Mikva and U.S. Rep. Philip Crane.

'Other side' on MD issue

Regarding the article by Kurt Baer concerning foreign educated med students, I would like to comment on the "other side."

I believe the difficulty for these young men lies in the fact that although they finished four years of med school in Mexico, they have not remained there the necessary time to be licensed MDs in that country.

The foreign-born, foreign-trained doctor on the other hand becomes licensed to practice medicine in that country before he comes to the United States.

The law, as I understand it, states that the foreign educated MD must be duly licensed to practice medicine in that country before he is granted a temporary license to practice medicine here while waiting to take his exams here.

A simple solution for Americans studying medicine in foreign countries would be to remain there, complete the program and become licensed there before returning. This is what foreign born, foreign educated doctors have always done.

I think Mr. Baer should be aware of all the facts before he writes such an article.

Since a medical education program is so difficult to get into here, the young men should feel lucky to have been able to go to medical school anywhere.

Joan Cruz
Arlington Heights

(Contrary to Mrs. Cruz's impression, it is no simple matter for an American to become a licensed doctor in Mexico. After finishing medical school, the student must complete a one-year pre-graduate internship and another year in social service.

After the student receives a license, he cannot use it without suing the Mexican government for the right to practice as a non-citizen. Long delays are encountered in processing the license application and taking legal action.

Because of these complications, many Americans depend on a program like the one described in Baer's article in order to become eligible for a license here.)

School lauded

I refer to your article in the Wed. Feb. 2 edition of The Herald concerning Christian Liberty Academy in Prospect Heights. The article begins: "The desks are old, the halls are narrow and the library is just an attic full of books."

Well, I should like to set the record straight. Certainly this fine school does not boast the finest in equipment and material trappings. Money is spent on things that really count: the finest Christian textbooks available, and beautiful books for the school library, rather than brand new desks. The new three-story school building was completed last year, built entirely by parents and friends of the academy, and the classrooms are large and airy, each with its own attractive decor. Many sports events with surrounding Christian schools are held in the huge new gymnasium, and there is no, not an attic, but a spacious library which houses thousands of books on every topic for all students from kindergarten through high school.

The maximum class size at the academy is 15 students, so that each child is given a great deal of individual attention and problem areas are quickly corrected. The academy stresses academic achievement and the majority of students are reading two to three years above the national average. Four year olds learn to read fluently in Junior Kindergarten, where they also enjoy classes in Bible, science and mathematics. American history, spelling and penmanship are added at first grade, with Latin, geography and economics taught at fourth grade level. Eighth graders learn French, algebra and auto mechanics in addition to the preceding subjects, and high schoolers are offered a wide range of subjects, including biology, all the math sciences, and English literature.

The word of God permeates each class and His law is the guideline for each student's life. The staff are highly qualified, dedicated Christians and the result is academic superiority in a world where mediocrity seems to have become the norm. We parents of children at Christian Liberty Academy are proud of our school and dedicated to its continued success.

Control of First Arlington bank bought by 2, shareholders learn

Controlling interest in the First Arlington National Bank of Arlington Heights has been purchased by Howard A. McKee of Long Grove and Robert W. Mills of Rantoul.

McKee and Mills purchased their stock from Douglas W. Dodds, who has been the bank's president since 1958, and his nephew, James T. Dodds. Both Doddses retained an undisclosed amount of stock and will remain on the bank's board of directors.

The sale was announced Wednesday following the bank's annual shareholders' meeting Tuesday night.

McKee, 61, was appointed chairman of the board and Mills, 35, was named president and chief executive officer of the bank.

THE FIRST ARLINGTON National Bank is the largest bank in Arlington Heights and the sixth largest in the Northwest suburbs with assets of nearly $90 million.

Howard McKee

Robert Mills

McKee, who is board chairman or chairman of the executive committees at 10 other suburban banks, said no personnel changes are planned for First Arlington.

Mills, who was president of First National Bank of Rantoul until September, said the First Arlington will be "a very community-oriented bank."

"Any viable project that comes to pass, downtown or otherwise, we'll seek to participate in," Mills said.

McKEE SAID he has been negotiating to purchase Dodds' stock in the bank for about eight months. He is chairman of the Wheeling Trust and Savings Bank and the Bank of Buffalo Grove and also holds positions with banks in Niles, Waukegan, Wauconda, Round Lake, Dundee, Crystal Lake, Chicago Heights, Downers Grove and Urbana.

McKee has been credited with the substantial growth of the Wheeling Trust and Savings Bank and the Bank of Buffalo Grove, which have increased their deposits 15-20 per cent annually under his stewardship.

During Mills' three years as president of the Rantoul bank, deposits doubled and loans were nearly tripled.

Mills takes over the bank which last year was involved in a federal investigation into the activities of the bank's former auditor Bruce Dodds.

Bruce Dodds, son of Douglas Dodds, was indicted by a federal grand jury on four counts of embezzlement and misapplication of funds. His trial is to begin Feb. 24.

Carter long johns short on energy

Louis Rukeyser

NEW YORK — The new theme song of the American people apparently is supposed to be, "Baby, It's Cold Inside." Instead of the Eisenhower jacket or the Jacqueline Kennedy pillbox hat, this era seems destined to be remembered for the Carter long johns. Patriotism is to be measured not by raising the flag but by lowering the thermostat.

Well, pardon me if I enter one small, mild dissent. We are in danger of being swept away, in an orgy of uncomfortable — but smug — self-denial, into thinking just because we're suffering we finally are coming to grips with our chilly problem. Sorry, but that kind of comfort is cold, too.

What we are being asked to do, in essence, is to deal with the less important part of the energy equation. Conservation is splendid and in many areas overdue. It has the additional economic benefit of saving money — a point that surely has not escaped the many hotels, restaurants and other business establishments urging us to cooperate while on their premises.

WE HAVE, INDEED, been wasteful, and we must, indeed, conserve. It did not take the current cruel winter to validate the necessity for restraining United States energy consumption.

But let us try to see the picture whole. Conservation alone never will move us toward three essential energy goals: keeping our families warm in winter, avoiding blackmail in foreign affairs and providing the jobs for those who need them. All those goals, in the end, require action on the supply side.

Yet despite all the jokes about Mrs. Carter's tears, and the self-righteous scanning of one another's thermostats, we continue to ignore the more vital part of the answer to the crisis. No leader in either party has had the courage to say plainly we must compromise some of the dreams for ecological perfection now — that we are going to have to get moving on new energy production, and that this indisputably is going to have to demand compromises on the environmental side.

For starters, we must expedite the flow of oil from Alaska. We're going to have to proceed with the safe development of nuclear power — an area where the United States pioneered in war, but has lagged behind many of its competitors in peace. We must encourage the development of more desirable alternative sources for the future, such as solar power. Most urgently and most immediately, we must start making far better use of this nation's huge — and internationally unique — reservoirs of coal.

WE'RE NOT OUT of energy, but we do seem to be awfully short on guts. What we need is not more sweaters but more sense. We certainly don't need a massive new government spending program — but we do need, openly and honestly, to assign a premier national priority to increasing our own energy resources. We have gabbed about this for the three and a half years since the Arabs stuck their finger in our eye, but we have disgracefully failed to do it.

Just as we have to have the courage to recognize the necessity for environmental compromise — in all our interests, including those of future generations — so we have to stop talking political malarkey and start talking economic sense on such issues as finally removing the controls on natural gas prices, and allowing the market-price system (which is, quite simply, the best tool we have) to get us the energy and other resources an expanding economy will need.

We're in a jam now, and it is to a distasteful extent our own fault. Instead of moving to encourage energy production, we have twice since the embargo penalized the energy industry with new taxation. Instead of moving boldly to develop our own resources, we have temporized with every pressure group on the political scene. Now we're freezing, and worried, and we're going to have to lower our thermostats, but the real tragedy would be if we once again failed to look at the cold facts behind our self-induced crisis.

Dow drops 8.4; hits 3-month low

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Dow Jones industrial average suffered its worst loss in three weeks Wednesday while falling to a three-month low in fairly active trading of New York Stock Exchange issues.

The selloff was sparked by the fact the weather-energy crisis has shown the nation could face a severe economic jolt in the future if the government fails to provide a correct energy policy as well as by potentially grim prospects for the automobile industry. Auto stocks, particularly General Motors, were routed.

The Dow Jones average, a 4.07-point loser Tuesday, dropped 8.40 points to 933.84, the lowest level since it closed at 927.69 Nov. 12. It had been down 11 points earlier. Wednesday's loss was the worst since the blue-chip average fell 9.64 points Jan. 20.

THE DOW NOW has fallen 70.81 points this year, demonstrating institutions had fled blue chips and glamors for lower-priced stocks paying more dividends.

The NYSE common stock index fell 0.47 to 54.86 and the average price of a common share decreased 28 cents. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index, containing some over-the-counter stocks, fell 0.87 to 100.73.

Declines routed advances, 1,059 to 381, among the 1,867 issues crossing the composite tape.

Big volume totaled 23,640,000 shares, compared with 24,040,000 traded Tuesday.

Orange crop hurt but still big: report

Last month's freezing weather cut 1976-77 orange production prospects by 11 per cent, but the crop still is expected to be the biggest in history, the Agriculture Dept. said Wednesday. The department's Crop Reporting Board estimated, on the basis of Feb. 1 conditions, that the national orange crop will total 248.6 million boxes. That is 11 per cent below an estimate of 278.6 million boxes issued last month but 3 per cent above last season's record of 242.6 million boxes. The loss, suffered largely in Florida where a freeze blasted citrus groves Jan. 18-20, appeared smaller than earlier reports had shown. The crop board cautioned that final losses will depend on whether warm weather causes droppage and deterioration of freeze-damaged fruit, which has been light so far. Orange production in Florida as of Feb. 1 was estimated at 183 million boxes, down 14 per cent from the January forecast of 213 million, but still 1 per cent above the previous season's crop.

Care urged for emission controls

Automobile manufacturers Wednesday urged Congress to go slowly on future emission standards, asking that 1977 standards be kept through the 1978 and 1979 model years, at least. The industry officials said stricter rules would reduce fuel economy and seriously disrupt the auto industry and the nation's economy. The Environmental Protection Agency had announced Tuesday that it was using a new technique, pulling cars off assembly lines to see whether they met emission standards that had been demonstrated. EPA said a "major gap" exists between the test prototypes and production cars. It ordered production stopped on one Ford and one Mercury model. Sidney Terry, a Chrysler Corp. vice president, said "the issue comes down to one of fuel economy and jobs."

Glass blowers sign 3-year pact

Owens-Illinois Inc. Wednesday announced adoption of a new three-year contract with the Glass Bottle Blowers Assn. covering about 11,600 production and maintenance workers in 16 of the company's glass container plants. In addition, tentative agreement was reached with the association for a new contract covering machine operators in all 20 Owens-Illinois glass container plants. The union has scheduled a ratification vote among the company's 1,900 machine operators Feb. 17. Negotiations continued Wednesday with the union bargaining committee representing the balance of the employes in the glass container plants — some 2,400 production and maintenance workers in four Pacific Coast plants.

That is 11 per cent below an estimate of 278.6 million boxes issued last month but 3 per cent above last season's record of 242.6 million boxes. The loss, suffered largely in Florida where a freeze blasted citrus groves Jan. 18-20, appeared smaller than earlier reports had shown. The crop board cautioned that final losses will depend on whether warm weather causes droppage and deterioration of freeze-damaged fruit, which has been light so far. Orange production in Florida as of Feb. 1 was estimated at 183 million boxes, down 14 per cent from the January forecast of 213 million, but still 1 per cent above the previous season's crop.

Care urged for emission controls

Automobile manufacturers Wednesday urged Congress to go slowly on future emission standards, asking that 1977 standards be kept through the 1978 and 1979 model years, at least. The industry officials said stricter rules would reduce fuel economy and seriously disrupt the auto industry and the nation's economy. The Environmental Protection Agency had announced Tuesday that it was using a new technique, pulling cars off assembly lines to see whether they met emission standards that had been demonstrated. EPA said a "major gap" exists between the test prototypes and production cars. It ordered production stopped on one Ford and one Mercury model. Sidney Terry, a Chrysler Corp. vice president, said "the issue comes down to one of fuel economy and jobs."

Glass blowers sign 3-year pact

Owens-Illinois Inc. Wednesday announced adoption of a new three-year contract with the Glass Bottle Blowers Assn. covering about 11,600 production and maintenance workers in 16 of the company's glass container plants. In addition, tentative agreement was reached with the association for a new contract covering machine operators in all 20 Owens-Illinois glass container plants. The union has scheduled a ratification vote among the company's 1,900 machine operators Feb. 17. Negotiations continued Wednesday with the union bargaining committee representing the balance of the employes in the glass container plants — some 2,400 production and maintenance workers in four Pacific Coast plants.

BACK DOOR JOEY. Fleet-footed Joe Pusatera of Hersey puts up a short off-balance jump shot against Wheeling's 6-3 center Ken Paulus in MSL action. Pusatera a 5-8 guard, scored seven points including a couple of baskets on nifty back-door plays, but Wheeling won the game 81-60.

Wheeling wins North gym crown by shading Bison

by CHARLIE DICKINSON

Wheeling delighted a near capacity crowd Thursday night with a 140.35 to 136.93 dual meet win over the Buffalo Grove Bison that gave the Wildcats their first North Division Mid-Suburban League gymnastics championship and also established them as favorites in Saturday's conference meet.

South Division champion Elk Grove finished their conference slate at 6-0 with a 129.32 to 110.5 decision of Conant.

Other dual meets saw Fremd topping Arlington 133.23 to 124.46, Rolling Meadows clipped Prospect 133.79 to 102.58, Hersey defeated Palatine 117.95 to 102.02 and Forest View edged Schaumburg 112.32 to 108.47.

Buffalo Grove was without side horse and high bar specialist Fred Bista and side horse man Brian Muenz but that did not dilute the Wheeling triumph.

Wheeling took control of the meet on the side horse event, outscoring Buffalo Grove by nearly six points as Jim Geske fired an 8.25 to win the event.

The Bison spent the rest of the evening trying to make that spread up. Their high bar team, the highest-scoring outfit in the state, was led by Marv Snitkoff's 8.35 and an 8.3 by all-arounder Lee Battaglia.

But Wheeling stayed close enough on the high bar event to keep the lead and the large, enthusiastic crowd began to sense the momentum of the evening swinging toward the Wildcats.

"The audience was just super," said Wheeling coach Dave Watters. "This is the best crowd I've ever seen at a high school gym meet."

Geske's side horse title and Jamie Wallace's 7.75 on still rings (earning a tie with the Bison's Dewey Deal) were the only event titles Wheeling won.

Evan Jones (free ex, 8.1), Dennis Breit (trampoline, 8.35) and Deal (P-Bars, 8.25 and all-around, 7.68) picked up the rest of the hardware for Buffalo Grove.

Wheeling's balance and the all-around work of sophomores Jeff Vanyek (7.25) and Dino Manus (6.76) proved to be the difference.

"Vanyek and Manus are so cool out there," Watters said. "We got great help from everybody. Now we just have to do the job Saturday."

FREMD'S DOUG Smidl continued to upgrade the MSL all-around standard as he averaged 8.43 against Arlington.

Cardinal still ring ace Tom Staley kept Smidl from sweeping all five event titles for the second week in a row as he won his specialty with an 8.55.

Smidl won everything else, scoring 8.4 on free ex, 8.6 on side horse, 8.45 on high bar and 8.55 on P-Bars.

Jim Kelley of Arlington scored 8.0 on the trampoline to win that event.

ELK GROVE'S Grenadiers, defending champion of the MSL, won six event titles as they turned back the Conant Cougars.

Conant's Fred Weihmuller won the all-around with a 6.9 average but the Grens won everything else.

more to come.

Bob Hamilton and doug Phillips each won a pair of event titles. Hamilton was the best on high bar (8.05) and trampoline (7.4) while Phillips was the class of P-Bars (7.8) and still rings (7.55).

Don Bosslet captured the free ex title (7.95) and Bob Small was the side horse champ at 6.45.

Mike Illingworth won three event titles for Rolling Meadows, taking free ex with an 8.1, high bar with an 8.1 and all-around with a 6.74 average.

Glenn Johnson soared to the tramp title with an 8.4 and Mike DiPiero (P-Bars, 8.0) and Mike Meyer (still rings, 8.35) completed the Meadows' list of champions.

Jeff Christian won the side horse for Prospect with a 6.6.

Palatine's Ron Bakken won all-around (5.67) and Paul Jacobs captured free ex (7.55) but Hersey grabbed everything else as the Huskies prevailed.

Ed Weinberg and Paul Brown tied for the side horse title (7.15), Pat Murphy won high bar (6.75), Ray Peters trampoline (7.85), Jim Huck took P-Bars (7.2) and Don Dean the still rings (6.25) for Hersey's event championships.

Forest View, paced by Guy Hobart, won six events as they nipped Schaumburg. Hobart won event titles on side horse (6.75), P-Bars (8.0) and all-around (5.97) to lead the Falcons.

Schaumburg's Mark Sterle won the free ex (7.75) but Pat Lucansky (high bar, 7.05), Dave Hohmeier (tramp, 7.85) and Dario Cruz (still rings, 8.2) won the rest for Forest View.

Hawks rally to tie Washington

Dick Redmond scored with 3:26 left in the game to cap a three-goal third period rally by Chicago and give the Black Hawks a 4-4 tie with the Washington Capitals in a National Hockey League game Wednesday night.

Jim Harrison, Stan Mikita, and Redmond earned the deadlock for Chicago with goals in the last 11 minutes.

Washington took a 2-1 first period lead on power play goals by Eguy Charron and Tony White, sandwiched around Mikita's first tally.

IN THE SECOND period, Garry Meehan stole a Mikita pass and fed Bill Riley to make it 3-1 and the Capitals' Craig Patrick scored his second goal of the season with 3:07 gone in the third period.

Meehan had three assists in the game to record his 19th point in his last 10 games. Charron tied the Washington record of 58 points with his goal and an assist on White's goal.

The tie extended Washington's winless streak to four games and broke Chicago's losing streak of three games.

Washington Coach Tom McVie marked his 100th game with the club during which he has a record of 24-61-15.

ELSEWHERE IN the NHL Wednesday night, Jacques Lemaire scored twice Wednesday night as the Montreal Canadiens extended their unbeaten string to 10 games by blanking the Vancouver Canucks 6-0 behind Ken Dryden's seventh shutout.

The victory also extended the Canadiens' undefeated home streak to 21 games.

Lemaire's first goal made the score 2-0 at 11:44 of the opening period when his shot bounced into the Vancouver net off the stick of Canuck's defenseman Dennis Kearns. Lemaire scored his 25th goal as Montreal went ahead 6-0 in the second period.

Darryl Sittler returned to the lineup after missing seven games with torn rib cartilage and scored two goals to guide the Toronto Maple Leafs to a 5-1 victory over the Atlanta Flames Wednesday night.

Sittler's first goal, at 18:45 of the second period, came on a low wrist shot past goalie Dan Bouchard's right side. It was Sittler's 19th goal of the season and gave Toronto a 3-1 lead.

RALPH KLASSEN scored two goals and Rick Hampton had a goal and two assists Wednesday night as the Cleveland Barons defeated the Los Angeles Kings 6-3.

The game matched two goalies traded for each other less than three weeks ago and Gary Edwards, the Barons' acquisition came out on top, making 29 saves. Gary Simmons could stop only 18 of the 24 shots on goal taken by Cleveland.

Gilbert Perreault and Andre Savard each scored their 23rd goal of the season Wednesday night to give the Buffalo Sabres a 2-1 victory over the New York Rangers.

Perreault's goal, which snapped a personal 10-game scoreless streak, tied the game at 1-1 at 14:17 of the first period and Savard's goal proved to be the winner with 51 seconds left in the second period.

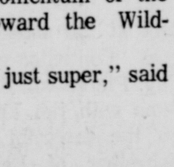
Questions, praise for prep wrestlers

Byline report



Keith Reinhard

Some observations at the opening of high school wrestling's second season:

First a salute to the Jim Lucanskys, Gil Darmofals, Curt Rathjes, Bob Harts and Tim Foleys of the area.

These youngsters and others like them have paid their dues. They've put in their hours and hours of workouts and drills in sweaty wrestling rooms, dreaming about this time of the season.

Injuries have cut short their aspirations though and the pain of being unable to participate is probably the biggest hurt of all. Foley of Buffalo Grove is a classic example. As a sophomore he was hurt in the district meet. As a junior his season was cut short at the sectional level. And this year, as a senior, he reinjured his shoulder in the MSL conference meet.

Last year the injury came in the sectional finals at Barrington, a step away from an opportunity to go downstate. Foley was dropped back into the wrestlebacks (a situation that is not always required) where he proved ineffective against a challenger he had already decisioned earlier in the year.

THAT BRINGS UP a second point. Are wrestlebacks necessary at all? The question of a second chance in the district, sectional and state final mat competition is one that has been debated since its inception.

In Foley's case, the absence of a wrestleback bracket would have guaranteed him a ticket to Champaign regardless of the outcome of the title match. Wrestlebacks, of course, are time consuming too and in the case of a weak field, can tend to drag a meet out beyond the point of interest.

And there are some coaches like Addison Trail's veteran Tony Parks who feel they actually detract from the tournaments. "In other state tournaments you get no second chance. Why in wrestling?" he asks.

Parks is also a very vocal advocate of a team concept in wrestling. On this point, too, coaches are pretty well polarized. Rick Gerz of Schaumburg, for example, stands firmly behind the present emphasis on individualism.

ON PARKS BEHALF, the matter of taking two outstanding wrestlers down to Champaign and bringing home a state team trophy can be a rather dubious distinction.

Meanwhile, there are mat teams like East Leyden and DeKalb which are powerhouses every year. They have to view the state team championship as a misnomer.

And many naturally would argue that the current advancement setup detracts from the team ethic which is otherwise so amply stressed at the prep level.

Gerz speaks well, however, on behalf of individualism. "Granted, there is a team concept to wrestling, but when these kids go out on the mat it's strictly one-on-one. Teamwork isn't a factor as it is in, say basketball, or football or even cross country to a degree."

"Besides," the Saxon pilot adds, "I don't think enough emphasis is placed on being an individual at the high school level. And while it's important to learn to work with others, it's possibly even more important to learn how to be self reliant."

No matter what the coaches think, there is reason to believe that the current state wrestling tournament system will be revamped within the next year or two.

WHILE WHEELING was winning the MSL conference championship last week, Ken Kent was becoming the first grappler in a couple years to earn a second straight title. Before him, 13 other wrestlers turned that nifty trick, including a trio of standouts who gained three straight circuit thrones. Who are they?

Those other double winners before Kent were Hersey's Brad Smith, Ted DeLuca and Pat Teefey in '71 and '72; Craig Mann of Elk Grove and Huskie Kevin Pancratz in '72 and '73; Conant's John Beck, Wildcat Ken Smith and Jeff Reinhard of Hersey in '73 and '74; and Grenadiers Rick Morris and Leo Montemayor in '74 and '75.

Schaumburg's Gary Evans grabbed titles in '72, '73 and '74 and Forest View's John Gross and Saxon Terry Ruddy equaled the feat in '73, '74 and '75.

ON A FINAL NOTE, we have Bob Schulze, the coach at Wheeling, with just a little time to gloat over his team's new crown before sending those charges into an awesome district gathering at Buffalo Grove.

"This has just been a real class group of kids," Schulze pointed out. "There's a lot of talent there and we've had three team captains who are the glue that have made it all come together."

In citing seniors Mike Reif, Kent

'Unsung heroes' in Veeck's plans

There will be no Hall of Fame game this year for Bill Veeck, nor an Old Timers game, either.

The head man of the White Sox celebrated his 63rd birthday Wednesday with an announcement that the club this year will honor "the unsung heroes" of baseball on July 17.

LIKE HOWIE Judson, who in 1949 set a club record by losing 14 straight games.

And Paul LaPalme, who once was instructed by Manager Al Lopez to "throw it in the dirt or in the grandstand, or just hold it, just don't let him hit it." LaPalme threw the ball anyway and it was a home run pitch, costing the Sox a victory seconds before the curfew.

Or Floyd Baker, who hit one home run in 13 years with the White Sox, and Bob Kennedy, now the general manager-base operations of the Chicago Cubs, who was with the White Sox three times as a player.

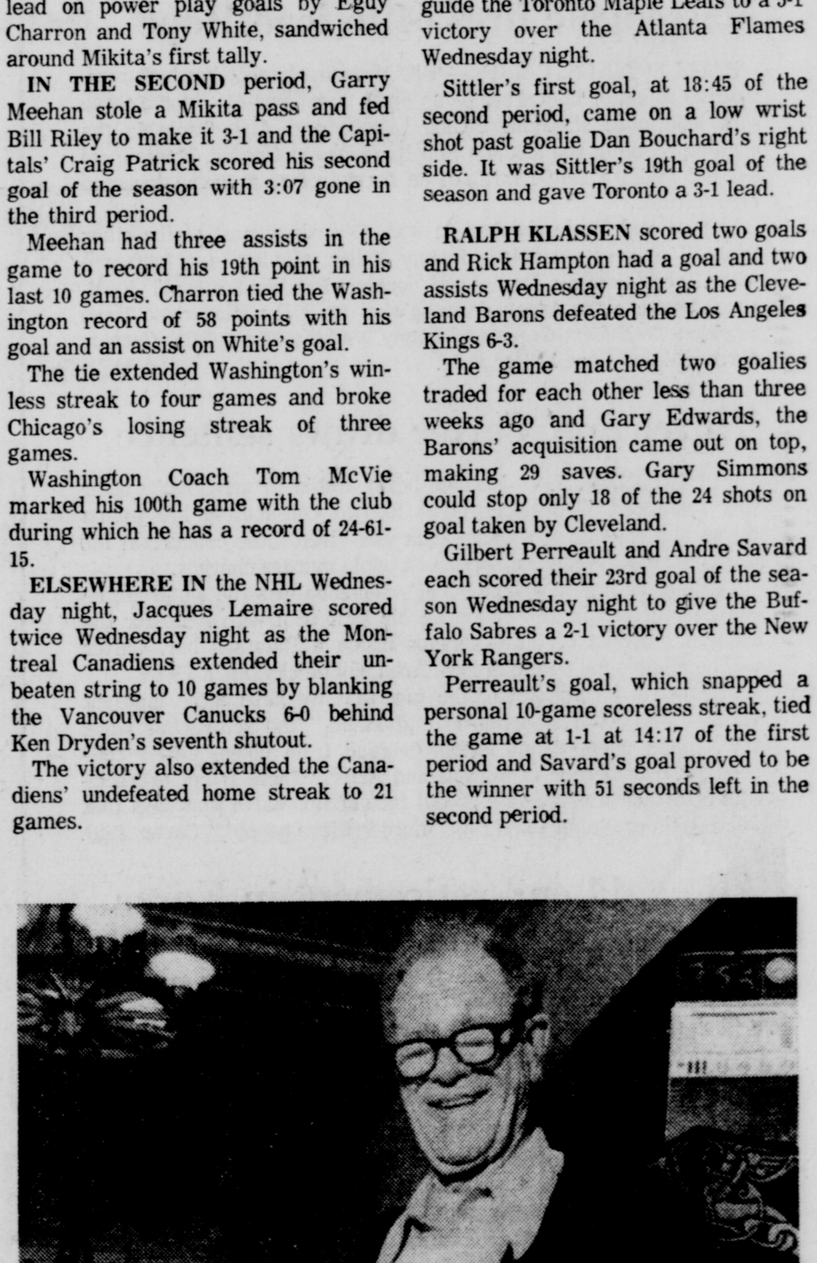
ONE NAME might not qualify for the unsung heroes, but Veeck found a reason to include him. Outfielder Al Smith of the 1959 Chicago White Sox, the last Chicago team to win a pennant.

Why did Smith merit consideration? Because in the World Series, while going back to the left field wall after a fly ball, he was drenched by a paper cup of beer which a bleacher fan knocked over.

Veeck had a lot of names. Pat Seerey, Zeke Bonura, Sammy Esposito, who rode the bench behind Nellie Fox, Chico Carrasquel and Luis Aparicio for seven years, Marv Rotblatt, Saul Rogovin, Williw Miranda, Jack Harshman, Les Moss, Red Wilson, Don Kolloway, and the White Sox' first bonus baby, Jim Baumer.

HIS MANAGER for the 'unsung heroes certainly will be Lew Fonseca, Veeck said. Foseca, now the batting coach for the Chicago Cubs, managed the Sox in 1932-33 and part of 1934.

Fonseca's 1932 team lost 102 games, a record which stood until 1970, when the Sox lost 106 games.



WHITE SOX owner Bill Veeck cuts cake at his 63rd birthday party in Comiskey Park. Veeck had a spinal operation last December and is now back at work getting ready for spring training.

Byline report

Keith Reinhard

Some observations at the opening of high school wrestling's second season:

First a salute to the Jim Lucanskys, Gil Darmofals, Curt Rathjes, Bob Harts and Tim Foleys of the area.

These youngsters and others like them have paid their dues. They've put in their hours and hours of workouts and drills in sweaty wrestling rooms, dreaming about this time of the season.

Injuries have cut short their aspirations though and the pain of being unable to participate is probably the biggest hurt of all. Foley of Buffalo Grove is a classic example. As a sophomore he was hurt in the district meet. As a junior his season was cut short at the sectional level. And this year, as a senior, he reinjured his shoulder in the MSL conference meet.

Last year the injury came in the sectional finals at Barrington, a step away from an opportunity to go downstate. Foley was dropped back into the wrestlebacks (a situation that is not always required) where he proved ineffective against a challenger he had already decisioned earlier in the year.

THAT BRINGS UP a second point. Are wrestlebacks necessary at all? The question of a second chance in the district, sectional and state final mat competition is one that has been debated since its inception.

In Foley's case, the absence of a wrestleback bracket would have guaranteed him a ticket to Champaign regardless of the outcome of the title match. Wrestlebacks, of course, are time consuming too and in the case of a weak field, can tend to drag a meet out beyond the point of interest.

And there are some coaches like Addison Trail's veteran Tony Parks who feel they actually detract from the tournaments. "In other state tournaments you get no second chance. Why in wrestling?" he asks.

Parks is also a very vocal advocate of a team concept in wrestling. On this point, too, coaches are pretty well polarized. Rick Gerz of Schaumburg, for example, stands firmly behind the present emphasis on individualism.

ON PARKS BEHALF, the matter of taking two outstanding wrestlers down to Champaign and bringing home a state team trophy can be a rather dubious distinction.

Meanwhile, there are mat teams like East Leyden and DeKalb which are powerhouses every year. They have to view the state team championship as a misnomer.

And many naturally would argue that the current advancement setup detracts from the team ethic which is otherwise so amply stressed at the prep level.

Gerz speaks well, however, on behalf of individualism. "Granted, there is a team concept to wrestling, but when these kids go out on the mat it's strictly one-on-one. Teamwork isn't a factor as it is in, say basketball, or football or even cross country to a degree."

"Besides," the Saxon pilot adds, "I don't think enough emphasis is placed on being an individual at the high school level. And while it's important to learn to work with others, it's possibly even more important to learn how to be self reliant."

No matter what the coaches think, there is reason to believe that the current state wrestling tournament system will be revamped within the next year or two.

WHILE WHEELING was winning the MSL conference championship last week, Ken Kent was becoming the first grappler in a couple years to earn a second straight title. Before him, 13 other wrestlers turned that nifty trick, including a trio of standouts who gained three straight circuit thrones. Who are they?

Those other double winners before Kent were Hersey's Brad Smith, Ted DeLuca and Pat Teefey in '71 and '72; Craig Mann of Elk Grove and Huskie Kevin Pancratz in '72 and '73; Conant's John Beck, Wildcat Ken Smith and Jeff Reinhard of Hersey in '73 and '74; and Grenadiers Rick Morris and Leo Montemayor in '74 and '75.

Schaumburg's Gary Evans grabbed titles in '72, '73 and '74 and Forest View's John Gross and Saxon Terry Ruddy equaled the feat in '73, '74 and '75.

ON A FINAL NOTE, we have Bob Schulze, the coach at Wheeling, with just a little time to gloat over his team's new crown before sending those charges into an awesome district gathering at Buffalo Grove.

"This has just been a real class group of kids," Schulze pointed out. "There's a lot of talent there and we've had three team captains who are the glue that have made it all come together."

In citing seniors Mike Reif, Kent

'Unsung heroes' in Veeck's plans

There will be no Hall of Fame game this year for Bill Veeck, nor an Old Timers game, either.

The head man of the White Sox celebrated his 63rd birthday Wednesday with an announcement that the club this year will honor "the unsung heroes" of baseball on July 17.

LIKE HOWIE Judson, who in 1949 set a club record by losing 14 straight games.

And Paul LaPalme, who once was instructed by Manager Al Lopez to "throw it in the dirt or in the grandstand, or just hold it, just don't let him hit it." LaPalme threw the ball anyway and it was a home run pitch, costing the Sox a victory seconds before the curfew.

Or Floyd Baker, who hit one home run in 13 years with the White Sox, and Bob Kennedy, now the general manager-base operations of the Chicago Cubs, who was with the White Sox three times as a player.

ONE NAME might not qualify for the unsung heroes, but Veeck found a reason to include him. Outfielder Al Smith of the 1959 Chicago White Sox, the last Chicago team to win a pennant.

Why did Smith merit consideration? Because in the World Series, while going back to the left field wall after a fly ball, he was drenched by a paper cup of beer which a bleacher fan knocked over.

Veeck had a lot of names. Pat Seerey, Zeke Bonura, Sammy Esposito, who rode the bench behind Nellie Fox, Chico Carrasquel and Luis Aparicio for seven years, Marv Rotblatt, Saul Rogovin, Williw Miranda, Jack Harshman, Les Moss, Red Wilson, Don Kolloway, and the White Sox' first bonus baby, Jim Baumer.

HIS MANAGER for the 'unsung heroes certainly will be Lew Fonseca, Veeck said. Foseca, now the batting coach for the Chicago Cubs, managed the Sox in 1932-33 and part of 1934.

Fonseca's 1932 team lost 102 games, a record which stood until 1970, when the Sox lost 106 games.

South Carolina's McGuire wins 500th

South Carolina scored the game's first nine points on the way to an easy 85-66 victory over the Citadel, giving coach Frank McGuire his 500th collegiate basketball win. McGuire is closing in on DePaul's Ray Meyer whose 529 wins represents the top mark by an active coach. Meyer was unable to pad his margin as DePaul dropped an 84-73 decision to ranked Providence, despite formery Hersey star Dave Corzine's 16 points.

Rick Wilson and Darrell Griffith scored 18 points apiece to lead third-ranked Louisville to their 15th straight win, a 103-82 decision over Southwestern Louisiana. North Carolina St. whipped Davidson 67-55 despite Wildcat guard John Gerdy's 37-point performance. Northern Illinois, backed by a 30-point explosion by senior forward Matt Hicks, moved into second place in the Mid-American Conference race with a 68-60 victory over defending champion Western Michigan.

Seventh-ranked Marquette scored 10 straight points early in the second half, including four each by Bo Ellis and Butch Lee, and went on to take an easy 81-71 win over the Loyola Ramblers.

Massengale fires 64 to lead Hope

PALM SPRINGS, CALIF. — Rik Massengale shot the best competitive round of his career — an eight under par 64 — for a three shot lead over streaking Bruce Lietzke and Alan Tapie in the opening round of the $200,000 Bob Hope Desert Classic. Massengale did not make a single mistake on a card of 32-32 which included eight birdies.

Lietzke and Tapie checked in with 67's while most of the other "name" players struggled. Johnny Miller, playing in a foursome with Hope, Sammy Davis and former President Gerald Ford, opened with a 74. Arnold Palmer shot 73, Gary Player 70, Dave Stockton 72, Hubert Green and Lanny Watkins 69 and Billy Casper, Dave Hill and Gene Littler at 71.

'Hurricane' Carter draws sentence

PATERSON, N. J. — Former boxer Rubin "Hurricane" Carter was sentenced Wednesday night to two consecutive life prison terms and co-defendant John Artis was given three concurrent life terms for their second conviction on triple murder charges.

The former middleweight boxer's sentence was the same as the one he received in 1967 following his first trial with Artis for the shotgun murders of three persons inside a Paterson bar. Carter will be eligible for parole in 1995. Artis will be eligible in 1981.

"I have to be mindful of the fact that we have three innocent victims who were slaughtered and killed," the sentencing judge said. In an unemotional statement read from notes, Carter reiterated the innocence of himself and Artis. "There is not one scintilla of evidence or anyone on the face of this earth that says that John Artis or Rubin Carter did murder these people," Carter said.

Ali could end retirement in Korea

NEW YORK — Negotiations were underway Wednesday for Muhammad Ali to defend his heavyweight title in Seoul, Korea, early in May. The fight would mark Ali's first defense of his championship on foreign soil since his 14th round knockout of Joe Frazier on Oct. 1, 1975, in Manila. Ali originally regained his crown with an eighth round kayo of George Foreman in Zaire the previous October.

Sports promoter Paul Corvino said he and Don King are coproducing the bout under the sponsorship of Han Kook, owner of the Korean Times. Ali reportedly was handed a list of five names and asked to pick his opponent. At least two of the fighters are said to be foreigners. A co-featured title bout is being lined up in which the lightweight champion would defend his title, possibly against a Korean opponent.

Stalemate continues in NFL talks

The NFL players and owners conducted morning and afternoon bargaining sessions Wednesday, still striving for a breakthrough on their three-year labor deadlock.

Spokesmen for both sides were noncommittal after an hour-and-a-half morning meeting behind closed doors. Ed Garvey, executive director of the NFL Players Association, had a terse "no progress" report on a similar secret session Tuesday.

On the other side, Terry Bledsoe, spokesman for the NFL Management Council, commented: "I don't think we're at the point where we can be disappointed or discouraged yet."

Rockets continue Bulls' road woes

From Herald Wire Services

Calvin Murphy's 25-foot jump shot lifted the Houston Rockets into the lead with two minutes to play and the Rockets, behind Murphy's 28 points, edged to within one half game of division leading Washington Wednesday with a 108-103 victory over the Bulls.

Chicago's Wilbur Holland was fouled on a tip-in and made the three-point play to put the Bulls in front for the eighth time in the fourth quarter at 99-98. Murphy's long jump shot returned the lead to the Rockets.

But in the final seconds, as Chicago tried to overcome a one-point deficit, Norm Van Lier tripped on the court and threw the ball out of bounds. Houston then added two free throws each by Mike Newlin and Ed Ratleff to secure the victory, their 23rd in 28 home games.

Holland led Chicago's scoring with 26 points and center Artis Gilmore added 23.

Newland and center Kevin Kunnert each tossed in 14 points for the Rockets.

IN OTHER ACTION around the NBA Wednesday night, Bubbles Hawkins, who scored almost half of the Nets' total, finished with 44 points in leading New York to a 93-89 overtime victory over the New Orleans Jazz.

Dave Robisch hit a layup with two seconds left to play as the Indiana Pacers rallied from a 21-point deficit for a 110-109 victory over the New York Knicks.

Lloyd Free scored 22 points and Julius Erving added 21 despite a viral infection to lead the Philadelphia 76ers to a 107-104 victory over the Milwaukee Bucks.

KAREEM ABDUL-JABBAR scored 30 points and Lucius Allen added 24 as the Los Angeles Lakers ended a three games losing streak with a 105-90 victory over the Buffalo Braves.

Larry Kenon scored 12 of his 29 points to spark a fourth period rally that enabled the San Antonio Spurs to beat the Detroit Pistons 135-129.

Racquetball entry deadline nears

Racquetball players have until Feb. 28 to register for the second annual Paddock Publications Racquetball Tournament of Champions. The tourney, which will conclude with the finals at Beuhler YMCA in Palatine April 16-17, begins at the preliminary competition level in March.

The preliminary rounds will be played at eight northwest suburban area clubs, and each club will conduct its own tourney in March to name its champion. A contestant may represent just one club and can play in just one division. Every player must be a member of the club at which he is competing.

The clubs involved in the tourney are: Arlington Indoor Tennis, Palatine; The Court House, Arlington Heights; Woodfield Racquet Club, Schaumburg; Buehler YMCA; The Court House, Schaumburg; Oakwood Racquet Club, Waukegan, Poplar Creek, Hoffman Estates; and Right Tennis Club, Schaumburg.

Men's play is divided into Men's A, B and C competition, depending on experience, and into senior, master and age divisions, depending on age. There are also Women's A, B and C levels, and girls are free to join the junior-level competition.

The tournament is open to amateurs only, and the finals will be conducted according to NRC rules. Eighteen trophies, two for each division, will be awarded following the finals.

There is a $1 entry fee for all contestants, which includes the court costs during the finals. Players must pay for their own court time during the preliminary tournaments. There are no additional charges for finalists in any of the divisions.

For further information and for registration instructions, contact the tourney manager at 394-2300.

and Ray Auger as the spiritual leaders of this championship crew, Schulze pointed out that the makings have been at Wheeling in other years too. "Wrestling's a fickle sport. In the past seven years our freshman teams have always been excellent. Under first coach (Dennis) Riccio, then (Bruce) Lavin and now (John) Wendell, we've lost only one dual meet during that time. But there have been injuries, moves, charging school borders, kids getting jobs. . ."

"A lot of kids just don't want to work . . . pay the price," Schulze continued. "This group has been special though. There's been more unity among them and more dedication."

THE WHEELING COACH pointed out that this is the first time he's let the kids pick captains and he explained how Reif, Kent and Auger took it on their own to call a team meeting midway through the season when they felt spirit might be flagging.

"It was before the Palatine meet and it turned out to be an important move. Palatine was underestimated this year and we could easily have met them in that frame of mind . . . and possibly lost."

It didn't turn out that way though. And now it's on to another season.

Baseball clinic runs Feb. 11-12

Bob Kennedy, Chicago Cubs general manager, and Billy Pierce, former White Sox pitching ace, will be among those speaking at the 16th Annual Illinois High School Baseball Coaches Assn. Clinic Feb. 11-12.

Friday's smoker and stag social will be held at the Ramada Inn in Hinsdale starting at 8:30 p.m. The all-day clinic Saturday, beginning at 8 a.m., will be held at Hinsdale South High School in Darien.

Kennedy, in addition to being present at the smoker Friday, will discuss "Contemporary Baseball" Saturday. Pierce will discuss "Major Problems with the Young Pitcher." Also on the program Saturday are Ken Schreiber of LaPorte (Ind.) High School, George McKinnon of Northwestern University, Duffy Bass of Illinois State University and Tom Decin of Lewis University.

Registration fee for the clinic is $14 at the door. For further information call Hinsdale South High School at (312) 887-1730.

Diving action opens league swimming test

The home board advantage is expected to be a key factor in determining the new Mid-Suburban League diving champion as varsity league finals get under way at 8:30 p.m. tonight at Olympic Pool, 660 N. Ridge Ave., Arlington Heights.

Arlington's Scott McCratic, Buffalo Grove's Alan Cymbal and Prospect's John Kreischer are all contenders for the title. But McCratic, who has posted the best 11-dive score of the three this season, will be diving on his home boards and that should give him an extra edge.

Cymbal finsihed second in the conference last season, just ahead of McCratic in third. Last season's conference finals, however, were at Buffalo Grove, on Cymbal's home boards.

In head-to-head competition this year, Cymbal beat McCratic at Buffalo Grove, but diving coaches generally don't put much emphasis on six-dive regular season results, preferring instead results from 11-dive championship competition.

Big Ten takes new look at problem of 'Big Two'

Loren Tate

CHAMPAIGN, Ill.—Recognition of a problem is the first major step toward a solution.

After years of frowning on newsmen who referred to the "Big Two and the Little Eight," athletic directors of the Big Ten Conference convened last week for the specific purpose of jawing on the subject of Big Ten football imbalance. Ohio State (six) and Michigan (three) have made nine straight Rose Bowl appearances.

No action was taken but ideas from the meeting could take official form in March.

"IT WAS PRIMARILY a brainstorming affair," said UI director Cecil Coleman, "and both Ohio State and Michigan were very positive in trying to help.

We first tried to establish the reasons why the Big Ten fell behind in the late '50s and '60s, because of the 'need' scholarship and rules more restrictive than NCAA standards."

Many of these were gradually equalized, but the Big Ten was notoriously slow in dealing with the 5-year eligibility rule, bowl policies, junior college transfers and academic standards, and is still trailing in such areas as $15 per month for incidentals, athletic dorms and year-around training table.

"We asked the conference office to pinpoint each area where our rules are different from the NCAA. We want to study the entire package," said Coleman.

THE PRESSURE of the growing imbalance heightened in 1976 when both OSU and Michigan attended major bowl games for the second straight year and two respected coaches bit the dust at Illinois (Bob Blackman) and Purdue (Alex Agase). Both coaches had discussed the difficulty of enticing top prospects from OSU, Michigan and Notre Dame in the Midwest recruiting wars.

"We are running surveys which we hope will tell us why student-athletes make the decisions they do," said Coleman. "And we are getting feedback from current athletes as to how they perceive the situation.

"These surveys will help us to determine whether it would be advisable to move up the tender date or make other changes."

AND THERE was also another approach: if you can't beat 'em, avoid 'em. Alternate dates are being studied so that games on the final Saturday aren't conducted directly opposite the OSU-Michigan and UCLA-Southern Cal TV doubleheader.

"We discussed Friday night, Sunday and even Thanksgiving," said Coleman, fearful of another poor draw at Northwestern next season.

"We even prought up the idea of moving the game ahead of the entire schedule, but that won't work at Northwestern this year because their student calendar begins much later than ours. Northwestern is moving its opener with Iowa to Iowa City because its students won't be on campus yet. The students aren't on campus at Thanksgiving either, and a night game that late in the season could be a disaster. It is not an easy problem."

IT REMAINS TO be seen whether there are solutions to the multiple problems created by the suffocating football dominance of the Buckeyes and Wolverines.

But an important step has been taken. The league's leaders aren't sticking their heads in the sand as they did for so many years.

Coleman, in particular, has no choice but to face up to the facts. With no student fees to draw from, he is completing this month a 20-year, $2 million loan for a 3-year renovation of Memorial Stadium and the locker room area, requiring payments of $100,000 plus interest per year.

The ability to repay the debt is geared to a higher degree of football success than Illinois has known in the past 10 years. Illinois, for one, must find a way to crack the OSU-Michigan syndrome, or at least become reasonably competitive.

Academy hosts gym headliner

The American Academy of Gymnastics, 1527 Ellinwood, Des Plaines, will be hosting the U.S.G.F. Girls State Qualification Meet, Class I and the Elite Regional Qualification Meet on Sunday, Feb. 13.

Rated judges will be used and the meet will be sanctioned. Compulsory competition will start at ten o'clock followed by optionals. Representing the American Academy at the Elite Qualification Meet will be Christa Canary, a national champion. If she qualifies she goes on to the Second National Elite Qualification Meet in Stillwater, Okla.

If you have any questions, call the meet director, Leonard Issacs at 827-6843. Guests are welcome. A donation of $1.00 will be collected at the door.

Track teams begin to show talent

by ART MUGALIAN
Track and Field Editor

Fremd and Rolling Meadows will be loaded for bear when they get underway in indoor track, but until then the other Mid-Suburban teams can get in a few licks.

The Vikings and Mustangs are second and third behind champion Forest View in the MSL conference meet last May. Fremd's first indoor meet was cancelled two weeks ago and Rolling Meadows doesn't open until Saturday.

"I THINK FREMD has more depth but Meadows will take more firsts with (Rick) Sutton and those guys," said Hoffman coach Jim Swift, whose team has opened the season with losses to Maine East and York. "And I don't think we can forget about Forest View."

But Swift is more concerned about his own squad and its chances of improving on last year's fifth-place tie with Schaumburg in the league outdoor meet.

"We're starting to show a little improvement," said Swift, after his Hawks captured six first places against York.

Junior Ron Sturm won two events — the long jump (18-3½) and the triple jump (38-11) while Hoffman shotputter Joe Bartow won for the second meet in a row with a 47-6 effort. Low hurdler Bob Kearley, two-miler Tim Jorgenson, and pole vaulter Paul Major also won. Major vaulted 12-6 against York.

"MAJOR CAN probably go over 14 feet," said Swift. "I don't know how far over 14, but I think he has a shot at (Dave) Paape's record."

Major, whose best last year was 13-6, would need to make 14-5 to shatter the Hawk indoor mark.

Meanwhile, Schaumburg's Mike Christy demonstrated his versatility by winning the shot put (45-0) and finishing second in the long jump (20-8) in a meet at Maine West won by the host Warriors.

The 6-2, 190-pound Christy will concentrate on the field events and relays until the Saxons move outdoors when he can shift emphasis to the 220. Christy qualified for the state meet in that event last year.

In the Schaumburg-Maine West meet, Warrior soph Simon Schum clocked a 5.5 in the 50-yard dash.

PALATINE'S OUTSTANDING junior distance runner Tom Johnson is starting the indoor season healthy — something new for the tall Pirate. Johnson ran his second straight sub-9:50 two-mile against Bloom Saturday, beating teammate Chuck Elliott. Johnson's time was 9:45 and Elliott, another junior, ran 9:51.1.

Palatine lost to powerful Bloom but the Pirates got strong efforts from miler Tony Vargas (4:41) and the 880-relay team (1:40.6) of Dave Pancano, Gary Rieder, Mike Fenlon and Rick Gonzales.

"It's going to be a long season," said Palatine coach Jeff Teach, whose 1976 squad was fourth in the MSL. "We're going to take a little longer to come around, but we'll be okay.

The Pirates' top sprinter, Dave Kennedy, will miss much of the indoor season because of basketball, but Teach is grooming his sizzling sophomore for the 220 outdoors.

Elk Grove signup

A special registration and pancake day combination for Elk Grove Village Boys Baseball will be held Saturday, Feb. 12 at the VFW Hall, 400 E. Devon.

The activities will be held from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m., and tickets are $1.50 for adults (12 and over) and 75 cents for children.

Registration in the summer program is for boys and girls 8 to 15 years old.

Questions to ask your banker about your savings account

DONALD F. MORTON PRES.

Some persons who read these columns have expressed incredulity at a statement that there can be as much as 171% difference in the amount actually paid in interest by financial institutions advertising the same interest rate.

This was the discovery of a Kansas State University research study after applying to a hypothetical savings account 40 variables used by institutions in computing interest. The best combination of variables on the same advertised interest rate yielded $79.13 to savers, the worst only $29.25.

We invite the disbelievers to ask their bank or savings and loan these questions concerning their regular passbook accounts:

1) What is the minimal balance required to maintain the stated interest?
2) How often is the interest compounded and how often credited to the account?
3) What method is used to compute interest — Last-in-first-out or first-in-first-out, the average daily balance or the smallest balance for the quarter, 1 360- or 365-day year?
4) Do you allow "grace" days — savings in by the 10th of the month earning from the 1st — and "dead" days at the end of a for the quarter, a 360 or 365 day year?
5) What is the true annual percentage rate paid to the saver?
6) Is there any limitation on the number of withdrawals that can be made without penalty in a given period of time?
7) Are there any penalties for inactive accounts?
8) Do you have penalties for "premature" closing of accounts?
9) Is a minimal balance required to obtain free auxiliary services?

Some of these questions may be asked about certificates of deposit. Others can also be illuminating:

1) Do you mail quarterly interest checks to savers if requested?
2) Do you notify savers when the certificate of deposit has matured?
3) If you don't hear from them, do you automatically renew on the same terms? Convert to a passbook account?

This may be the Age of the Consumer, but the consumer still has much to learn about getting his money's worth from his savings account. He could benefit from his wife's experience in comparison-shopping at the supermarkets.

Home insulation really does save fuel

by JOE FRANZ

Bundling up a house for the winter probably is the homeowner's best defense against frigid temperatures and rising fuel costs.

And experts say that the installation of adequate insulation in a home is one of the most important steps a homeowner can take to conserve energy and put an end to soaring heating bills.

There are other measures that conserve energy like dialing down thermostats, putting up storm windows and doors, caulking windows and installing weather stripping around doors and windows, but the importance of proper insulation cannot be over emphasized, they say.

GEORGE RIDDIFORD, owner of Ridico Insulation, Elk Grove Village, said studies show that only one home in 10 is properly insulated.

David Maxfield, manager of the firm, estimates that adding proper insulation to a home will decrease heat loss by 20 to 50 per cent. It also will help keep a home cooler in summer.

"There's no doubt that a home with proper insulation will use a lot less energy than one with inadequate insulation," he said. "It's definitely a year-round product. How well it works depends on what is done and how well it's done."

Maxfield said that except for doors and windows, most heat escapes from attics that either are poorly insulated or have no insulation. Installing attic insulation, he said, accounts, for about 90 per cent of his firm's work, with the remainder consisting of the installation of floor and ceiling insulation.

"I would say that attic insulation is the most important thing," he said. "Only a small percentage of the heat lost in a home escapes through the walls."

EDWARD TULLEY, who works as a consultant for Ridico, said inadequate insulation, particularly in attics, is much more common in older homes.

"It's surprising how many houses that are 10 years or older have inadequate insulation," he said. "This business was formed to fill the demand for insulation in existing homes."

Richard Discher, manager of the building materials department at the Sears, Roebuck and Co. store at Woodfield Shopping Center, said that while proper ceiling and attic insulation is critical to stopping heat loss, wall insulation also is important.

"Wall insulation has been neglected," he said. "Ceiling insulation is important, but it's not the only thing."

MAXFIELD SAID AN attic should have about 10 inches of insulation over its entire area. Many attics, he said, have some insulation, but in most cases it is short of the proper thickness.

He estimates that it costs $225 to $250 to add six inches of attic insulation to a 1,300-to 1,500-square-foot home. Instalation of 10 inches of insulation to a bare attic in the same size home, he said, would cost about $300.

"At current fuel prices, the cost of the insulation is paid for in one year," Maxfield said.

Tulley said that besides helping to cut fuel costs, proper insulation will reduce drafts and make the home more comfortable.

"The price of the insulation isn't even that much when you consider the difference in comfort and the fact that the furnace won't have to kick on quite as often," he said.

MAXFIELD SAID there are three types of insulation used in attics. They are Fiberglass, mineral fiber and cellulose. Foam insulation, a fourth type, is only used for walls.

He said his firm deals exclusively with Fiberglass and mineral fiber insulation.

"I would say that in 75 per cent of the cases we use Fiberglass and in the rest mineral fiber," Maxfield said.

The insulation market is competitive and homeowners should consult a dealer to determine the type of insulation that would be best suited for their home.

Insulation is available in either batts (rolls) or it can be blown between the joists with a machine.

MAXFIELD SAID HAVING the insulation blown in is the better method because that way it is contoured to the available space.

"It's definitely much, much better to have it blown in because with batts there always are a few spots that will not be covered that will allow heat to escape," he said.

Maxfield said it takes about an hour for his firm to insulate the attic of a 1,500 square foot home.

"It's not a messy job and can be done fairly quickly," he said.

Tulley and Maxfield do not recommend homeowners attempt to do the job themselves.

"There are a lot of people who wouldn't do it right and that defeats the whole purpose," Maxfield said. "It also will take them a lot longer and in many cases end up costing them more than if they let a pro do it."

Ridico's business in the last three years, according to Maxfield, has doubled. Discher said insulation sales at Sears have tripled in the last year.

"THE MAJORITY OF people who call us say they want the insulation put in because their heating bills have gone up so fast," Maxfield said. "That's the first thing they say."

Tulley said despite the high demand and occasional shortages of insulation, his company can have a job done from four to seven days after a homeowner calls.

"Insulation is available, but it's not always readily available," he said. "There are spot shortages."

58% more building permits issued

The number of building permits issued in the Chicago area in 1976 was 58 per cent higher than in 1975, according to a survey by Bell Federal Savings and Loan Assn., Chicago.

The survey shows that there were 37,207 building permits issued in 1976 compared to 23,564 in 1975.

In 1976 there were 24,631 permits issued for single-family homes, a 65 per cent increase over the 14,938 issued in 1975. Permits issued for multi-family homes in 1976 numbered 12,576, a 46 per cent increase over the 8,626 the previous year.

BUILDING PERMITS issued for all housing in December 1976 totaled 2,006 compared to 1,726 for the same month the previous year, a 16 per cent increase.

Single-family units in December of last year numbered 1,250, a 22 per cent increase over the 1,025 issued during the same month the previous year. The number of multi-family permits issued jumped from 701 to 756, an 8 per cent increase.

Schaumburg, which issued 1,525 building permits in 1976, was the leading municipality in the Chicago area. Wheeling issued 730 building permits last year and ranked seventh.

In Schaumburg, permits for 1,205 single-family home and 320 multi-family units were issued in 1976. Wheeling issued 180 permits for single-family homes and 550 for multiple-family units last year.

Other municipalities that ranked in the top 10 for the issuance of building permits in 1976 were: Westmont, with 1,010; Orland Park and Naperville, both with 971; Roselle, with 782; Vernon Hills, with 776; Bolingbrook, with 704; Wheaton, with 691; and Joliet, with 677.

Elk Grove Village ranked fifth in the Chicago area in single-family construction in December 1976, having issued 32 building permits.

The number of single-family building permits issued in other Northwest suburban communities last month were: Arlington Heights, 5; Buffalo Grove 0; Des Plaines, 9; Hoffman Estates, 22; Mount Prospect, 3; Palatine, 14; Rolling Meadows, 12; Schaumburg, 20; and Wheeling, 0.

New building law planned to reduce loss of energy

A model energy conservation building code that could save substantial amounts of energy and money if adopted by each state, is being prepared in a cooperative program by the Energy Research and Development Administration and the major national building code organizations.

The new code is designed so it can be incorporated into existing state and local codes for all new buildings. It sets minimum energy-efficiency requirements for new building design and construction, heating, ventilating and air-conditioning systems, electrical systems, lighting and water heating.

A preliminary version of the code has been completed and comments on it will be sought from state and local officials, as well as other experts in the building industry. A final code, incorporating the comments, will be completed this spring.

A RECENT STUDY for the federal government concluded that the technical standards upon which the code is based could cut yearly energy use in new buildings by nearly 27 per cent without increasing construction costs, if adopted by all states and localities. The study concluded that the standards could reduce energy consumption by more than 11 per cent in new single-family residences, nearly 60 per cent in office buildings, nearly 43 per cent in low-rise apartments, 40 per cent in retail stores, and 48 per cent in school buildings.

In the ERDA-supported program, the major building code organizations were brought together for the first time to develop a model code that could be applied uniformly to all new buildings.

These organizations are the National Conference of States on Building Codes and Standards Inc., the International Conference of Building Officials, the Southern Building Code Congress International Inc., and the Building Officials and Code Administrators International Inc.

In addition to developing the model code, the project team will be reviewing current systems for updating codes and will recommend new methods for promoting the prompt acceptance of energy-saving construction innovations. The project team also is working with the National Academy of Code Administration to develop an energy conservation education program, including training courses, for building code officials.

"SUCH A UNIFORMLY applied energy conservation code would not only save homeowners and businesses money on fuel costs, but also could be used by the states to comply with the Energy Policy and Conservation Act," said Dr. Maxine Savitz, director of ERDA's Division of Buildings and Community Systems. Under that 1975 law, states must adopt energy-saving building codes as part of their energy conservation plan in order to qualify for federal support funds.

Under a separate law, the Energy Conservation and Production Act of 1976, the U.S. Dept. of Housing and Urban Development is responsible for developing, promulgating and enforcing energy performance standards for all new construction. ERDA's research supports the development of these performance standards. The model code is one important part of this research.

The model code was developed using technical standards recently adopted by the American Society of Heating, Refrigerating and Air-Conditioning Engineers to reduce energy use in new buildings.

"Without changing the technical standards, the new code puts them into a form that is both compatible with current building codes and in the language that is customarily used in these codes," Savitz said.

To obtain copies of the preliminary code or for further information, contact The National Conference of States on Building Codes and Standards Inc., 1970 Chain Bridge Rd., McClean, Va., 22101, or call 703-790-5750.

Finance giants out to plow farms

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI) — The Illinois agricultural community does not seem particularly worried about the entry of some of the nation's financial giants into the farm land market.

Although some farm organizations have expressed concern about a national farm land investment plan announced late last year, other farm interests see little threat.

The plan, proposed by Continental Bank of Chicago and Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner and Smith Inc., is believed to be the first of its kind. It will involve up to $50 million and 100,000 acres in 22 states, including Illinois.

UNDER THE PLAN, the fund would purchase farms of various sizes and lease them to operators. The fund's income would come from lease payments and crop earnings, according to a Continental Bank spokesman.

Merrill Lynch will act as distributor, selling shares to trustees of corporate pension and profit sharing funds, while Continental would serve as trustee.

The idea is contingent upon Internal Revenue Service rulings regarding employe benefits.

"FARMLAND HAS PROVEN to be one of the best hedges of inflation," said Terry Thompson, vice president of Continental's trust investment division.

According to the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture, the value of farmland in the five major corn belt states rose an average of 33 per cent last year, including a record breaking 41 per cent in Illinois.

Continental spokesmen said the fund will enable men to be in farming who otherwise would not be able to afford to enter the business. But Illinois Farm Bureau Pres. Harold Steele said that statement is just a "smoke screen" and predicted Illinois farmers will not like the plan.

"This corporate venture would create an outside influence that would likely drive land price up at an even more rapid pace," Steele said.

But several bankers now involved with farm management throughout the state said they feel the plan will have very little impact on the farm community.

Home insulation really does save fuel

by JOE FRANZ

Bundling up a house for the winter probably is the homeowner's best defense against frigid temperatures and rising fuel costs.

And experts say that the installation of adequate insulation in a home is one of the most important steps a homeowner can take to conserve energy and put an end to soaring heating bills.

There are other measures that conserve energy like dialing down thermostats, putting up storm windows and doors, caulking windows and installing weather stripping around doors and windows, but the importance of proper insulation cannot be over emphasized, they say.

GEORGE RIDDIFORD, owner of Ridico Insulation, Elk Grove Village, said studies show that only one home in 10 is properly insulated.

David Maxfield, manager of the firm, estimates that adding proper insulation to a home will decrease heat loss by 20 to 50 per cent. It also will help keep a home cooler in summer.

"There's no doubt that a home with proper insulation will use a lot less energy than one with inadequate insulation," he said. "It's definitely a year-round product. How well it works depends on what is done and how well it's done."

Maxfield said that except for doors and windows, most heat escapes from attics that either are poorly insulated or have no insulation. Installing attic insulation, he said, accounts, for about 90 per cent of his firm's work, with the remainder consisting of the installation of floor and ceiling insulation.

"I would say that attic insulation is the most important thing," he said. "Only a small percentage of the heat lost in a home escapes through the walls."

EDWARD TULLEY, who works as a consultant for Ridico, said inadequate insulation, particularly in attics, is much more common in older homes.

"It's surprising how many houses that are 10 years or older have inadequate insulation," he said. "This business was formed to fill the demand for insulation in existing homes."

Richard Discher, manager of the building materials department at the Sears, Roebuck and Co. store at Woodfield Shopping Center, said that while proper ceiling and attic insulation is critical to stopping heat loss, wall insulation also is important.

"Wall insulation has been neglected," he said. "Ceiling insulation is important, but it's not the only thing."

MAXFIELD SAID AN attic should have about 10 inches of insulation over its entire area. Many attics, he said, have some insulation, but in most cases it is short of the proper thickness.

He estimates that it costs $225 to $250 to add six inches of attic insulation to a 1,300-to 1,500-square-foot home. Instalation of 10 inches of insulation to a bare attic in the same size home, he said, would cost about $300.

"At current fuel prices, the cost of the insulation is paid for in one year," Maxfield said.

Tulley said that besides helping to cut fuel costs, proper insulation will reduce drafts and make the home more comfortable.

"The price of the insulation isn't even that much when you consider the difference in comfort and the fact that the furnace won't have to kick on quite as often," he said.

MAXFIELD SAID there are three types of insulation used in attics. They are Fiberglass, mineral fiber and cellulose. Foam insulation, a fourth type, is only used for walls.

He said his firm deals exclusively with Fiberglass and mineral fiber insulation.

"I would say that in 75 per cent of the cases we use Fiberglass and in the rest mineral fiber," Maxfield said.

The insulation market is competitive and homeowners should consult a dealer to determine the type of insulation that would be best suited for their home.

Insulation is available in either batts (rolls) or it can be blown between the joists with a machine.

MAXFIELD SAID HAVING the insulation blown in is the better method because that way it is contoured to the available space.

"It's definitely much, much better to have it blown in because with batts there always are a few spots that will not be covered that will allow heat to escape," he said.

Maxfield said it takes about an hour for his firm to insulate the attic of a 1,500 square foot home.

"It's not a messy job and can be done fairly quickly," he said.

Tulley and Maxfield do not recommend homeowners attempt to do the job themselves.

"There are a lot of people who wouldn't do it right and that defeats the whole purpose," Maxfield said. "It also will take them a lot longer and in many cases end up costing them more than if they let a pro do it."

Ridico's business in the last three years, according to Maxfield, has doubled. Discher said insulation sales at Sears have tripled in the last year.

"THE MAJORITY OF people who call us say they want the insulation put in because their heating bills have gone up so fast," Maxfield said. "That's the first thing they say."

Tulley said despite the high demand and occasional shortages of insulation, his company can have a job done from four to seven days after a homeowner calls.

"Insulation is available, but it's not always readily available," he said. "There are spot shortages."

The survey shows that there were 37,207 building permits issued in 1976 compared to 23,564 in 1975.

In 1976 there were 24,631 permits issued for single-family homes, a 65 per cent increase over the 14,938 issued in 1975. Permits issued for multi-family homes in 1976 numbered 12,576, a 46 per cent increase over the 8,626 the previous year.

BUILDING PERMITS issued for all housing in December 1976 totaled 2,006 compared to 1,726 for the same month the previous year, a 16 per cent increase.

Single-family units in December of last year numbered 1,250, a 22 per cent increase over the 1,025 issued during the same month the previous year. The number of multi-family permits issued jumped from 701 to 756, an 8 per cent increase.

Schaumburg, which issued 1,525 building permits in 1976, was the leading municipality in the Chicago area. Wheeling issued 730 building permits last year and ranked seventh.

In Schaumburg, permits for 1,205 single-family home and 320 multi-family units were issued in 1976. Wheeling issued 180 permits for single-family homes and 550 for multiple-family units last year.

Other municipalities that ranked in the top 10 for the issuance of building permits in 1976 were: Westmont, with 1,010; Orland Park and Naperville, both with 971; Roselle, with 782; Vernon Hills, with 776; Bolingbrook, with 704; Wheaton, with 691; and Joliet, with 677.

Elk Grove Village ranked fifth in the Chicago area in single-family construction in December 1976, having issued 32 building permits.

The number of single-family building permits issued in other Northwest suburban communities last month were: Arlington Heights, 5; Buffalo Grove 0; Des Plaines, 9; Hoffman Estates, 22; Mount Prospect, 3; Palatine, 14; Rolling Meadows, 12; Schaumburg, 20; and Wheeling, 0.

New building law planned to reduce loss of energy

A model energy conservation building code that could save substantial amounts of energy and money if adopted by each state, is being prepared in a cooperative program by the Energy Research and Development Administration and the major national building code organizations.

The new code is designed so it can be incorporated into existing state and local codes for all new buildings. It sets minimum energy-efficiency requirements for new building design and construction, heating, ventilating and air-conditioning systems, electrical systems, lighting and water heating.

A preliminary version of the code has been completed and comments on it will be sought from state and local officials, as well as other experts in the building industry. A final code, incorporating the comments, will be completed this spring.

A RECENT STUDY for the federal government concluded that the technical standards upon which the code is based could cut yearly energy use in new buildings by nearly 27 per cent without increasing construction costs, if adopted by all states and localities. The study concluded that the standards could reduce energy consumption by more than 11 per cent in new single-family residences, nearly 60 per cent in office buildings, nearly 43 per cent in low-rise apartments, 40 per cent in retail stores, and 48 per cent in school buildings.

In the ERDA-supported program, the major building code organizations were brought together for the first time to develop a model code that could be applied uniformly to all new buildings.

These organizations are the National Conference of States on Building Codes and Standards Inc., the International Conference of Building Officials, the Southern Building Code Congress International Inc., and the Building Officials and Code Administrators International Inc.

In addition to developing the model code, the project team will be reviewing current systems for updating codes and will recommend new methods for promoting the prompt acceptance of energy-saving construction innovations. The project team also is working with the National Academy of Code Administration to develop an energy conservation education program, including training courses, for building code officials.

"SUCH A UNIFORMLY applied energy conservation code would not only save homeowners and businesses money on fuel costs, but also could be used by the states to comply with the Energy Policy and Conservation Act," said Dr. Maxine Savitz, director of ERDA's Division of Buildings and Community Systems. Under that 1975 law, states must adopt energy-saving building codes as part of their energy conservation plan in order to qualify for federal support funds.

Under a separate law, the Energy Conservation and Production Act of 1976, the U.S. Dept. of Housing and Urban Development is responsible for developing, promulgating and enforcing energy performance standards for all new construction. ERDA's research supports the development of these performance standards. The model code is one important part of this research.

The model code was developed using technical standards recently adopted by the American Society of Heating, Refrigerating and Air-Conditioning Engineers to reduce energy use in new buildings.

"Without changing the technical standards, the new code puts them into a form that is both compatible with current building codes and in the language that is customarily used in these codes," Savitz said.

To obtain copies of the preliminary code or for further information, contact The National Conference of States on Building Codes and Standards Inc., 1970 Chain Bridge Rd., McClean, Va., 22101, or call 703-790-5750.

Finance giants out to plow farms

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI) — The Illinois agricultural community does not seem particularly worried about the entry of some of the nation's financial giants into the farm land market.

Although some farm organizations have expressed concern about a national farm land investment plan announced late last year, other farm interests see little threat.

The plan, proposed by Continental Bank of Chicago and Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner and Smith Inc., is believed to be the first of its kind. It will involve up to $50 million and 100,000 acres in 22 states, including Illinois.

UNDER THE PLAN, the fund would purchase farms of various sizes and lease them to operators. The fund's income would come from lease payments and crop earnings, according to a Continental Bank spokesman.

Merrill Lynch will act as distributor, selling shares to trustees of corporate pension and profit sharing funds, while Continental would serve as trustee.

The idea is contingent upon Internal Revenue Service rulings regarding employe benefits.

"FARMLAND HAS PROVEN to be one of the best hedges of inflation," said Terry Thompson, vice president of Continental's trust investment division.

According to the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture, the value of farmland in the five major corn belt states rose an average of 33 per cent last year, including a record breaking 41 per cent in Illinois.

Continental spokesmen said the fund will enable men to be in farming who otherwise would not be able to afford to enter the business. But Illinois Farm Bureau Pres. Harold Steele said that statement is just a "smoke screen" and predicted Illinois farmers will not like the plan.

"This corporate venture would create an outside influence that would likely drive land price up at an even more rapid pace," Steele said.

But several bankers now involved with farm management throughout the state said they feel the plan will have very little impact on the farm community.

'77 could be final year for construction bargains

This year may be the last call for bargain hunters in the construction industry, according to a Chicago area contractor.

"There are signs that by the end of 1977, the drought in construction may be on its way out, and with it will go the final opportunities to buy construction at bargain basement prices," said Richard S. Pepper, chairman of Pepper Construction Co., Chicago and Barrington.

He said many on-the-fence construction users are ready to make their move. They were afraid to do anything until they could get a reading on the Carter Administration, he said.

"THERE WERE fears that the new President would do less for business than his predecessor had," Pepper said. "But Carter's appointments to his cabinet did much to assuage those fears and convinced many businessmen that things wouldn't be as bad as they had feared."

He said some of his company contacts have indicated that they are anxious to start building now while conditions are favorable.

Pepper cited 10 reasons why this is a good time to move ahead with construction plans:

- Tmorrow's prices will undoubtedly be higher. By December 1977, inflation is expected to be at a 4 to 8 per cent annual rate, higher than today. Delay can add to building costs.
- Money is available at reasonable terms for good projects. A year from now, interest rates probably will have risen, and money could be less available.
- Productivity is at high levels. Contractors are using better management techniques, while construction workers, because of high unemployment, are working more efficiently.
- Materials are in good supply and at stable prices. There are no delivery delays. Shortages may develop toward the end of the year as business conditions improve.
- The labor supply is good. Rates for bricklayers, carpenters, cement masons, laborers, and operating engineers are determined by contract through May 31, 1979.
- Contractors are hungry for business and are willing to shave profit margins and deliver more service.
- Tax laws are still favorable for real estate investment and for commercial, industrial, and residential construction. The Carter administration is toying with possible additional incentives.
- Restrictions posed by no-growth advocates, environmental hamstrings, building codes, and zoning are likely to get worse.
- The capacity to build is sufficient today. "Many experts fear, however, that once the majority of businessmen are convinced that now is the time to build, there will be such a crush that contractors won't be able to keep up," Pepper said. This may mean delays in getting jobs started and completed, which will add to costs, he said.
- The Chicago area is still a good place to build.

"There's more diversification here than in any other major metropolitan area, a fact that keeps the city humming and moving when others are stagnating," he said.

The room to build and grow is still here, he said, "and we have the geographic location, transportation network, people, and business leadership that will keep our area in the lead."

Pepper said all of these factors, except the last one, may change for the worse during the year.

Once a business upturn is evident, construction buys won't be as favorable as they are today, he said.

'Dialing down can cut heating bills by 28%

Chicago homeowners can cut their heating bills an average of 28 per cent by following President Carter's recommendation to dial down thermostats from 72 to 65 degrees, according to a thermostat manufacturer.

"Residents of Los Angeles can save 61 per cent, Dallas 41 per cent, Washington, D.C. 35 per cent, New York City 34 per cent and Minneapolis 22 per cent," said Wayne E. Petersen, vice president and general manager of Honeywell's residential division.

He said dialing down to 55 degrees for eight hours at night, as President Carter suggested, could bring additional savings of 11 per cent in Chicago.

"THE DOLLAR amount of savings would vary from city to city, depending on the fuel used, its cost and the number of degree days per heating season, but there are significant savings in money as well as in barrels of oil and cubic feet of gas," Petersen said.

He said Honeywell has conducted an extensive study in order to dispel what he called "the myth of night setback.

"We hear every heating season about the myth — which is that you use more fuel in morning recovery than you have saved during the night," he said. Petersen said the Honeywell study used weather data for major United States cities over a period of 10 years, information supplied from instruments on an actual single-family dwelling occupied by a family of two adults and two children, and computer analysis of the data.

"We learned that night setback pays, and our finding has been supported by studies from the National Bureau of Standards, Purdue University, University of Illinois, Good Housekeeping Institute and Oak Ridge National Laboratory," Petersen said.

When the energy crunch first hit three years ago, Honeywell released figures for 25 cities that showed energy savings of from 5 to 16 per cent would be achieved by setting thermostats back at night from 75 degrees to 70. The same cities were studied for possible summer savings in air conditioning energy by setting thermostats up from 75 to 80, and savings of 8 to 20 per cent were projected.

He said that energy conservation, especially morning recovery after night setback, doesn't have to be uncomfortable or a nuisance to remember.

A clock-thermostat can be programmed to dial home temperatures down at precisely the same time each night and then dial up again in the morning so the house is warm and comfortable when the homeowner awakens.

Downtowns try to lure shoppers, merchants back

Central business districts in Chicago suburbs and nearby cities are rebuilding to lure retailers and shoppers back to downtown areas.

The current issue of the Illinois Business Review said planning or construction to upgrade deteriorating areas in 14 suburbs or nearby cities is under way.

The Review, published by the Bureau of Economic and Business Research of the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign, said some of the large scale projects include:

• Aurora — a cultural, civic and commercial center is being built on 100 downtown acres.

• Des Plaines — A $12 million office and enclosed mall complex is being constructed.

• St. Charles — With a private developer, St. Charles is planning a commercial-residential complex which will include a pedestrian mall bordered by shops and townhouses next to the Fox River.

• Chicago Heights — A new six-story building for the First National Bank of Chicago Heights was completed in a former skid row area.

• Joliet — A mall for Chicago street is being considered.

• La Grange — A two-block pedestrian shopping mall was completed this past summer at a cost of $900,000.

"Other suburbs planning or implementing major downtown renewal efforts include North Chicago, Elgin, Oak Park, Arlington Heights, West Chicago, Waukegan, Naperville and East Dundee," the Review said.

'Turning pro' changes tax status

"Turning pro" is the phrase normally used when an amateur athlete decides to stop competing for gold-plated statuettes and goes where the money is.

The transition can be just as jarring for the homeowner who goes the same route.

Dear Mr. Campbell: I have leased my home out as income rental property for the first time this year. Are there any pamphlets or instructions (possibly from the IRS) telling me what items are tax deductible — i.e., taxes, interest on loan, or depreciation on house and furnishings. Mr. C. M. (Long Beach, Calif.)

A. AS SOON as you move from the status of homeowner to landlord the tax situation does change. Essentially, it is a mere extension of the tax breaks that you formerly enjoyed as owner/occupant.

One of the big advantages of home ownership has always been the fact that mortgage interest and real estate taxes are deductible. (For the majority of Americans, this is one of the few tax shelters open to them.) Also, at the eventual time of sale, major improvements made by the owner over the years have a bearing on his profit.

When you move to the status of landlord you continue to get the tax breaks that the owner-occupant gets. In addition, you can charge off a number of other things such as maintenance and upkeep, depreciation and virtually every other expense involved in operating it as an income-producing business.

Don G. Campbell

About real estate

You might check with the local office of the IRS about its Publication number 530 (having to do with home ownership, as such) and Publication number 527 (concerning itself with rental property).

DEAR MR CAMPBELL: I am a single woman, living alone, and I am convinced that the landlord in this big complex comes into my apartment frequently when I'm not there. This disturbs me very much. Can I legally stop him from doing this? Ms. P.W.D. (Hartford, Conn.)

A. It would be interesting to know what you base your suspicions on, since he never shows up while you are at home. The landlord DOES have a right to check his property occasionally. I'm sure you would want to have the same right, yourself.

At the same time, he has no right to abuse this by over-doing it. I would have a chat with him and explain that this makes you uncomfortable. Tell him that you would be most happy to let him in for inspection tours at any time (within reason) when you are home and would not be inconvenienced by it.

Dear Mr. Campbell: There is a little stream (about eight feet wide) dividing my back property from my neighbor's. We've been having a discussion about which of us really owns the stream. (The bed, that is.) We're not mad, or anything. Just curious. Mr. B.N. (Oakland, Calif.).

A. AS LONG as the stream isn't navigable (and I think that eight feet makes it non-navigable) then the riparian proprietors — that's the two of you owning land bordering it — are presumed to own it jointly.

Neither of you would have the right to divert or pipe it away, completely.

What's your P.I.Q.?

If you don't know what P.I.Q. means, you'd better talk to somebody who does. Because it has absolutely nothing to do with intelligence.

It is a legal term that means "property in question." But it's not often heard outside of real estate law. The business of law is pretty complex, requiring a complex langauge. Sometimes even the simplest terms become complicated.

That's why it makes so much sense to enlist a lawyer's assistance rather than doing-it-yourself. Your attorney can make sure that doesn't happen.

An ounce of prevention.

If you already have a legal dilemma, you've missed the best time to consult an attorney. A lawyer's advice beforehand can usually keep legal matters from becoming legal problems.

Your lawyer should be someone whose judgment and ability you trust. Someone with whom you can talk freely. By keeping him up--to-date on your situation, he can anticipate legal difficulties and keep your affairs in order.

In the long run, you'll save yourself time, money and possibly embarrassment.

Why are we telling you this?

You're probably wondering why Chicago Title Insurance Company is interested in telling you about lawyers. Well, we are in the business of insuring title to real estate. After 125 years of working with lawyers in title matters, we've come to value their assistance. And we think they can be a big help to you, too.

'Turning pro' changes tax status

"Turning pro" is the phrase normally used when an amateur athlete decides to stop competing for gold-plated statuettes and goes where the money is.

The transition can be just as jarring for the homeowner who goes the same route.

Dear Mr. Campbell: I have leased my home out as income rental property for the first time this year. Are there any pamphlets or instructions (possibly from the IRS) telling me what items are tax deductible — i.e., taxes, interest on loan, or depreciation on house and furnishings. Mr. C. M. (Long Beach, Calif.)

A. AS SOON as you move from the status of homeowner to landlord the tax situation does change. Essentially, it is a mere extension of the tax breaks that you formerly enjoyed as owner/occupant.

One of the big advantages of home ownership has always been the fact that mortgage interest and real estate taxes are deductible. (For the majority of Americans, this is one of the few tax shelters open to them.) Also, at the eventual time of sale, major improvements made by the owner over the years have a bearing on his profit.

When you move to the status of landlord you continue to get the tax breaks that the owner-occupant gets. In addition, you can charge off a number of other things such as maintenance and upkeep, depreciation and virtually every other expense involved in operating it as an income-producing business.

Don G. Campbell

About real estate

You might check with the local office of the IRS about its Publication number 530 (having to do with home ownership, as such) and Publication number 527 (concerning itself with rental property).

DEAR MR CAMPBELL: I am a single woman, living alone, and I am convinced that the landlord in this big complex comes into my apartment frequently when I'm not there. This disturbs me very much. Can I legally stop him from doing this? Ms. P.W.D. (Hartford, Conn.)

A. It would be interesting to know what you base your suspicions on, since he never shows up while you are at home. The landlord DOES have a right to check his property occasionally. I'm sure you would want to have the same right, yourself.

At the same time, he has no right to abuse this by over-doing it. I would have a chat with him and explain that this makes you uncomfortable. Tell him that you would be most happy to let him in for inspection tours at any time (within reason) when you are home and would not be inconvenienced by it.

Dear Mr. Campbell: There is a little stream (about eight feet wide) dividing my back property from my neighbor's. We've been having a discussion about which of us really owns the stream. (The bed, that is.) We're not mad, or anything. Just curious. Mr. B.N. (Oakland, Calif.).

A. AS LONG as the stream isn't navigable (and I think that eight feet makes it non-navigable) then the riparian proprietors — that's the two of you owning land bordering it — are presumed to own it jointly.

Neither of you would have the right to divert or pipe it away, completely.

Homeowners untouched by tax law

The 1976 Tax Reform Bill signed by former President Ford in October will have far-reaching impact on many segments of the economy, but the homeowner's basic tax benefits will remain intact, said Robert W. Starck, President, of Robert W. Starck & Co., Realtors, Mount Prospect.

Interest payments on mortgage loans can still be deducted on the homeowner's 1976 tax return as can payments for local property taxes. "The dollar amounts of these deductions help millions of families reduce their yearly tax bills," Starck said.

The 1976 Tax Reform Bill has an adverse effect for those taxpayers who have been able to deduct at-home office expenses in the past.

AS A MEMBER of Relo, the nation's largest not-for-profit relocation service, Robert W. Starck & Co., serves many people moving into the Northwest suburban area for job-related reasons. A great number of people like these work at home during evenings and on weekends, Starck said, but under the new tax provisions, very few will be able to take at-home office space expense deductions this year.

To qualify for home office space expense deductions, tax accountants and attorneys provide the following guidelines:

- Income produced from the home office must be the taxpayer's primary source of income.
- In dual career families — one salaried and the other self-employed — income produced from the home office must be the primary source of income reported on a joint return.
- Salaried executives and employees whose companies provide office space away from the home will not be able to deduct for at-home office space expenses. If an employer requires an employee to work at home on special projects and if an employee sets aside an area to be used exclusively for these assignments, at-home office space expenses may still be deductible.

If a homeowner can qualify for at-home office space expense deductions under these stringent restrictions, the space must be used exclusively for business-related, income producing purposes. A dining room table used eight hours a day, five days a week, for business, but enjoyed by family and friends during the evening and weekends, cannot be considered office space under the new tax bill.

Under other provisions of the bill, buyers of homes and other real estate must hold their property for at least nine months to qualify for long-term capital gain benefits if the home is sold in 1977. For sales in 1978, this time period will be extended to 12 months. Also, homeowners more than 65 years of age who sell their homes can now deduct up to $35,000 ($15,000 more than was previously allowed) from the home's selling price to reduce the amount of taxable capital gain.

It never gets mugged.

If you can hide something, a professional thief can find it. And so can fire—the greatest thief of all. So if you're tucking your papers and valuables away in what you think is a safe place, think again.

And then rent yourself a St. Paul safe deposit box. For as little as $6 a year, you can have complete safety for your most valuable documents—deeds, stock certificates, insurance policies, receipts and other irreplaceable papers. And for your family heirlooms and jewelry.

Safety is a feature of most of our services at St. Paul. There's safety for your money, too—up to $40,000 of Federal insurance for your savings. And every penny of the interest we promise, we guarantee—whether the economy goes up, down or sidewise. And we're one of the nation's largest and oldest financial institutions. Safety. A comforting word in Our Town. Especially as practiced at St. Paul. Inquire today about your low-cost safe deposit box.

Air conditioners can save energy

Owners and operators of buildings with rooftop air conditioning systems can achieve substantial energy savings during the cold winter months by taking two simple steps. The first step is to deactivate the economizer cycle and the second is to set all thermostats at 65 degrees.

When occupant comfort is the primary consideration, the economizer cycle will introduce outdoor air into the system to avoid overheating interior spaces. The thermostats serving interior spaces regularly demand cooling throughout the winter months because of the internal heat gains generated by occupants, lights and equipment. But, with the extremes of this winter and the energy shortages, comfort levels must be compromised in favor of fuel economy, according to ITT Nesbitt, Philadelphia, a manufacturer of rooftop air conditioning systems.

With rooftop double-duct and multizone systems, in particular, simply setting all zone thermostats down to 65 degrees without deactivating the economizer cycle will, in fact, increase fuel consumption. This happens because interior space temperatures tend to rise above the 65 degree thermostat setting, prompting a demand for cooling. Unless deactivated the economizer cycle will draw in increased quantities of outside air to maintain spaces at 65 degrees and it will reject an equal quantity of warm air from the building.

Litmus paper helps you tell whether soil is 'sweet, sour'

George Creed

It's your landscape

Soils are sometimes referred to as sweet or sour, acid or alkaline. These are terms that roughly indicate a quality of soil that is important, often critically, in the life and growth of plants.

What is meant by the term acid or alkaline? If you start with pure water which is neutral and add some lemon juice or vinegar, you have a mixture that is acid in reaction. On the other hand if you add lime or baking soda to pure water, the result is an alkaline solution.

How can you tell whether your soil is acid or alkaline? One method is to test it with litmus paper. If the litmus paper turns blue, the soil is alkaline. If it turns pink, it is acid. But this is a crude method that doesn't tell you much: it doesn't indicate to what degree your soil is acid or alkaline.

A MORE PRECISE way of expressing the degree of acidity or alkalinity was formulated by S.P.L. Sorenson, a Danish biochemist who devised the pH scale shown here. By chemical means it is possible now to determine to a reasonable degree the acidity or alkalinity of a soil and give it a rating on the pH scale.

Why is the pH of a soil so important? It is because there is a definite relationship between the growth of a plant and pH of the soil it is planted in. When a soil is alkaline beyond a certain point, ions of aluminum, iron, manganese, copper and zinc become less soluble. These are elements required in varying degree by plants. This is the reason why rhododendrons and other broadleaf evergreens cannot live in alkaline soil. They are denied these elements in such soil. By the same token, in highly acid soils these elements in dissolved form may be so abundant as to be actually toxic to plants.

Q. I have a Paul's Scarlet Hawthorn that produces many suckers at its base. How can I eliminate these?

A. This is the nature of your plant. The only way to control the suckers is to cut them back regularly.

Q. Is early spring a good time to prune climbing roses?

A. No, wait until they have finished blooming in June.

Why is the pH of a soil so important? It is because there is a definite relationship between the growth of a plant and pH of the soil it is planted in. When a soil is alkaline beyond a certain point, ions of aluminum, iron, manganese, copper and zinc become less soluble. These are elements required in varying degree by plants. This is the reason why rhododendrons and other broadleaf evergreens cannot live in alkaline soil. They are denied these elements in such soil. By the same token, in highly acid soils these elements in dissolved form may be so abundant as to be actually toxic to plants.

Q. I have a Paul's Scarlet Hawthorn that produces many suckers at its base. How can I eliminate these?

A. This is the nature of your plant. The only way to control the suckers is to cut them back regularly.

Q. Is early spring a good time to prune climbing roses?

A. No, wait until they have finished blooming in June.

Realty unit sets appraisal course

A one-day workshop, "An Introduction to Appraising," will be sponsored by the Northwest Real Estate Board Feb. 24 to familiarize local real estate brokers and sales persons with the basics of property appraisal.

The workshop, which will be held at Schneider's LaVenece Banquet Hall, 6424 W. Higgins Ave., Chicago, will be conducted by certified instructors of the Chicago Metropolitan Chaper of the National Assn. of Independent Fee Appraisers.

The eight-point program will provide an overview of key areas of real estate appraisal: the appraisal profession; values and rights; principles of real estate valuation; the approach to value; depreciation; valuation of land, the appraisal process; and appraisal reports.

The workshop is specifically geared for members of the Northwest Real Estate Board and the Northwest Multiple Listing Service but any interested real estate person may attend.

The program will begin at 9 a.m., preceded by continental breakfast, and will continue until mid-afternoon with a break for lunch. There is no fee for the workshop or materials, but there is a $6 charge for breakfast and lunch. Persons interested in attending should contact the Northwest Real Estate Board for details and reservations at 4760 Milwaukee Ave., Chicago 60630 or call 545-3044.

5 firms lease space in industrial park

Five industrial firms have leased sales office and warehousing facilities at Rogers Industrial Park, the 21-building complex operated by Arthur J. Rogers and Co., Elk Grove Village.

Under a lease arranged by broker Elmer W. Conti of Arthur J. Rogers and Co., Izumi Products Co. has established a sales office and warehouse for electric shaver motors and components at 1717 Carmen Dr.

Pioneer/Cleveland Co., a manufacturer of electronic components headquartered in Cleveland, Ohio, has established a regional sales office at 1551-53 Carmen Dr. under a lease arranged by broker Martin R. Kennelly of Arthur J. Rogers & Co.

Water Chemistry, Inc., a water purification firm, has set up a laboratory, sales office, and storage facility at 2849 Higgins Rd. in a lease negotiated by Kennelly. Kennelly also arranged a lease for a service office at 2801 Higgins Rd. for the Gas Consumers Association.

In an expansion of its current facilities for sales and distribution of graphic papers, Arkwright Inc. has moved into larger quarters at 2961 Higgins Rd. under a lease arranged by Kennelly.

Warehouse financing set

H. F. Philipsborn and Co., Chicago, has announced placement of permanent and construction financing in the amount of $725,000 for an office/warehouse at 933 W. Remington Rd., Schaumburg.

Improvements will consist of a one-story concrete and steal industrial building containing approximately 55,860 square feet, of which approximately 3,750 square feet will be office area.

The developer is Garden Investment Co., Arlington Heights.

Questions heat up in cold weather

The unusually cold weather we have been experiencing over most of the country has resulted in many questions. The following letters are examples of the type of mail this column has been receiving.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: The tenants in my apartment building are about to rebel. The heat has not gone above 60 degrees for the past week. When we complain to the landlord, he tells us there is nothing he can do. Mr. Meltzer, we pay our rent on time every month, and we feel we are entitled to heat.

We are about to engage a lawyer. Do you think we are doing the right thing?—TENANTS OF THE IGLOO.

My advice is to be more realistic. If you have not been outdoors recently, you'll be surprised to know that it is unusually cold. The heating system in most buildings are not designed to handle the kind of weather we have been experiencing.

Most heating systems can easily maintain a building at 70 degrees if it is 10 degrees outdoors with little wind. When it is below zero with high winds, it is impossible to keep the building warm enough. Bear with it. There are many people a lot worse off than you. If winter be here, spring cannot be far behind.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: My house has electric heat. When we had the system installed, we were told that the ideal feature was the ability to turn off rooms we were not using. Usually we turn off every room in the house except the one we are sitting in.

When we go from one room to another, we turn off the last one and turn on the new one. We are freezing! The electric company tells us there is nothing wrong with our system.

What do you think our problem can be?—UNSCHOOLED.

In order to properly heat your house, the heat should be going at all times. You can turn it down, but not off. The electric heat does not have a sufficient recovery power to heat a room instantaneously. Bear in mind that for even heat you must heat not only the space of the room, but the contents as well.

This includes furniture. If everything in the room is below 40 degrees, it takes a long time to properly heat that area.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: We have planned a 10-day trip to the Caribbean. I am worried about the water pipes freezing while we are away.

Someone told me that to avoid this, I could turn off the water while we are gone. Will this really work? It seems too easy somehow.—WORRIED.

Simply turning off the water is not enough. Your entire system must be drained. This usually involves blowing the water out of your lines with air at high pressure.

Not only can this be a costly job, but very often it is not effective for pipes located under the floor. I recommend that you keep your heat running at minimum temperature and not drain your pipes.

However, you should have a neighbor check your house on a daily basis, if possible, to make sure that the heating system does not break down.

Bernard Meltzer

On real estate

DEAR MR.MELTZER: Talk about the pioneer spirit! Here's a good question for you.

I live in a house with my wife and four children. The water main has frozen in the street and we have had no water for four days. Our big problem is flushing the tiolets.

The neighbors are in the same fix, so we can't send the kids there. The boys solve most of their problems outside, but the girls complain a lot.

We were driving to my brother-in-law's every night, but he and his wife have no children, and he is beginning to complain about the kids tracking snow into the house.

The township has supplied us with emergency water, but that doesn't seem to help this problem. Can you advise us what to do before it is too late?—REALLY IN A BIND.

Since you have the water from the township, you can flush any toilet by pouring three or four gallons of water into the hopper. This is sufficient to make the siphon work.

Even if you did not have the water, you could melt snow and achieve the same effect. The kids will be better off for the experience. They will understand how the frontiersmen survived.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: The water line entering my house has frozen. There seems to be no way to thaw it out. My family has moved to a motel, and you can imagine how expensive that is! I have a wife and five children.

Can you tell me what I can do to restore my water service? Nobody seems to be able to give me advice.—POORER EVERY MINUTE.

Water pipes in your area are generally installed three feet below the ground. This is because the frost rarely penetrates more than 18 inches. This year, however, the cold weather has caused the ground to freeze as deep as four feet in some areas.

Naturally, a buried water line has a hard time surviving in this environment. I am afraid it is too late to do anything in your case because after several days the line will surely crack.

However, if you had acted immediately, an electric charge could have restored your water service. This is usually applied with a welding machine at either end of the water line. It must be done by a qualified mechanic.

Fireplaces may hurt energy conservation

Crackling fireplaces may hinder — not help — energy conservation, experts say.

The problem is that old-fashioned fireplaces, the kind with no independent source of fresh air to feed the flames, can pull cold air into a house and more than offset the warmth they provide. The process makes furnaces run overtime.

Factory-built fireplaces with glass doors and flues to draw in outside air — or old fireplaces modified to add doors and a flue — were described as "good sources of supplemental heat" that will not run up the furnace bill.

Traditional open fireplaces act like pumps, government and private experts said Wednesday. They push hot air up the chimneys, creating a partial vacuum in the house, and sucking in cold outside air through cracks around windows and doors to fill that vacuum.

Questions heat up in cold weather

The unusually cold weather we have been experiencing over most of the country has resulted in many questions. The following letters are examples of the type of mail this column has been receiving.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: The tenants in my apartment building are about to rebel. The heat has not gone above 60 degrees for the past week. When we complain to the landlord, he tells us there is nothing he can do. Mr. Meltzer, we pay our rent on time every month, and we feel we are entitled to heat.

We are about to engage a lawyer. Do you think we are doing the right thing?—TENANTS OF THE IGLOO.

My advice is to be more realistic. If you have not been outdoors recently, you'll be surprised to know that it is unusually cold. The heating system in most buildings are not designed to handle the kind of weather we have been experiencing.

Most heating systems can easily maintain a building at 70 degrees if it is 10 degrees outdoors with little wind. When it is below zero with high winds, it is impossible to keep the building warm enough. Bear with it. There are many people a lot worse off than you. If winter be here, spring cannot be far behind.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: My house has electric heat. When we had the system installed, we were told that the ideal feature was the ability to turn off rooms we were not using. Usually we turn off every room in the house except the one we are sitting in.

When we go from one room to another, we turn off the last one and turn on the new one. We are freezing! The electric company tells us there is nothing wrong with our system.

What do you think our problem can be?—UNSCHOOLED.

In order to properly heat your house, the heat should be going at all times. You can turn it down, but not off. The electric heat does not have a sufficient recovery power to heat a room instantaneously. Bear in mind that for even heat you must heat not only the space of the room, but the contents as well.

This includes furniture. If everything in the room is below 40 degrees, it takes a long time to properly heat that area.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: We have planned a 10-day trip to the Caribbean. I am worried about the water pipes freezing while we are away.

Someone told me that to avoid this, I could turn off the water while we are gone. Will this really work? It seems too easy somehow.—WORRIED.

Simply turning off the water is not enough. Your entire system must be drained. This usually involves blowing the water out of your lines with air at high pressure.

Not only can this be a costly job, but very often it is not effective for pipes located under the floor. I recommend that you keep your heat running at minimum temperature and not drain your pipes.

However, you should have a neighbor check your house on a daily basis, if possible, to make sure that the heating system does not break down.

Modern-day white knights fix up stately home, castle

by GREGORY JENSEN

HOLLINGBOURNE, England (UPI) — One has been called "the loveliest castle in the whole world," a title it deserves. It is "The Lady of the Lake," the "queenliest castle in all England."

The other is a modest yeoman's house, fragrant with herbs and embowered by trees in th tiny village of Hollingbourne, 41 miles east of London.

Yet these two stately homes, just over a mile apart though at opposite ends of the stately home spectrum, have one thing in common.

BOTH ARE THE result of a decades of do-it-yourself work.

Both Leeds castle, a 1,120-year-old one-time royal palace, and Eyhorne Manor, a 560-year-old commoner's house, were virtually in ruins when some remarkable people stepped in.

At Leeds Castle it was Olive, Lady Baillie, a half-American member of the wealthy Whitney family.

Beginning in 1926 she spent 46 years — and a fortune — restoring and furnishing the castle, now open to the public after four centuries of seclusion.

AT NEIGHBORING Eyhorne Manor, the saviors were Derek Simmons, an architect and art lecturer, his wife Sheila and their two daughters.

"We've done simply everything ourselves," Mrs. Simmons said under the ancient timbers of what is now a supremely lovely home.

"When the children were three we put them to work stripping wallpaper and so forth. Derek made the furniture. All the embroidery and needlework, almost all the pictures, the garden, just everything you see, we have done ourselves."

Of the two homes, Leeds Castle is undoubtedly the most spectacular.

COVERING TWO islands in the middle of a lake, it seems to sail on the waters like the black swans Lady Baillie introduced. It is everyone's dream of what a castle should be.

First built in 357 and rebuilt in stone 260 years later, it represents a huge slice of England's history. For three centuries it was the home of English kings and queens- especially queens.

Kind Edward I, who took over Leeds in 1272, began the tradition of making Leeds a wedding present to the queen. One after another, eight medieval queens owned and loved Leeds.

One of them was Joan of Navarre. Recently her meticulous castle housekeeping account book for part of 1422 was discovered and is now on display.

THE TUDOR dynasty began at Leeds, though King Henry VIII was careful not to give it to any of his six wives. Instead he beautified and enlarged it. Later Leeds passed to the Fairfax family which once owned a huge part of Virginia.

Lady Baillie had almost finished her lavish reconstruction when she died in 1974. She left Leeds to the nation - with $2.4 million for its upkeep — in an imiginative trust.

Under one of its provisions, Leeds is now on public view. It threw open its ancient gates briefly for the first time last year. This is its first full season, opening from April 5 through Sept. 29.

Another stipulation was that Leeds should be used for top level government and charity conferences. The European Common Market's foreign ministers are meeting there in May.

THE MAIN building of Leeds Castle in Hollingbourne, England is 1,120 years old and was once a royal palace. It was virtually in ruins when Olive, Lady Baillie, took it over in 1926 and spent 46 years — and a fortune — restoring and furnishing it.

EYHORNE MANOR is a total contrast to the grandeur of Leeds.

It is a charming, irregular huddle of 14 small rooms with huge exposed timber beams and flagstone floors. Half the house is much as it was built in 1420. The other half was added in the 17th century.

The house was practically a ruin when the Simmonses bought it 25 years ago and set to work.

"It was a very foolish thing to do," Simmons said before his gigantic 17th century fireplace.

"It helped, really, to be as ignorant as we were. I'd never have tackled some of the jobs if I'd known what I was letting myself in for."

After 20 years of non-stop work, the Simmonses have begun showing their handiwork to the public on weekends.

Flood insurance drive launched

Harsh winter conditions in many parts of the country that could result in severe flooding have prompted the National Flood Insurers Assn. to luanch an extensive campaign to inform people about the availability of flood insurance and to beef-up internal operations to handle the escalating numbers of new policies and increased claims potential.

Part of the plan includes a leaflet and advertisement that are being sent to agents, agents' associations, local, state and federal government officials and disaster organizations to pass along to the public.

In addition, NFIA is developing a publicity campaign aimed at all media in the affected areas. This will concentrate on stories to make the public aware of the availability of flood insurance, explain what the policy covers and outline what to do before and after a flood.

NFIA is also coordinating activities with its insurance servicing companies in the target areas to ensure that they are prepared to service new policy applications and to assist agents in working with the public. Servicing company claims operations are being alerted so that possible losses can be handled quickly.

Kind Edward I, who took over Leeds in 1272, began the tradition of making Leeds a wedding present to the queen. One after another, eight medieval queens owned and loved Leeds.

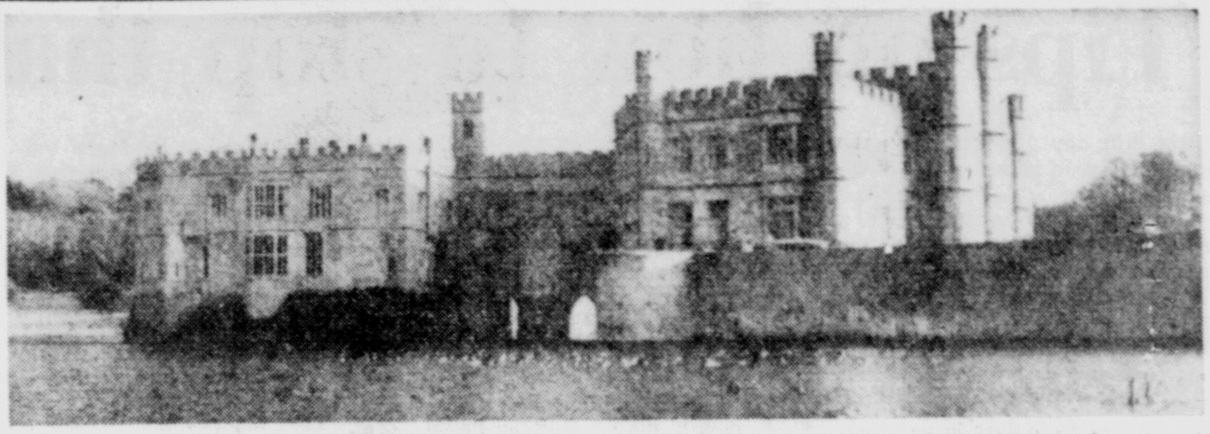
One of them was Joan of Navarre. Recently her meticulous castle housekeeping account book for part of 1422 was discovered and is now on display.

THE TUDOR dynasty began at Leeds, though King Henry VIII was careful not to give it to any of his six wives. Instead he beautified and enlarged it. Later Leeds passed to the Fairfax family which once owned a huge part of Virginia.

Lady Baillie had almost finished her lavish reconstruction when she died in 1974. She left Leeds to the nation - with $2.4 million for its upkeep — in an imiginative trust.

Under one of its provisions, Leeds is now on public view. It threw open its ancient gates briefly for the first time last year. This is its first full season, opening from April 5 through Sept. 29.

Another stipulation was that Leeds should be used for top level government and charity conferences. The European Common Market's foreign ministers are meeting there in May.



THE MAIN building of Leeds Castle in Hollingbourne, England is 1,120 years old and was once a royal palace. It was virtually in ruins when Olive, Lady Baillie, took it over in 1926 and spent 46 years — and a fortune — restoring and furnishing it.

EYHORNE MANOR is a total contrast to the grandeur of Leeds.

It is a charming, irregular huddle of 14 small rooms with huge exposed timber beams and flagstone floors. Half the house is much as it was built in 1420. The other half was added in the 17th century.

The house was practically a ruin when the Simmonses bought it 25 years ago and set to work.

"It was a very foolish thing to do," Simmons said before his gigantic 17th century fireplace.

"It helped, really, to be as ignorant as we were. I'd never have tackled some of the jobs if I'd known what I was letting myself in for."

After 20 years of non-stop work, the Simmonses have begun showing their handiwork to the public on weekends.

Flood insurance drive launched

Harsh winter conditions in many parts of the country that could result in severe flooding have prompted the National Flood Insurers Assn. to luanch an extensive campaign to inform people about the availability of flood insurance and to beef-up internal operations to handle the escalating numbers of new policies and increased claims potential.

Part of the plan includes a leaflet and advertisement that are being sent to agents, agents' associations, local, state and federal government officials and disaster organizations to pass along to the public.

In addition, NFIA is developing a publicity campaign aimed at all media in the affected areas. This will concentrate on stories to make the public aware of the availability of flood insurance, explain what the policy covers and outline what to do before and after a flood.

NFIA is also coordinating activities with its insurance servicing companies in the target areas to ensure that they are prepared to service new policy applications and to assist agents in working with the public. Servicing company claims operations are being alerted so that possible losses can be handled quickly.

Repair tricks can be handy

Tips on how to stop that dripping faucet

Drip, drip, drip. How often have you heard that sound in the middle of the night?

Of course, that's often the noise of a leaky faucet emanating from the bathroom or kitchen.

It's no surprise, however, that many new homeowners haven't the slightest idea of how to go about fixing something so simple as a dripping faucet.

FOR THOSE PERSONS who have spent most of their lives in an apartment, they only had to endure until the janitor arrived. Those who now find themselves first-time homeowners may find it handy to learn a few repair tricks around the home, said Robert G. Walters, senior vice president of Baird and Warner, Inc., and general manager of its residential sales division.

"It's not difficult to fix a leaky faucet," he said. 'In most cases it's just a matter of replacing a worn out washer."

Before tackling such a project, have the right tools, Walters said. A monkey wrench or an adjustable wrench and a screwdriver will do, along with an assortment of washers. Following is a step by step procedure.

First and foremost, turn the water supply off. If there are no shut-off valves under the sink, the main water valve to the house will have to be turned off. This is usually in the basement.

BEFORE TURNING the hexagonal cap on the faucet with a wrench, put some tape or wrap a rag around it to avoid damaging the chrome.

Turn it counterclockwise. To get it all the way off, give the faucet handle a turn or two in the "on" position to raise the shaft.

This may be either to the left or right, depending on the faucet. Once the hex cap is free, keep turning the faucet handle in the "on" direction until the whole thing can be lifted out of the faucet body.

Now take the pulled out part and turn it upside down. Visible will be a fiber or rubber washer that is held in the bottom of it by a screw through the center. This washer is the worn out part that may be causing the drip.

THE SCREW USUALLY will come out easy, but the old washer may need some prying with a penknife. Match a new washer with the old one and put it into place, fastening it in with the same screw.

If a washer assortment includes a few screws, the screws also can be replaced. Once the washer is replaced it can be put back together.

Some washers are color coded, so be careful and check to see if one color is for hot water and the other for cold.

Another cause for leaking faucets may lie in the packing around the shaft. This is also easy to repair.

THE PACKING USUALLY is a mildly mushy fibrous material inside the hexagonal cap on the faucet body. A metal washer under it squashes it into a tapered recess inside the cap as it is tightened down, squeezing it against the shaft.

This packing sometimes stiffens up with time and refuses to squash. Buy a little package of graphite faucet packing at a hardware store. It's inexpensive, and in its handiest form it looks like a small coil of shiny vermicelli.

To use it, pull the metal washer down (after shutting off the water and removing the faucet cap) and wrap a single turn of the packing around the shaft, up against the old packing.

Push it into the space around the shaft with your fingernails or a small screwdriver — just enough to hold it. Now when everything is tightened back together, the new packing gets squished into the leak space around the shaft and stops the dribble. Add more packing if the leak doesn't stop.

"You might have to wait weeks if you call a plumber for such an easy job as changing a washer," Walters said. "You may find it fun to fix it with your own two hands. And less expensive.

"You'll be doing your part in conserving precious water, too. Thousands of gallons of water are wasted each day just because of dripping faucets."

Deltona sells out first phase of condo project

Selling all 90 units in the first phase of a new condominium project in just 10 days is virtually unheard of in Florida since the start of the 1974-75 recession.

Yet that is precisely what The Deltona Corp. did with its new Mariner garden condominium apartments on Marco Island.

Units were released for sale Jan. 17 and by Jan. 26, the Miami-based firm had contracts on all 90.

Frank E. Mackle III, Deltona executive vice president, said the sales represent a total volume of $3,632,000.

Prices of the units ranged from $37,900 to $44,900. In addition to a pool and patio area, the first phase will consist of five buildings, each containing 18 two-bedroom, two-bath apartments. A second phase, which also will include a pool and patio area, will have four buildings similar to those in phase one.

Construction of the first phase is scheduled to begin soon, Mackle said. The condominium is located at Collier Blvd. and State Route 92, directly across from the Gulf of Mexico community beach.

First-floor apartments will have a garden patio, while second-story units will include a balcony. The kitchen, living and dining areas of the second-story units will have a cathedral ceiling of stained tongue-and-grooved wood.

All units will include two full baths with vanities and ceramic tile floors. The kitchen will feature an open bar that can be used for eating or for passing items from the kitchen to the dining area. The kitchen is equipped with built-in garbage disposal, range and hood, continuous-cleaning oven and double-compartment stainless-steel sink. Space and hookups have been provided for an optional clothes washer, dryer and dishwasher.

The Mariner buildings' exterior walls will be finished in smooth stucco. Windows, patio doors and balcony railings will have low maintenance bronze-coated aluminum framing.

The Deltona Corporation, headed by the Mackle family, is the builder of eight major planned communities in Florida.

Century 21 Village Square Realtors announced that broker-salesman Dean Yount reached the $1 million sales mark in 1976. This is the second straight year he achieved this goal.

Yount has received numerous awards for his salesmanship expertise, as well as awards for top lister at a Century 21 mini convention. He manages Century 21 Village Square Realtors' Palatine office at 672 E. Northwest Hwy. He completed the first class of the National Association of Realtors Certified Residential Brokers School.

Yount, his wife Anita and family have resided in Palatine for 18 years.

Century 21 Village Square Realtors' Arlington Heights office announces Sylvia Nolan has reached the million sales mark for 1976.

She was twice a member of the 21 Club in 1976. Mrs. Nolan attended De Paul University and is a member of the Tri-City Women's Golf League.

She and her husband Edgar and their three children reside in Arlington Heights.

Planets are 'wanderers' of universe

Ask Andy

Andy sends the Encyclopaedia Britannica's 1977 Yearbook of Science and the Future to Matthew Faulkner, 11, of Hutchinson, Kan., for his question:

CAN YOU TELL ME ABOUT THE PLANETS?

The word planet comes from the Greek word meaning wanderer. And that's exactly what a planet does — it wanders among the stars in a regular path.

There are nine planets and each revolves about the sun. The nine are, in order of their proximity to the sun: Mercury, Venus, Earth, Mars, Jupiter, Saturn, Uranus, Neptune and Pluto.

Stars, which appear fixed in the sky, give off their own light while planets shine by light reflected from the sun.

When you look at a planet through a telescope, it appears like a ball. Stars look like pinpoints of light because they are so far away from Earth.

Planets travel in regular paths called orbits. The swing is always around the sun and is almost a circle — although flattened or ellipse in shape. Although they all move in the same direction, the orbits of the planets are all different distances from the sun.

Planets from the terrestrial or inside group are made of heavy atoms of matter while the Jovian planets, or outside group, seem to be made of lighter atoms.

All planets rotate on their axes, but at different rates. Their orbits are about in the same plane as the sun's equator with the exception of Pluto. The orbit of Pluto is tipped.

The Earth is 93 million miles from the sun. The closest planet to the sun is Mercury, which is 36 million miles away, and farthest is Pluto, 3,675 million miles away.

The Earth has a mean diameter of 7,918 miles. Baby among the planets is Mercury with a mean diameter of just 3,100 miles. The daddy of them all as far as size is concerned is Jupiter, which measures a whopping 86,840 miles in diameter.

The ancient Greeks included the sun and the moon as planets, but we no longer do. Also, three "new" planets were added to the list since the days of ancient Greece. They are Uranus, Neptune and Pluto which were discovered in 1781, 1946 and 1930.

Andy sends a Student Globe to Anne Frances Applegate, 9, of Huntsville, Ala., for her question:

WHY IS THE SKY BLUE?

Sunlight is made of all colors of the spectrum, just as you see them in a rainbow. The sky looks blue because sunlight is broken and scattered by tiny particles of air, dust and water vapor in the atmosphere.

When light passes through the atmosphere and hits the tiny particles in the air, the blue part of the light is just the right wavelength to be scattered, and the scattering makes the sky look blue. Mornings and evenings the light passes through a thicker layer of atmosphere causing orange and red waves of light to break up.

Do you have a question to ASK ANDY? Send it on a post card with your name, age and complete address to ASK ANDY, in care of The Herald, P. O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006. Entries are open to girls and boys 7 to 17.

Old man does double-take

Oswald and James Jacoby

Win at bridge

Old man Z who used to be the declarer in the old auction bridge columns was engaged in a game of rubber bridge for a change.

Hence, when his partner gave him a positive response to his opening two bid, Z checked for aces and put the contract in seven spades to score the 100 honors in addition to rubber and grand-slam bonuses.

West opened the queen of diamonds. Z played dummy's ace and remarked, "This looks a lot like a hand Sidney Lenz had me play in 1927. It looks as if East is going to show up with five trumps to the ten and I had better plan a double coup."

Then Z came to his hand by ruffing a low diamond and cashed two high trumps. Sure enough, West showed out on the second trump lead.

Now Z cashed his ace and king of hearts and led a club to dummy's queen. This was followed by another diamond ruff to leave Z with three trumps and two clubs. East who had been following suit right along was down to three trumps, one diamond and one club.

Now Z went to dummy with the ace of clubs, led the queen of hearts, showed his hand and claimed.

Note that if Z had not ruffed that diamond at trick two he would not have been able to develop the coup.

The new duplicate laws about reviews of the bidding are very complicated. They provide that at your turn to bid you can demand a review and that you can also demand a review when it is your turn to play to the first trick.

Later on, any player may ask the meaning of any bid made by an opponent or may ask what the final contract is and if it is doubled or redoubled, but he may not ask who doubled or redoubled.

Cougar Band to host 18 units at contest

Eighteen color guard units from Illinois and surrounding states will compete for honors at "The St. Valentine's Day Massacre Color Guard Competition Show."

Conant High School's Cougar Band will host the show from 1 to 5 p.m. Sunday in the school's gymnasium, 700 E. Cougar Tr., Hoffman Estates.

The color guard units will perform precision drills with flags, rifles and sabres. Trophies will be awarded to the first six-place winners. In addition, cash awards will be given to the first, second and third place winners.

Planets are 'wanderers' of universe

Andy sends the Encyclopaedia Britannica's 1977 Yearbook of Science and the Future to Matthew Faulkner, 11, of Hutchinson, Kan., for his question:

CAN YOU TELL ME ABOUT THE PLANETS?

The word planet comes from the Greek word meaning wanderer. And that's exactly what a planet does — it wanders among the stars in a regular path.

There are nine planets and each revolves about the sun. The nine are, in order of their proximity to the sun: Mercury, Venus, Earth, Mars, Jupiter, Saturn, Uranus, Neptune and Pluto.

Stars, which appear fixed in the sky, give off their own light while planets shine by light reflected from the sun.

When you look at a planet through a telescope, it appears like a ball. Stars look like pinpoints of light because they are so far away from Earth.

Planets travel in regular paths called orbits. The swing is always around the sun and is almost a circle — although flattened or ellipse in shape. Although they all move in the same direction, the orbits of the planets are all different distances from the sun.

Planets from the terrestrial or inside group are made of heavy atoms of matter while the Jovian planets, or outside group, seem to be made of lighter atoms.

All planets rotate on their axes, but at different rates. Their orbits are about in the same plane as the sun's equator with the exception of Pluto. The orbit of Pluto is tipped.

The Earth is 93 million miles from the sun. The closest planet to the sun is Mercury, which is 36 million miles away, and farthest is Pluto, 3,675 million miles away.

The Earth has a mean diameter of 7,918 miles. Baby among the planets is Mercury with a mean diameter of just 3,100 miles. The daddy of them all as far as size is concerned is Jupiter, which measures a whopping 86,840 miles in diameter.

The ancient Greeks included the sun and the moon as planets, but we no longer do. Also, three "new" planets were added to the list since the days of ancient Greece. They are Uranus, Neptune and Pluto which were discovered in 1781, 1946 and 1930.

Ask Andy

Andy sends a Student Globe to Anne Frances Applegate, 9, of Huntsville, Ala., for her question:

WHY IS THE SKY BLUE?

Sunlight is made of all colors of the spectrum, just as you see them in a rainbow. The sky looks blue because sunlight is broken and scattered by tiny particles of air, dust and water vapor in the atmosphere.

When light passes through the atmosphere and hits the tiny particles in the air, the blue part of the light is just the right wavelength to be scattered, and the scattering makes the sky look blue. Mornings and evenings the light passes through a thicker layer of atmosphere causing orange and red waves of light to break up.

Do you have a question to ASK ANDY? Send it on a post card with your name, age and complete address to ASK ANDY, in care of The Herald, P. O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006. Entries are open to girls and boys 7 to 17.

Old man does double-take

Oswald and James Jacoby

Win at bridge

Old man Z who used to be the declarer in the old auction bridge columns was engaged in a game of rubber bridge for a change.

Hence, when his partner gave him a positive response to his opening two bid, Z checked for aces and put the contract in seven spades to score the 100 honors in addition to rubber and grand-slam bonuses.

West opened the queen of diamonds. Z played dummy's ace and remarked, "This looks a lot like a hand Sidney Lenz had me play in 1927. It looks as if East is going to show up with five trumps to the ten and I had better plan a double coup."

Then Z came to his hand by ruffing a low diamond and cashed two high trumps. Sure enough, West showed out on the second trump lead.

Now Z cashed his ace and king of hearts and led a club to dummy's queen. This was followed by another diamond ruff to leave Z with three trumps and two clubs. East who had been following suit right along was down to three trumps, one diamond and one club.

Now Z went to dummy with the ace of clubs, led the queen of hearts, showed his hand and claimed.

Note that if Z had not ruffed that diamond at trick two he would not have been able to develop the coup.

The new duplicate laws about reviews of the bidding are very complicated. They provide that at your turn to bid you can demand a review and that you can also demand a review when it is your turn to play to the first trick.

Later on, any player may ask the meaning of any bid made by an opponent or may ask what the final contract is and if it is doubled or redoubled, but he may not ask who doubled or redoubled.

The almanac

by United Press International

Today is Thursday, Feb. 10, the 41st day of 1977 with 324 to follow.

The moon is in its last quarter.

The morning stars are Mercury and Mars.

The evening stars are Venus, Jupiter and Saturn.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Aquarius.

American journalist William Allen White was born on Feb. 10, 1868. American actor-entertainers Jimmy Durante (1893) and Robert Wagner (1930) also were born on this date.

On this day in history:

• In 1942, the American auto industry shut down its civilian car assembly lines for the duration of World War II and converted to military production.

• In 1962, U-2 spy plane pilot Francis Gary Powers was returned to the United States in exchange for Soviet spy Rudolf Abel.

• In 1964, an Australian aircraft carrier and a U. S. destroyer collided in the Tasman Sea, killing 100 American naval men.

• In 1974, Britain's 260,000 miners went on strike in wage dispute.

The almanac

by United Press International

Today is Thursday, Feb. 10, the 41st day of 1977 with 324 to follow.

The moon is in its last quarter.

The morning stars are Mercury and Mars.

The evening stars are Venus, Jupiter and Saturn.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Aquarius.

American journalist William Allen White was born on Feb. 10, 1868. American actor-entertainers Jimmy Durante (1893) and Robert Wagner (1930) also were born on this date.

On this day in history:

• In 1942, the American auto industry shut down its civilian car assembly lines for the duration of World War II and converted to military production.

• In 1962, U-2 spy plane pilot Francis Gary Powers was returned to the United States in exchange for Soviet spy Rudolf Abel.

• In 1964, an Australian aircraft carrier and a U. S. destroyer collided in the Tasman Sea, killing 100 American naval men.

• In 1974, Britain's 260,000 miners went on strike in wage dispute.

by BILLIE BACHHUBER

Do you envy that perfect toothpaste ad smile you see on TV? It can be yours.

Did you spend a chunk of your savings having Junior's teeth straightened just to have him lose his thousand dollar smile to a baseball bat? Those knocked-out pearlies can be duplicated.

Or perhaps you've lost your own beautiful smile to gum disease, accident or decay? Comfortable, identical, maybe even better, replacements can be yours . . . ones that match your own tooth color.

Who will work such miracles, the tooth fairy?

Of course not. First you see your dentist. Then, working from the dentist's instructions and with an impression of your bite, a special craftsman, the dental laboratory technician, can build artificial replacements so lifelike you'll think they are your own.

Using gold, ceramic, porcelain and plastic, or combinations of these materials, this technician creates crowns, bridges, inlays and other dental aids. His work is done mostly "behind the scenes."

"WE DO HIGHLY individual work," said Patrick Briggs, co-owner with Gordon Field of Creative Dental Studio in Mount Prospect.

"Every tooth in the mouth has a name and basic shape, but each individual tooth is different in every person.

"We produce individualized products one can't get off the shelf. A dental lab is light manufacturing . . . a very highly technical business."

The painstaking work requires excellent hand and eye coordination as the technician must make measurements with no fixed dimensions. (Try visualizing the contours of your teeth.) The equipment he uses is small: drills, model grinders, abrasive discs, articulators.

The articulator, for example, simulates chewing motions, and helps to insure the patient will have a comfortable and proper bite while chewing with his new teeth.

THE LAYMAN may refer to what the dental technician creates as "plates" and "caps," but these are correctly called dentures and crowns, according to Briggs and Field.

At Creative Dental Studios, they don't make dentures at all. For patients needing full mouth rehabilitation, Briggs and Field build full upper and lower crowns and bridgework. These dental aids are attached to a patient's own teeth. Such highly individualized workmanship and superior materials used in constructing the teeth, of course, cost more than factory-made denture teeth.

Porcelain and gold are most expensive, and for good reasons. They are harder, last longer and won't discolor.

Plastics come in different grades and colors and may be affected by medications and other type stains, Briggs said.

Some laboratories specializing in appliances and repairs for children's teeth will use plastics for temporary restoration such as a broken tooth, he pointed out.

THE TECHNICIAN must know his materials and keep up-to-date on new materials, techniques, concepts and equipment. Ongoing education is necessary in this business as it is constantly changing and improving, according to Briggs and Field.

Technicians may come to their field via a college education or learn the work on the job. Briggs and Field, in the business more than 20 years and partners for six, learned their craft mostly on the job. They started as delivery boys. Briggs also trained as a dental assistant while in the army.

Both are certified and Briggs conducts tests for National Board of Certification. "The test gets tougher all the time. It's very difficult, very technical," he said of the day-long examination.

The two men are active in Illinois Dental Laboratory Association, and presently co-chair the Mid-America Conference for dental technicians.

YOUNG PERSONS interested in becoming a dental laboratory technician should be able to work well with their hands, like detail, possess good color sense and be patient and creative. They need good depth perception.

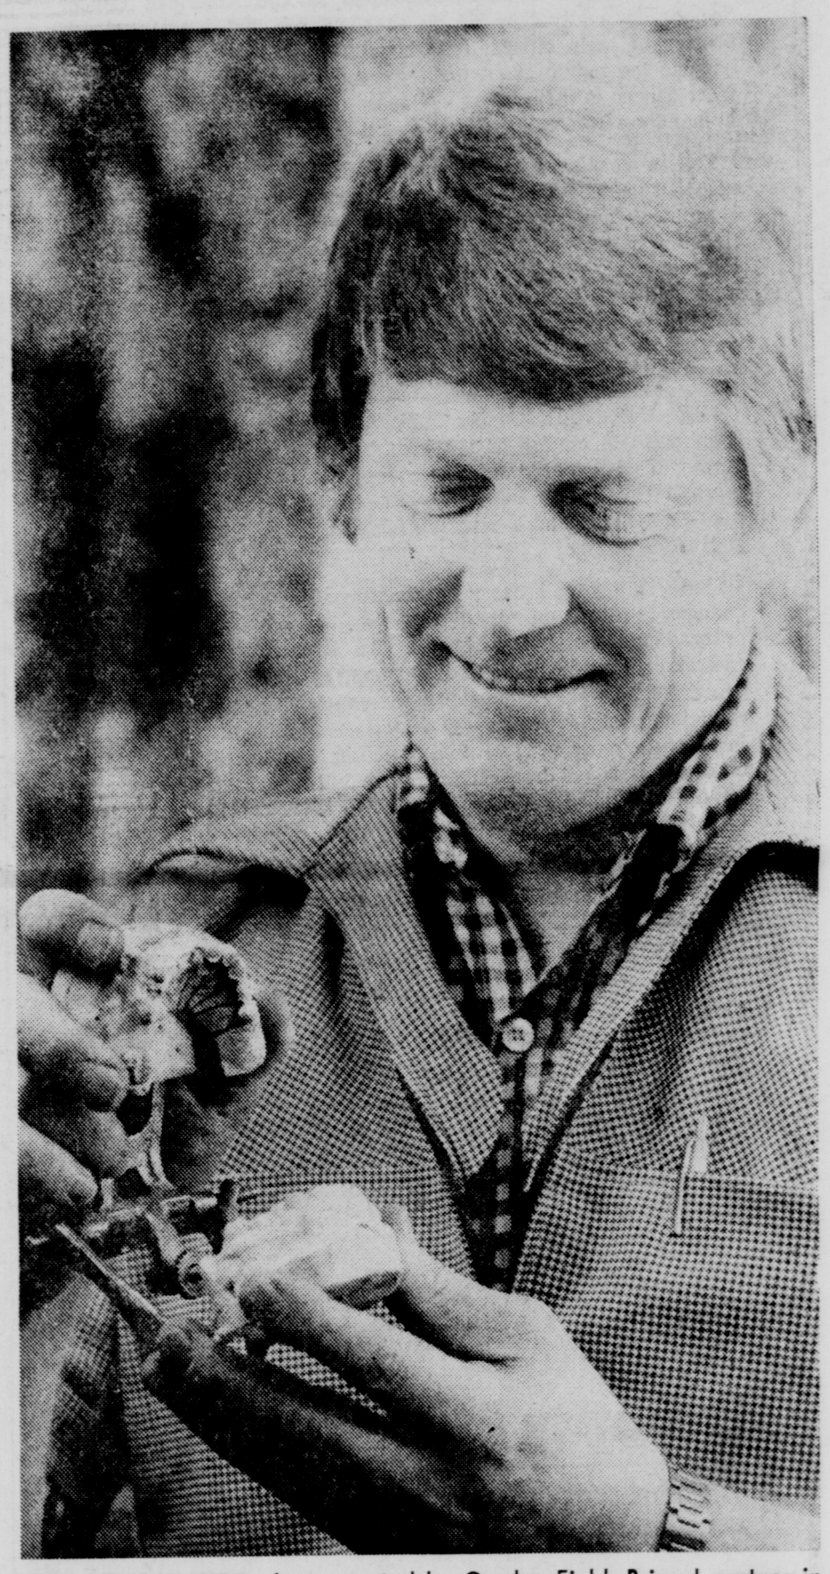
There's a shortage of such craftsmen, report Briggs and Field, because beginners often are bored by the one-step-at-a-time lab training required even of college grads. So they quit.

Working in the laboratory is a steady, year-round job except at holiday time. "Everyone wants his teeth for Christmas, I guess. We work 12 and 14 hour days then," Field said.

Of the 10 employes at Creative Dental Studio, two are diversified occupations students from Wheeling and Maine West High Schools and one attends Triton Community College. Both Triton and Southern Illinois University teach dental technology.

A college graduate should expect to work at least three years in a lab to become proficient, said the partners. It takes longer on the job.

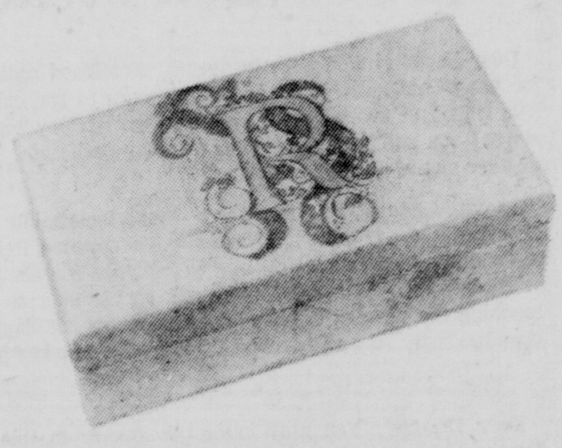
There are about 12 dental labs in the northwest suburbs, and the field is open to newcomers.



THE ARTICULATOR, demonstrated by Gordon Field, Briggs' partner in Creative Dental Studio, simulates the chewing action of teeth and is used to test the prosthesis for accuracy of bite.

WHATEVER THE MATERIAL used to make the teeth, it must be changed in this crucible to the molten state and then spun into the model of the tooth or teeth. Here Michael Hendricksen works with gold, applying heat with a torch. He can tell by the color when the metal is ready.

Hide covered box tedious project but worth results



by JUDY HARPER

With the enormous popularity of tole and decorative painting has come the need for more varied and interesting surfaces on which to paint.

The illustrated box was covered with parchment rawhide (rawhide goatskin). This type of covering is an old Spanish art that I learned while living in Mexico.

This is particularly compatible with illumination-type painting (medieval German), which artist Jean Wortham has included in her books of decorative painting patterns.

The covering of a box with this material is just tedious enough to make us feel as though we've really accomplished something, and the resulting look is well worth the effort.

To begin the project, you'll need to purchase a rawhide goatskin from a leather craft store (like Tandy).

SAND THE BOX thoroughly — "silk-stocking smooth" — and then apply nine coats of gesso, letting dry thoroughly between coats. Sand to smooth with emery paper (wet sandpaper used dry) after each third coat.

Now, make a paper pattern for covering the box, including flaps to be tucked inside. The bottom of the box need not be covered.

Using your very accurately drawn paper patterns, cut the box covers from the rawhide.

Then, using a medium-fine grade of sandpaper, sand the edges of the rawhide — about one-half inch around the edges — to paper thinness. The hide is tough, so this will require a bit of elbow grease. (Don't overdo it or you might sand holes in the edges.)

When this is finished, soak the pieces of hide in warm water with a dash of vinegar for several hours, until it's soft and easy to handle.

REMOVE THE HIDE from the water and cover the box as though wrapping a package. Corners must be mitered, and the excess must be removed with a razor blade.

For glue, use a mixture of wheat paste and warm water with

The two men are active in Illinois Dental Laboratory Association, and presently co-chair the Mid-America Conference for dental technicians.

YOUNG PERSONS interested in becoming a dental laboratory technician should be able to work well with their hands, like detail, possess good color sense and be patient and creative. They need good depth perception.

There's a shortage of such craftsmen, report Briggs and Field, because beginners often are bored by the one-step-at-a-time lab training required even of college grads. So they quit.

Working in the laboratory is a steady, year-round job except at holiday time. "Everyone wants his teeth for Christmas, I guess. We work 12 and 14 hour days then," Field said.

Of the 10 employes at Creative Dental Studio, two are diversified occupations students from Wheeling and Maine West High Schools and one attends Triton Community College. Both Triton and Southern Illinois University teach dental technology.

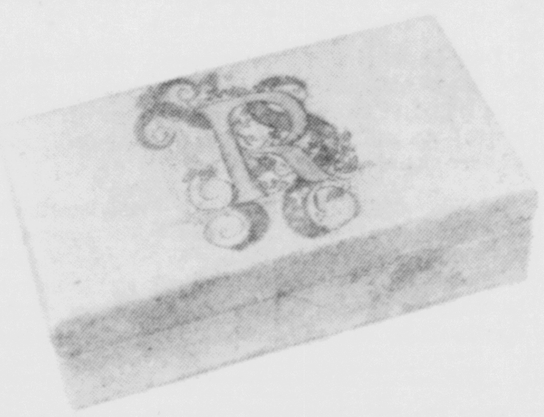
A college graduate should expect to work at least three years in a lab to become proficient, said the partners. It takes longer on the job.

There are about 12 dental labs in the northwest suburbs, and the field is open to newcomers.

THE ARTICULATOR, demonstrated by Gordon Field, Briggs' partner in Creative Dental Studio, simulates the chewing action of teeth and is used to test the prosthesis for accuracy of bite.

WHATEVER THE MATERIAL used to make the teeth, it must be changed in this crucible to the molten state and then spun into the model of the tooth or teeth. Here Michael Hendricksen works with gold, applying heat with a torch. He can tell by the color when the metal is ready.

Hide covered box tedious project but worth results



by JUDY HARPER

With the enormous popularity of tole and decorative painting has come the need for more varied and interesting surfaces on which to paint.

The illustrated box was covered with parchment rawhide (rawhide goatskin). This type of covering is an old Spanish art that I learned while living in Mexico.

This is particularly compatible with illumination-type painting (medieval German), which artist Jean Wortham has included in her books of decorative painting patterns.

The covering of a box with this material is just tedious enough to make us feel as though we've really accomplished something, and the resulting look is well worth the effort.

To begin the project, you'll need to purchase a rawhide goatskin from a leather craft store (like Tandy).

SAND THE BOX thoroughly — "silk-stocking smooth" — and then apply nine coats of gesso, letting dry thoroughly between coats. Sand to smooth with emery paper (wet sandpaper used dry) after each third coat.

Now, make a paper pattern for covering the box, including flaps to be tucked inside. The bottom of the box need not be covered.

Using your very accurately drawn paper patterns, cut the box covers from the rawhide.

Then, using a medium-fine grade of sandpaper, sand the edges of the rawhide — about one-half inch around the edges — to paper thinness. The hide is tough, so this will require a bit of elbow grease. (Don't overdo it or you might sand holes in the edges.)

When this is finished, soak the pieces of hide in warm water with a dash of vinegar for several hours, until it's soft and easy to handle.

REMOVE THE HIDE from the water and cover the box as though wrapping a package. Corners must be mitered, and the excess must be removed with a razor blade.

For glue, use a mixture of wheat paste and warm water with

The doctor says

Prostate cancer too often ignored

My husband was one of those unfortunate men who discovered he had cancer of the prostate too late. He was only 54 and his last months were terrible, both psychologically and medically. I appreciate your warning the public about this. Isn't there some way the men can be made more aware of this danger?

I am sorry to hear about your husband. It is a needless waste in most instances. Cancer of the prostate can be cured if it is detected early enough — the outlook may be even better than the cure rate in early treatment of cancer of the breast.

The first step is public awareness. As I have mentioned before, only five per cent of the men with prostate cancer found in civilian populations survive, while 50 per cent of those found and treated at Walter Reed Army Medical Center are cured. The difference is early detection.

In this regard I am disappointed in the American Cancer Society. Normally they do an excellent job and I am a strong booster of their efforts, but they have done almost nothing to educate the public about the third most common cause of death from cancer in men. There are more deaths from prostate cancer in men than from cancer of the uterus in women.

Yet, in an otherwise good publication, The Hopeful Side of Cancer, that points out how many people can be cured of cancer, there is no mention of cancer of the prostate at all or the best method to find it. The way to find it is with a simple finger examination of the rectum. Every male needs to know this and needs to know that he should have such an examination once a year after he reaches age 40. We are not going to save the thousands of men dying from cancer of the prostate until this is understood and accomplished. There is no useful public education program about it.

THE AMERICAN Cancer Society predicts the total of deaths from prostate cancer in 1976 will be 19,300 and only 7,700 from cancer of the cervix and 3,300 from cancer of the body of the uterus. With these kinds of figures why is there no program for public education and a program for early detection and treatment of prostate cancer?

There is also a great need for education of physicians about changes in treatment concepts. The old idea was to not try to cure or eradicate the cancer, but to give female hormones and use castration, if needed, to control symptoms from extension of the cancer. Things have changed. If the cancer is found early enough, radiation treatment will cure the cancer completely and in some instances surgery may be used to obtain a complete cure. In these instances it is not necessary to have either a castration or take female hormones. Radiation even cures some cancers of the prostate that have extended outside the prostate gland.

The public needs to know about this. Any man who is not getting a finger examination once a year by his doctor needs to be sure he starts getting it.

The prostate is no more mysterious than the uterus. Wives should see to it that their husbands take the problem seriously. Those who want more information about the prostate gland, in regard to enlargement, infection and cancer can send 50 cents for The Health Letter number 1-6. Send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Write to Dr. Lamb in care of Paddock Publications, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Sodium perborate now reads oxygen bleach

Dear Dorothy: You have frequently mentioned sodium perborate for use in bleaching when one didn't want to use chlorine bleach. I've looked at every box of bleach in the laundry section of every store I go into and no sign of sodium perborate. Does it have another name? — Jeanne Robinson

So many things seem to change — and too rapidly to be always absorbed. On one box right here it says "Sodium Perborate." But the company has changed it now to "Oxygen Bleach." Every other word on the box says the same thing and as near as I can tell, by touching the powder in both boxes, it seems the same thing. And does the same kind of job. Which, after all, is the key point.

Area nurses are offering scholarships

Arlington Heights and Elk Grove Village Nurses Clubs are now accepting applications for scholarships available to women interested in nursing careers.

The Martha Jackson Memorial Scholarship and several annual awards offered by the Arlington club are open to qualified applicants and students now enrolled in approved nursing programs who are residents of Arlington Heights. Selection is based on interest in nursing, scholarship and citizenship.

THE ARLINGTON nurses raised the scholarship money from their annual rummage and boutique sale. Applications are due March 31 and forms are available through high school counselors or by calling Mrs. N. J. Raino, 394-1478.

The Elk Grove nurses are offering the Mary Ann Davidson Memorial Scholarship of $300 to any resident of the area interested in entering or already enrolled in a school of nursing. Applications may be obtained from Judy Moore, 593-1237, and deadline is March 15.

Deep freeze no threat to gardens

Gardeners worrying about the effect of the winter deep freeze on next spring's vegetables and flowers can relax.

"I do not expect the cold weather to have much effect at all. I think a warm south wind will make us forget all about it, and there will be few if any reminders around," said Paul Sorenson, botanist at the University of Northern Illinois, DeKalb.

Splitt Stossoer, professor of horticulture at the University of Illinois in Champaign-Urbana, said the cold temperatures may force people to plant later but "that will make very little difference. Peppers, tomatoes, lettuce and cucumbers are grown first, then transplanted into the gardens. They will simply be bigger when put into the ground. It also makes very little difference if seeds are planted a week or two later."

The optimistic forecast depends upon heavy spring rains and the retention of the snow cover.

Sossoer said, "We went into the winter short of water. When everything freezes, new moisture runs off. We will have to depend on spring rains. However, this is more of a problem for farmers than gardeners. Gardeners can water their gardens. Farmers have more of a problem."

Sorenson said that tender plants above the ground and not covered with snow will have the most trouble this winter. "The cold dry wind can dry out plant tissues of unprotected shrubs, and may prevent flowering." He said that most plants can easily survive.

Readers query the plant doctor

Mary B. Good

Potting shed

Tremendous interest in houseplants, judging from the response to requests for my "House Plant Doctoring Goodies" booklet three weeks ago, indicates another shot at the Plant Doctor Tips:

Question: What about a Wandering Jew in a hanging basket that has a tendency to grow straight up instead of down? It looks as if it doesn't know in what direction to grow?

Answer: Plants sometimes need discipline training just as children do. Don't allow your plants to have their own way if they are unruly. Attach small weights (fishing sinkers, for example) or something similar at the last set of new leaves by means of a thin wire. (A thin wire won't sever the stem, and a string is too hard to get off.)

Judge how heavy a weight to use by testing to see what will do the job. You want just enough weight to train the stem in a downward direction, not pull it out of the soil. Don't worry about hurting the plant. If you do the job with care, you won't hurt it. (You'll have a time holding back the giggles when you finish putting on the weights — your plant looks as if it is wearing long dangling earrings — but don't knock this. It does the trick!

Question: My hibiscus does this to me every time: The buds open part way and produce withered blooms. What is wrong?

Answer: Consider lack of light, lack of water or low house humidity. Any or all could be the cause. You'll have to play Plant Doctor by eliminating nonapplicable possibilities. Hibiscus needs bright sun, even moisture and high humidity to do its thing properly.

Question: My shiny-leaved plants aren't shiny. Someone told me leaf shine is bad for the plants. Is it?

Answer: Yes, it clogs the leaves' pores so they can't breathe. Great for plastic plants, but the pits on live foliage. Instead, use skim milk. (Regular milk has too much butterfat in it, and will do the same as plant shine — clog pores. Skim milk will clean and shine and take off pesticide residue — the unsightly whitish blotches, if there is any — on the leaves.

Question: I am just getting interested in growing houseplants. Any tips on the easiest ones to grow?

Answer: Try the neglectables — they take a lot of abuse without croaking: philodendrons, pothos, mother-in-law tongue, Chinese evergreens, cactus, peperomia are nearly foolproof. Ask your greenhouse operator for suggestions for easy plants to grow. Don't be seduced into trying difficult-to-grow plants because of their exotic beauty. It just leads to frustration, because, chances are, you may lose them to your inexperience. And that turns a lot of people off growing houseplants. In any event, stay away from ferns, schefflera (bug-prone), aralia (bug-prone) and even African violets until you get the hang of growing.

some white craft glue added.

You need to work hard at rubbing and smoothing the hide to securely adhere it and to remove all air bubbles and excess paste.

When you're satisfied with your efforts, set the box aside to dry for a day or two.

To prepare it for painting, make a solution of slightly beaten egg-white and a little vinegar, and rub it all over the box with a cotton ball. Remove the excess and set the box aside to dry.

Now the rawhide surface is ready to be painted.

TRANSFER YOUR chosen design and paint the surface any way you wish. Watercolors are especially pretty on rawhide because of their transparency, but oils or acrylics also may be used effectively.

Finish your painting and complete it with successive coats of varnish — the more the better!

Deep freeze no threat to gardens

Gardeners worrying about the effect of the winter deep freeze on next spring's vegetables and flowers can relax.

"I do not expect the cold weather to have much effect at all. I think a warm south wind will make us forget all about it, and there will be few if any reminders around," said Paul Sorenson, botanist at the University of Northern Illinois, DeKalb.

Splitt Stossoer, professor of horticulture at the University of Illinois in Champaign-Urbana, said the cold temperatures may force people to plant later but "that will make very little difference. Peppers, tomatoes, lettuce and cucumbers are grown first, then transplanted into the gardens. They will simply be bigger when put into the ground. It also makes very little difference if seeds are planted a week or two later."

The optimistic forecast depends upon heavy spring rains and the retention of the snow cover.

Sossoer said, "We went into the winter short of water. When everything freezes, new moisture runs off. We will have to depend on spring rains. However, this is more of a problem for farmers than gardeners. Gardeners can water their gardens. Farmers have more of a problem."

Sorenson said that tender plants above the ground and not covered with snow will have the most trouble this winter. "The cold dry wind can dry out plant tissues of unprotected shrubs, and may prevent flowering." He said that most plants can easily survive.

Readers query the plant doctor

Mary B. Good

Potting shed

Tremendous interest in houseplants, judging from the response to requests for my "House Plant Doctoring Goodies" booklet three weeks ago, indicates another shot at the Plant Doctor Tips:

Question: What about a Wandering Jew in a hanging basket that has a tendency to grow straight up instead of down? It looks as if it doesn't know in what direction to grow?

Answer: Plants sometimes need discipline training just as children do. Don't allow your plants to have their own way if they are unruly. Attach small weights (fishing sinkers, for example) or something similar at the last set of new leaves by means of a thin wire. (A thin wire won't sever the stem, and a string is too hard to get off.)

Judge how heavy a weight to use by testing to see what will do the job. You want just enough weight to train the stem in a downward direction, not pull it out of the soil. Don't worry about hurting the plant. If you do the job with care, you won't hurt it. (You'll have a time holding back the giggles when you finish putting on the weights — your plant looks as if it is wearing long dangling earrings — but don't knock this. It does the trick!

Question: My hibiscus does this to me every time: The buds open part way and produce withered blooms. What is wrong?

Answer: Consider lack of light, lack of water or low house humidity. Any or all could be the cause. You'll have to play Plant Doctor by eliminating nonapplicable possibilities. Hibiscus needs bright sun, even moisture and high humidity to do its thing properly.

Question: My shiny-leaved plants aren't shiny. Someone told me leaf shine is bad for the plants. Is it?

Answer: Yes, it clogs the leaves' pores so they can't breathe. Great for plastic plants, but the pits on live foliage. Instead, use skim milk. (Regular milk has too much butterfat in it, and will do the same as plant shine — clog pores. Skim milk will clean and shine and take off pesticide residue — the unsightly whitish blotches, if there is any — on the leaves.

Question: I am just getting interested in growing houseplants. Any tips on the easiest ones to grow?

Answer: Try the neglectables — they take a lot of abuse without croaking: philodendrons, pothos, mother-in-law tongue, Chinese evergreens, cactus, peperomia are nearly foolproof. BPW sets annual fashion show

"Third Century Fashions" by Lord and Taylor of Woodfield will be featured at the annual luncheon and fashion show of Mount Prospect Business and Professional Women's Club beginning at noon Saturday, Feb. 26 in the Arlington Park Hilton.

According to the club president, Mrs. Natalie Hogberg of Rolling Meadows, the 1977 Fashion Show will include all of the delightful features of previous ones, plus a few pleasant surprises.

Proceeds will be used to finance the club's philanthropic projects, including scholarships for students in the Fashion Design Program at Harper College. "Immediately following luncheon, guests will have an opportunity to see why BPW members are so pleased to encourage the Harper students," said Mrs. Hogberg.

FOUR 1976 scholarship winners, Cynthia Suszycki, Nancy Lack, Mae Yuen and Eileen Ciesmeier, will model something they have designed this past year. Also on the runway, wearing one of her recent creations, will be Betty Lou Sloan, a Harper graduate and the winner of this year's National Young Designers Award given by Mademoiselle Magazine.

General chairman of the event for the second year in a row is Mrs. Evelyn Lovdjieff, also of Rolling Meadows. Those who wish to make reservations may telephone Mrs. Elizabeth Oertel at 259-1161 evenings.

Happenings

Let's begin bidding

West Suburban Region of Women's American ORT, which includes 10 area chapters, will hold its fifth annual art auction Saturday at Carpenter's Hall, Oakton and White Streets, Des Plaines.

The champagne preview is from 8 to 9 p.m. when the auction begins.

Tickets are $2.50 with proceeds going to the newly-opened ORT School of Engineering in Jerusalem, Israel, according to Barbara Belden of Arlington Heights, chairman. Tickets can be purchased at the door or by calling the ORT office, 392-7797.

Honeybunch Brunch

Arlington Heights Woman's Club will hold its Valentine's Day "Honeybunch Brunch" at noon this Sunday at Allgauer's Fireside Restaurant, Northbrook. Tickets are $9.50 per person, Mickey Tomaso, 255-4102, and Mary Lou Nute, 392-8636, are taking reservations.

RESPONSIBILITY • VARIETY • CHALLENGE

If you're looking for just a job then you're looking in the wrong place. But, if responsibility, variety and challenge mean more to you than mere words, you could fit in well at Midwest American. We are a very successful manufacturing organization made up to talented people just like you.

We bring out that talent by providing a stimulating, modern environment in which to work and reward it with the best in salaries and benefits. The following positions are currently open:

- SECRETARIES — MARKETING DEPT.
  This is where the action is! You're good typing, filing, telephone and dictaphone skills should be backed by a "bring on the challenge" attitude.
- ADMINISTRATIVE ASSISTANT TO PLANT MANAGER
  Assisting our Plant Manager you'll use top notch secretarial skills including correspondence ability. Talk about responsibility — here it is!
- SECRETARY — TO CONTROLLER
  If you have well rounded secretarial skills and you're good with figures, you can figure on an interesting position where variety is a major asset.
- HUMAN RESOURCE DEVELOPMENT COORDINATOR
  Fascinating position in our Personnel Department with lots of people contact. You'll need good typing, filing, organizational and telephone skills.
- CLERK TYPIST/EXPEDITER
  You'll be valuable in our Purchasing Department with your good clerical skills and a flair for details.

If you have the qualifications we seek, you'll receive an excellent starting salary in the $160 to $200 per week range (commensurate with experience) and top benefits including paid life, health and dental insurance, tuition assistance, profit sharing and a stock purchase plan.
Don't delay, call to arrange your interview:

Foods for February holidays

February holidays are good reasons for entertaining. Whether they be for a cozy Valentine's dinner for two or a party in honor of Washington's birthday, colorful foods add to the occasion. Burgundy Beef en Croute and Cherries Jubilee Crunch are just right for a romantic twosome, while these hors d'oeuvres and sweets can be served at parties any time of the year.

BURGUNDY BEEF EN CROUTE

Meat Loaf:

- ¾ pound ground chuck
- ⅓ cup quick or old fashioned oats, uncooked
- ⅓ cup Burgundy
- 1 egg
- 2 tablespoons finely chopped onion
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon thyme leaves, crushed

Oats Pastry:

- ⅔ cup all-purpose flour
- ⅓ cup quick or old fashioned oats, uncooked
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ¼ cup vegetable shortening
- 2 tablespoons cold water

Mushroom Sauce:

- 1⅓ cups water
- One 2½-ounce can mushroom slices, drained
- 2 beef bouillon cubes
- ⅛ teaspoon thyme leaves, crushed
- 2 tablespoons cornstarch
- 2 tablespoons cold water
- ⅓ cup Burgundy

For meat loaf, combine all ingredients; mix well. Shape to form 5½x3-inch loaf; place in shallow baking pan. Bake in preheated 425-degree oven for 10 minutes. Remove from oven; cool about 15 minutes.

For pastry, combine flour, oats and salt. Cut in shortening until pieces are the size of small peas. Sprinkle water over mixture, stirring with fork until dry ingredients are moistened and mixture forms ball. Roll out dough between 2 sheets of wax paper to form 12x9-inch rectangle; peel off top sheet of wax paper. Cut 2-inch strip of dough from narrow side of rectangle; reserve. Place meat loaf upside down in center of pastry; fold edges around loaf, sealing tightly. Remove wax paper; place pastry covered loaf, seam side down, in shallow baking pan. Decorate top of loaf with shapes cut from reserved pastry; brush with beaten egg, if desired. Continue baking in 425-degree oven 25 minutes or until golden brown. Slice to serve.

For mushroom sauce, combine water, mushrooms, bouillon cubes and thyme in small saucepan. Bring to a boil over medium heat, stirring until bouillon cubes dissolve. Dissolve cornstarch in cold water; add to bouillon mixture. Continue cooking over medium heat, stirring constantly, until mixture is thickened and clear. Reduce heat; simmer about 1 minute. Stir in Burgundy; heat. Spoon over meat loaf to serve. Serves 2 to 3.

CHERRIES JUBILEE CRUNCH

Oats Crunch:

- ½ cup quick or old fashioned oats, uncooked
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine, melted
- 2 tablespoons firmly packed brown sugar

Cherry Cream:

- 1 cup heavy cream
- ¼ cup confectioners sugar
- 2 tablespoons brandy or ¼ teaspoon brandy extract
- 1 cup cherry pie filling

For crunch mixture, combine all ingredients in skillet; mix well. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, about 5 minutes or until golden brown. Spread onto ungreased cookie sheet; cool.

For cherry cream, beat cream until slightly thickened. Add sugar and brandy; continue beating until stiff peaks form. Chill. Place cherry pie filling in blender container; cover. Process at blend about 20 seconds. Reserve ¼ cup oats crunch; fold remaining oats crunch and cherry pie filling into whipped cream mixture. Spoon into 4 parfait glasses or dessert dishes; sprinkle with reserve oats crunch. Freeze.* Remove from freezer about 10 minutes before serving. Serves 4.

*NOTE: Freeze parfaits at least 4 to 6 hours before serving. Parfaits may be frozen up to 2 months.

CHERRY SAUSAGE BITES

Meatballs:

- 1 pound ground beef
- 1 pound bulk pork sausage
- 1 cup quick or old fashioned oats, uncooked
- ½ cup chopped pecans
- 1 egg
- 1 teaspoon salt

Sauce:

- One 21-ounce can cherry pie filling
- ½ cup dry sherry

For meatballs, combine all ingredients; mix well. Shape to form 1-inch balls. Bake in two 15½x10½-inch jelly roll pans in preheated 400-degree oven about 10 minutes. Drain.

For sauce, combine pie filling and sherry in large chafing dish; cook over medium heat until mixture comes to a boil. Add meatballs to cherry sauce; keep warm over very low heat to serve. Makes about 7½ dozen meatballs.

VARIATION: Substitute orange juice or apple cider for dry sherry.

CHOCO-BERRY CREME SQUARES

Crust:

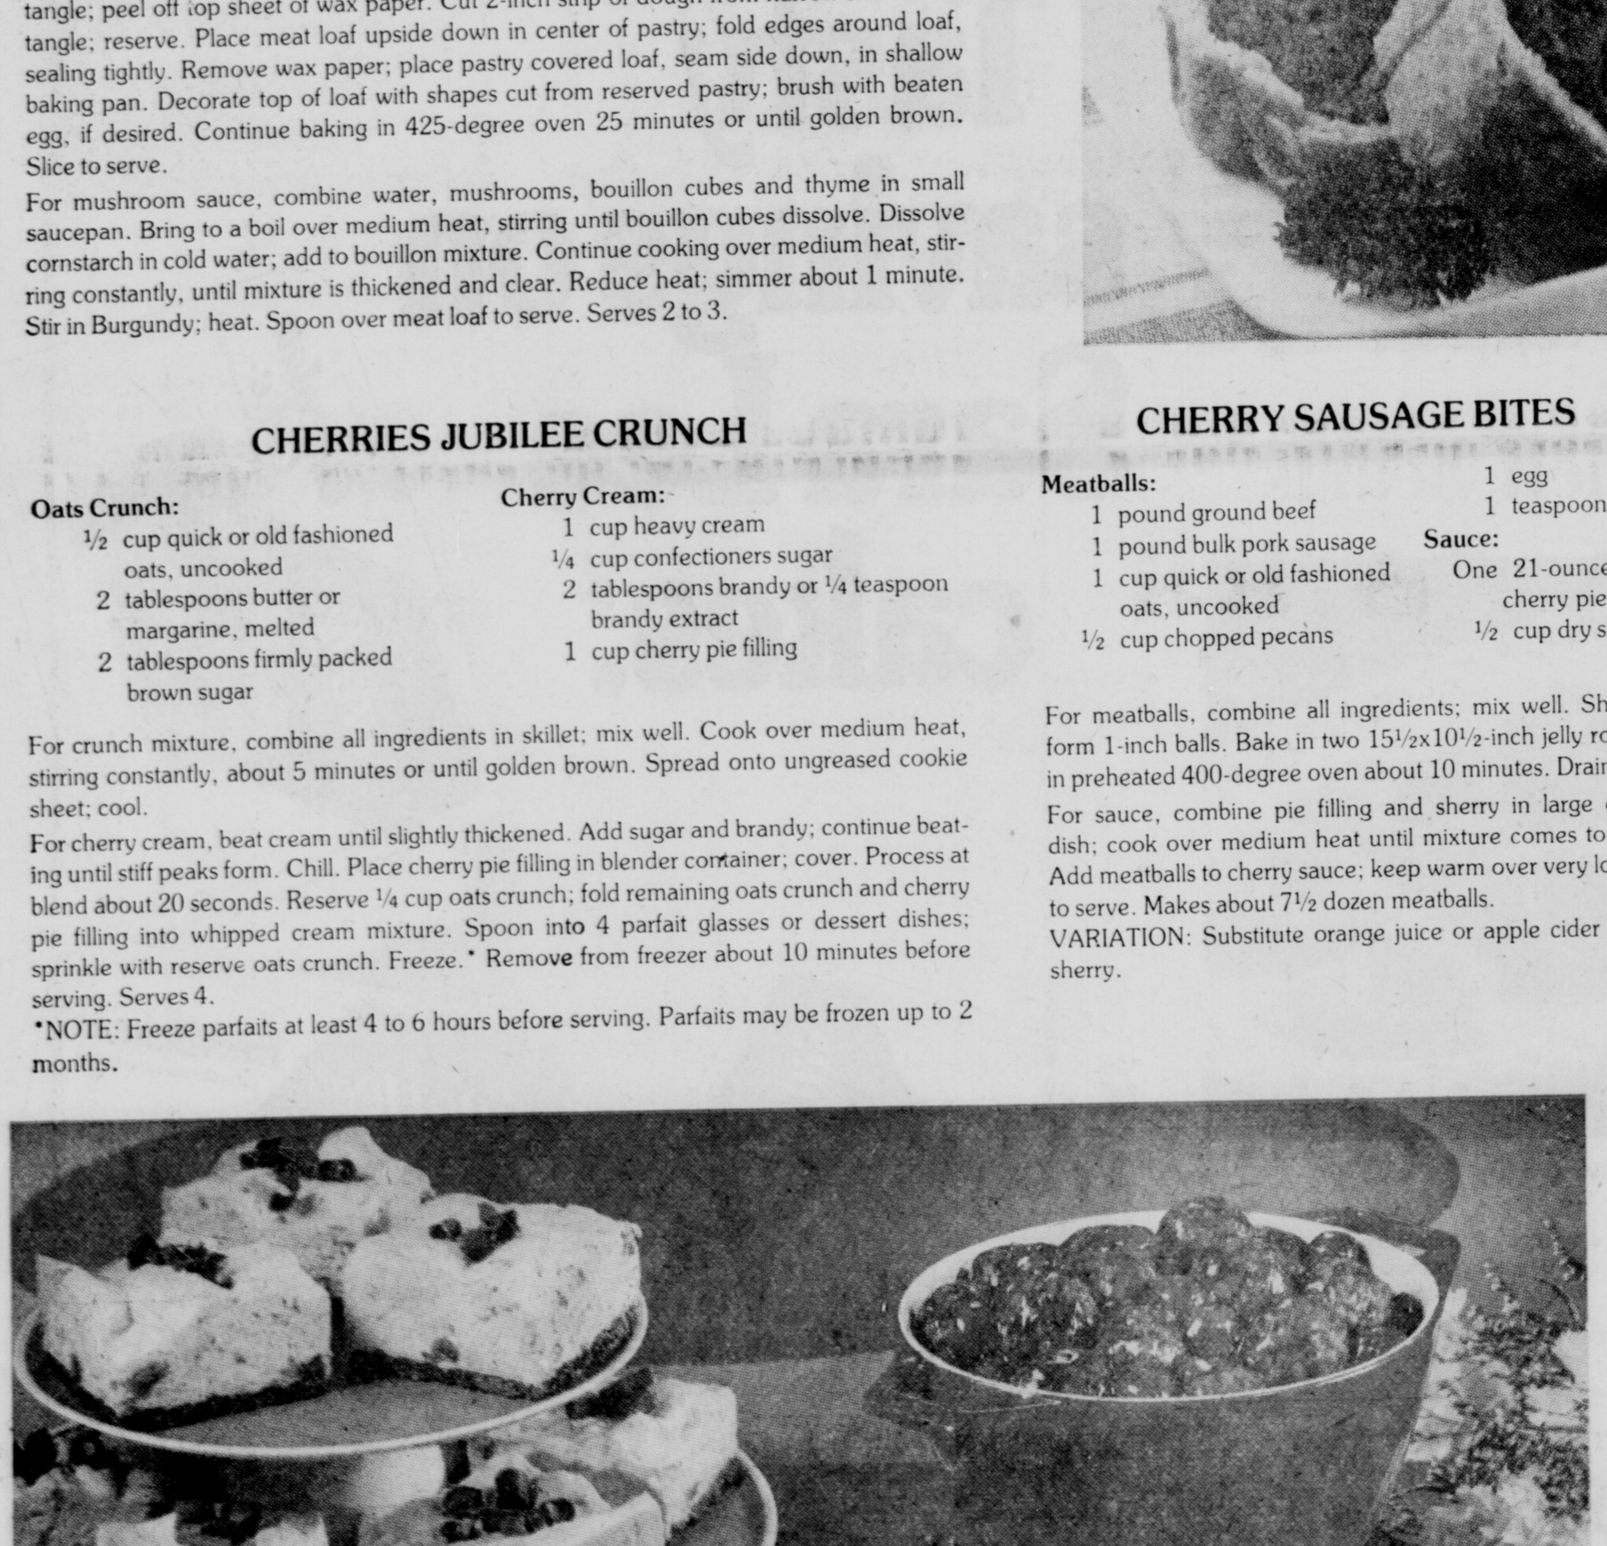
- 3 cups quick or old fashioned oats, uncooked
- 1¼ cups semi-sweet chocolate pieces
- ½ cup butter or margarine

Strawberry Cream:

- 2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
- ½ cup cold water
- Two 10-ounce packages frozen strawberries, thawed
- One 7 ounce jar marshmallow creme
- 2 cups heavy cream, whipped

For crust, toast oats in 15½x10½-inch jelly roll pan in preheated 350-degree oven about 15 minutes, stirring occasionally. Melt together chocolate pieces and butter over low heat. Combine oats and chocolate mixture; mix well. Press onto bottom of lightly oiled 13x9-inch baking pan. Chill.

For strawberry cream, soften gelatin in cold water; stir over low heat until dissolved. Gradually add strawberries to marshmallow creme, mixing on low speed of electric mixer until well blended. Blend in dissolved gelatin. Chill about 20 minutes or until mixture is slightly thickened. Fold in whipped cream. Spoon over crust. Chill. To serve, cut into squares; garnish with additional whipped cream or chocolate curls, as desired. Serves 16.



TUNA TANTALIZER

- ¾ cup quick or old fashioned oats, uncooked
- One 6½ ounce can tuna, drained, flaked
- ½ cup chopped pimento
- ½ cup pitted ripe olive halves
- ⅓ cup sweet pickle relish
- One 8 ounce carton plain yogurt
- 2 tablespoons milk
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon onion salt
- ¼ teaspoon pepper

Toast oats in shallow baking pan in preheated 350-degree oven about 15 minutes or until golden brown. Cool. Combine all ingredients; mix well. Chill. Serve with assorted raw vegetables. makes about 3 cups dip.

CHEESY-OAT WAFERS

- 1½ cups (6 ounces) shredded Mozzarella cheese
- ¾ cup grated Parmesan cheese
- ½ cup butter
- 3 tablespoons water
- 1 cup all-purpose flour
- 1 teaspoon oregano leaves, crushed
- ½ teaspoon paprika
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 1 cup quick or old fashioned oats, uncooked

Beat together Mozzarella cheese, ½ cup Parmesan cheese, butter and water until well blended. Add combined flour, oregano, paprika and salt; mix well. Stir in oats, mixing until thoroughly blended. Shape dough to form 12-inch long roll. Wrap securely; refrigerate about 4 hours.* Cut 1/8-inch thick slices; sprinkle with remaining Parmesan cheese. Bake on greased cookie sheet in preheated 400-degree oven about 10 minutes or until golden brown. Immediately remove from cookie sheet; cool. Makes about 6 dozen wafers.

*NOTE: Dough may be stored for up to 1 week in the refrigerator.

Valentine's Day delights

A RED AND WHITE dessert such as Mary Gillette's Sweetheart Cake, is a colorful and tasty treat for Valentine's Day.

Family sweethearts will love special cake

by LOIS SEILER

For Valentine's Day, please those you love with a festive red and white dessert. Mary Gillette of Arlington Heights suggests a recipe that was served at a Junior Women's Club meeting. To her knowledge, it had no name, so it has been dubbed Sweetheart Cake.

The dessert can be made with a store-bought or homemade angel food cake which is cut into three layers and filled with a rich Dream Whip-cream cheese filling. Just before serving, canned cherry pie filling is spread over the top. A pretty and delicious dessert, it will bring oohs and ahs from your family, a bridge group or any special gathering.

FORMERLY A teacher, Mary discontinued her career to raise a family. While her children were young, she was active in AAUW, and the Junior Woman's Club, worked as a hospital volunteer and served as president of Jaycee Wives. Now with both daughters in school, Mary has returned to work full-time as a technical assistant in the research library of American Can Co.

Although her time is more limited now that she is working, Mary still loves to try new recipes. An avid cookbook collector, she also subscribes to Bon Appetit magazine, which she recommends for cooks who like new ideas that aren't too complicated. To improve her culinary skills, she has taken gourmet cooking classes in evening school.

Because chicken is both versatile and economical and because cooks are always looking for new ways to prepare it, Mary suggests three of her favorite recipes from Bon Appetit, some of which she has modified to suit her taste.

ONE INTERESTING method combines chicken and Italian sausage in a well-seasoned Italian-style tomato sauce that tastes delicious over spaghetti. Mary suggests a salad and French bread as accompaniments for Chicken and Sausage Marengo, with lemon sherbert for dessert.

Chicken is cooked in dry white wine, orange juice, honey and slivered orange peel to make unique Chicken Veronique. Green grapes are added to the gravy before serving. Mildly sweet in flavor, this dish is good with a mashed potato casserole and spinach salad.

Simple to prepare but super to taste is Sherried Chicken, which is made by browning chicken and simmering it in sherry. Canned chicken gravy, mushrooms and sour cream are added to the pan liquid to make a rich and creamy gravy. To save time on working days, Mary cooks the chicken in her microwave oven, mixes the gravy separately and pours it over the chicken after it is done.

SWEETHEART CAKE

1 angel food cake (packaged or homemade)
1 envelope Dream Whip
½ cup milk
½ cup granulated sugar
1 cup confectioners' sugar
1 package (8 ounces) cream cheese softened
1 can cherry pie filling

Beat milk and Dream Whip with electric mixer until thick. Gradually add granulated sugar and then confectioners' sugar. Beat in the cream

Homemade cookies to melt hearts

Valentine's Day is a time for the giving of sweets and special gifts to close friends and family.

What better way to send out a few love notes than to bake cookies that will be love notes for those of all ages. These should melt someone's heart on Valentine's day.

HEART O'MINE COOKIES

1 cup butter or margarine, soft
2 3-ounce packages cream cheese, soft
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup sifted all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup oats, quick or old-fashioned, uncooked
Strawberry preserves

Beat butter and cream cheese together until creamy. Blend in vanilla. Sift together flour and salt. Add to creamed mixture, mixing well. Stir in oats. Chill dough about one hour.

Roll out on lightly floured board or canvas to ¼-inch thickness. Cut with floured 2½-inch heart-shaped cutter. Place on ungreased cookie sheets.

Heart O'Mine Cookies

Press with thumb to make indentation in center of each cookie; fill with a scant ½ teaspoon strawberry preserves. Bake in preheated 350 degree oven 16 to 18 minutes or until a delicate golden brown. Makes two and one-half dozen cookies.

Valentine's Day delights

A RED AND WHITE dessert such as Mary Gillette's Sweetheart Cake, is a colorful and tasty treat for Valentine's Day.

Family sweethearts will love special cake

by LOIS SEILER

For Valentine's Day, please those you love with a festive red and white dessert. Mary Gillette of Arlington Heights suggests a recipe that was served at a Junior Women's Club meeting. To her knowledge, it had no name, so it has been dubbed Sweetheart Cake.

The dessert can be made with a store-bought or homemade angel food cake which is cut into three layers and filled with a rich Dream Whip-cream cheese filling. Just before serving, canned cherry pie filling is spread over the top. A pretty and delicious dessert, it will bring oohs and ahs from your family, a bridge group or any special gathering.

FORMERLY A teacher, Mary discontinued her career to raise a family. While her children were young, she was active in AAUW, and the Junior Woman's Club, worked as a hospital volunteer and served as president of Jaycee Wives. Now with both daughters in school, Mary has returned to work full-time as a technical assistant in the research library of American Can Co.

Although her time is more limited now that she is working, Mary still loves to try new recipes. An avid cookbook collector, she also subscribes to Bon Appetit magazine, which she recommends for cooks who like new ideas that aren't too complicated. To improve her culinary skills, she has taken gourmet cooking classes in evening school.

Because chicken is both versatile and economical and because cooks are always looking for new ways to prepare it, Mary suggests three of her favorite recipes from Bon Appetit, some of which she has modified to suit her taste.

ONE INTERESTING method combines chicken and Italian sausage in a well-seasoned Italian-style tomato sauce that tastes delicious over spaghetti. Mary suggests a salad and French bread as accompaniments for Chicken and Sausage Marengo, with lemon sherbert for dessert.

Chicken is cooked in dry white wine, orange juice, honey and slivered orange peel to make unique Chicken Veronique. Green grapes are added to the gravy before serving. Mildly sweet in flavor, this dish is good with a mashed potato casserole and spinach salad.

Simple to prepare but super to taste is Sherried Chicken, which is made by browning chicken and simmering it in sherry. Canned chicken gravy, mushrooms and sour cream are added to the pan liquid to make a rich and creamy gravy. To save time on working days, Mary cooks the chicken in her microwave oven, mixes the gravy separately and pours it over the chicken after it is done.

SWEETHEART CAKE

1 angel food cake (packaged or homemade)
1 envelope Dream Whip
½ cup milk
½ cup granulated sugar
1 cup confectioners' sugar
1 package (8 ounces) cream cheese softened
1 can cherry pie filling

Beat milk and Dream Whip with electric mixer until thick. Gradually add granulated sugar and then confectioners' sugar. Beat in the cream

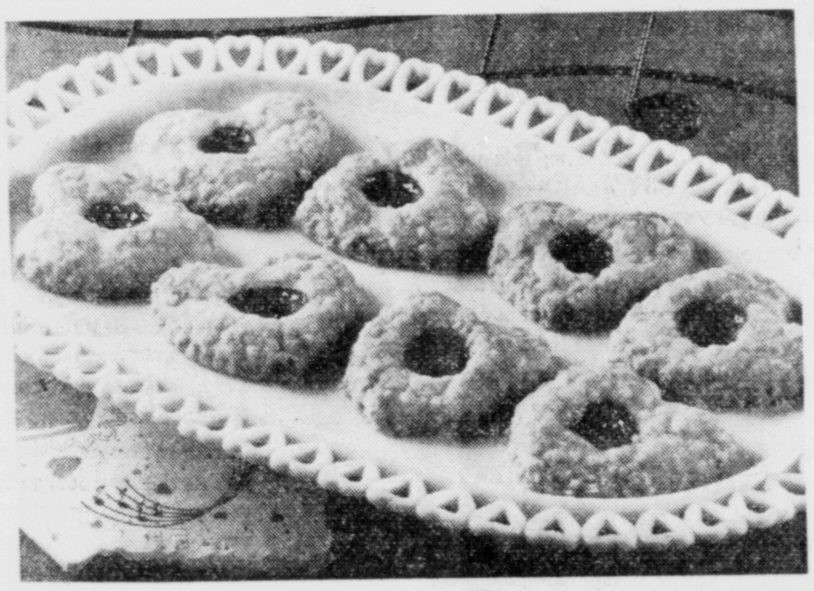
Homemade cookies to melt hearts

Valentine's Day is a time for the giving of sweets and special gifts to close friends and family.

What better way to send out a few love notes than to bake cookies that will be love notes for those of all ages. These should melt someone's heart on Valentine's day.

HEART O'MINE COOKIES

1 cup butter or margarine, soft
2 3-ounce packages cream cheese, soft
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup sifted all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup oats, quick or old-fashioned, uncooked
Strawberry preserves



Heart O'Mine Cookies

Beat butter and cream cheese together until creamy. Blend in vanilla. Sift together flour and salt. Add to creamed mixture, mixing well. Stir in oats. Chill dough about one hour.

Roll out on lightly floured board or canvas to ¼-inch thickness. Cut with floured 2½-inch heart-shaped cutter. Place on ungreased cookie sheets. Press with thumb to make indentation in center of each cookie; fill with a scant ½ teaspoon strawberry preserves. Bake in preheated 350 degree oven 16 to 18 minutes or until a delicate golden brown. Makes two and one-half dozen cookies.

Cut cake into three layers. Spread Dream Whip mixture between layers and frost the sides of cake. Chill. Just before serving, spread cherry pie filling over the top. Serves 12.

CHICKEN AND SAUSAGE MARENGO

- 1 pound mild Italian sausage
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 2 tablespoons salad or olive oil
- 2 broiler-fryer chickens, cut in pieces
- 1 can (1 pound 12 ounces) tomato puree
- 1 can (6 ounces) sliced mushrooms, drained
- 1 can (8 ounces) pitted ripe olives, sliced
- ¼ cup sweet pepper flakes
- 1 tablespoon parsley flakes
- 2 teaspoons celery flakes
- 1½ teaspoons Italian seasonings
- 1 teaspoon instant minced onion
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon ground black pepper
- ¼ teaspoon garlic powder
- ½ cup liquid drained from mushrooms
- ¼ cup liquid drained from olives
- 1 bay leaf.

Cut sausage in bite-size pieces. Place in Dutch oven to brown. Remove. Add butter, oil and chicken and saute until chicken is brown. Remove chicken.

Stir tomato puree into pan drippings and add remaining ingredients. Stir to blend. Return chicken and sausage to pan. cover and simmer over low heat 30 to 40 minutes or until meats are tender. Serves 6 to 8.

CHICKEN VERONIQUE

- 2 tablespoons flour
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon black pepper
- 1 broiler-fryer chicken (3 to 4 pounds), cut into serving pieces
- ¼ cup peanut oil or safflower oil
- ½ cup dry white wine
- 1/3 cup orange juice
- 2 tablespoons honey
- 1 tablespoon dry parsley flakes
- 2 tablespoons slivered orange peel
- 1 cup halved, seedless green grapes

Combine flour, salt and ¼ teaspoon pepper in a paper bag. Add chicken pieces and coat well.

In large skillet, brown chicken in peanut oil. Add wine, orange juice, honey, parsley and remaining ¼ teaspoon pepper.

Cover and simmer over low heat 30 minutes, stirring occasionally. Add orange peel and continue cooking until tender, 10 to 15 minutes.

SHERRIED CHICKEN

- 3 whole chicken breasts, halved
- Seasoned salt
- 3 to 4 tablespoons butter
- ½ cup sherry
- 1 can (4 ounces) button mushrooms, drained (save liquid)
- 1 can chicken gravy
- 1 cup sour cream

Lightly sprinkle chicken with seasoned salt. Brown in butter in Dutch oven. Add sherry and liquid from mushrooms. Cover and bake at 350 degrees for 45 minutes to one hour or until chicken is tender.

Remove chicken to serving dish. Add canned gravy to pan liquid. Heat. Blend in sour cream and mushrooms.

Place chicken over cooked rice and pour gravy over all. Serves 4 to 6.

Reports say few persons lack vitamin E

"The likelihood of actual vitamin E deficiencies in man is very low," says a new scientific status summary from the Food Safety and nutrition panel of the Institute of Food Technologists.

The summary also says the vitamin has proven valuable in treating several highly specific medical problems, but as a drug, not a vitamin. The diseases include hemolytic anemia in premature babies; poor fat and oil absorption from the diet, a problem usually found in patients with cystic fibrosis; and liver cirrhosis and similar ailments.

The summary said evidence of the vitamin's usefulness as a cure-all is incomplete and inconclusive.

It added that the richest dietary sources of vitamin E are vegetable oils and margarines made from them, cereal grain products, fish, meat, eggs, dairy products and leafy green vegetables. The vitamin is not destroyed by normal cooking or heat processing. (UPI

Thaw jars carefully: experts

Cracks can pose danger to foods

by MICHAEL J. CONLON

If you accidentally left a can or jar of food in an unheated pantry, basement or other chilly spot that caused it to freeze during this winter's cold waves, is the food safe to eat?

The National Canners Association says there is probably no damage to the air-tight seal of the container, but warns that if the jar is cracked or leaks, or if the can leaks or bulges after the contents have thawed, throw it away without even tasting the contents.

"Containers can be thawed in a pan of warm water or by moving them to a warm room. Do not put unopened containers in the oven or directly on the stove. Thaw glass containers, in particular, slowly," a spokesman said.

"DURING freezing the contents of the can expand, put a strain on the can ends and may cause them to bulge. Check the container carefully after thawing to be sure the ends return to their normal flat appearance. If they do not, air has gotten into the can and the contents will not keep."

The spokesman says freezing probably will not affect the taste, although it may cause separation and a change in texture of cream sauces and similar products.

"In products packed in sauces, stir together and use as you would normally. In the case of creamy food that may have curdled, heating usually restores the original consistency."

He added that some baby foods have caps with "dimples" on the top. If they have been frozen and the dimple is still depressed, they are safe.

Coconuts found to be versatile

What fruit is a nut that's shaped like an egg and looks like the face of a hairy monkey? You guessed it — the coconut, which has got to be the most versatile food in the world. The milky juice of the coconut is refreshing and wholesome and even aids digestion. The juice always is cool because the wall of the nut insulates against the heat.

If you don't care to drink the juice, it's still a good mouthwash. Or you can grind up the coconut roots and make a beverage that is popular in Southern India.

But if you don't like that drink, use the powder of the ground roots to brush your teeth. The meat of the coconut is nutritious, rich and tasty when served on top of a cake. The nut also is used as medicine for stomach-aches and coughs, a poultice for rheumatic fever and a lotion for wounds.

Jarvis Rice

Eater's digest

You can use the wood of the coconut tree to build your house and to make furniture. Make your roof from coconut leaves and the mattress for your bed from the fibers of the coconut's husk. Burn the wood to cook your food and light your way in the darkness with a torch of dried coconut leaves. Use the shells of your coconuts to make cups, dishes and spoons. The coconuts are your food and drink, your medicine, your home and furniture and many accessories. As the song says, that's a lov-e-ly bunch of coconuts!

In fact, one member of the coconut family, Coco de Mer, is famous around the island of Seychelles in the Indian Ocean. Natives believe that Adam and Eve lived there and that the forbidden fruit was not the apple but Coco de Mer. Can you prove otherwise?

Maybe they didn't serve coconuts at the lavish feasts of an ancient Persian king, but they served just about everything else. The king held his shindig in a large banquet hall with stained marble walls and an alabaster floor. Guests reclined on gold and silver couches while dinner was served. The food consisted of about a thousand animals and birds — horses, camels, oxen, deer, Arabian ostriches and geese — accompanied by an abundance of wine to wash it all down. The sumptuous repast lasted seven days. If the guests spent the next seven days getting over the bellyache, well, it must have been something they ate — and ate, and ate.

Thaw jars carefully: experts

by MICHAEL J. CONLON

If you accidentally left a can or jar of food in an unheated pantry, basement or other chilly spot that caused it to freeze during this winter's cold waves, is the food safe to eat?

The National Canners Association says there is probably no damage to the air-tight seal of the container, but warns that if the jar is cracked or leaks, or if the can leaks or bulges after the contents have thawed, throw it away without even tasting the contents.

"Containers can be thawed in a pan of warm water or by moving them to a warm room. Do not put unopened containers in the oven or directly on the stove. Thaw glass containers, in particular, slowly," a spokesman said.

"DURING freezing the contents of the can expand, put a strain on the can ends and may cause them to bulge. Check the container carefully after thawing to be sure the ends return to their normal flat appearance. If they do not, air has gotten into the can and the contents will not keep."

The spokesman says freezing probably will not affect the taste, although it may cause separation and a change in texture of cream sauces and similar products.

"In products packed in sauces, stir together and use as you would normally. In the case of creamy food that may have curdled, heating usually restores the original consistency."

He added that some baby foods have caps with "dimples" on the top. If they have been frozen and the dimple is still depressed, they are safe.

Coconuts found to be versatile

What fruit is a nut that's shaped like an egg and looks like the face of a hairy monkey? You guessed it — the coconut, which has got to be the most versatile food in the world. The milky juice of the coconut is refreshing and wholesome and even aids digestion. The juice always is cool because the wall of the nut insulates against the heat.

If you don't care to drink the juice, it's still a good mouthwash. Or you can grind up the coconut roots and make a beverage that is popular in Southern India.

But if you don't like that drink, use the powder of the ground roots to brush your teeth. The meat of the coconut is nutritious, rich and tasty when served on top of a cake. The nut also is used as medicine for stomach-aches and coughs, a poultice for rheumatic fever and a lotion for wounds.

You can use the wood of the coconut tree to build your house and to make furniture. Make your roof from coconut leaves and the mattress for your bed from the fibers of the coconut's husk. Burn the wood to cook your food and light your way in the darkness with a torch of dried coconut leaves. Use the shells of your coconuts to make cups, dishes and spoons. The coconuts are your food and drink, your medicine, your home and furniture and many accessories. As the song says, that's a lov-e-ly bunch of coconuts!

In fact, one member of the coconut family, Coco de Mer, is famous around the island of Seychelles in the Indian Ocean. Natives believe that Adam and Eve lived there and that the forbidden fruit was not the apple but Coco de Mer. Can you prove otherwise?

Maybe they didn't serve coconuts at the lavish feasts of an ancient Persian king, but they served just about everything else. The king held his shindig in a large banquet hall with stained marble walls and an alabaster floor. Guests reclined on gold and silver couches while dinner was served. The food consisted of about a thousand animals and birds — horses, camels, oxen, deer, Arabian ostriches and geese — accompanied by an abundance of wine to wash it all down. The sumptuous repast lasted seven days. If the guests spent the next seven days getting over the bellyache, well, it must have been something they ate — and ate, and ate.

Good health begins at young age

by GAYNOR MADDOX

Will that smiling baby in your arms grow up to suffer heart disease, cancer or a stroke? The answer may lie in your baby's body now. No longer must we wait for years to know. Medical science has discovered ways to predict these physical illnesses.

As they grow older, children should be taught the impact of smoking and the danger of being overweight, having a high cholesterol level and failing to exercise regularly. That is the opinion of Christine W. Williams, M.D., of the American Health Foundation of New York, a non-profit organization for prevention of heart disease, cancer and stroke.

"WITH 40 PER CENT of our caloric consumption made up of fats, a three to one ratio of saturated fat to unsaturated fats, and a high intake of cholesterol and calories from junk foods, our children have higher cholesterol levels and greater risk of coronary disease later in life than children in almost any other country in the world," says Dr. Williams.

She and the head of the American Health Foundation wrote an article in the Journal of the American Medical Association in which they warned that cholesterol levels of the average American child at age three is equal to that of a middle-aged man in countries such as Japan, where coronary heart disease still is low.

Dr. Williams, who works largely with school children between the ages of 11 and 14, believes it is possible to make them aware of their bodies and convince them of the value of eating sensibly.

CHILDREN ARE intelligent. When very young, screen them for hidden threats to future health. Get the parents interested, too, and create a community of inquiry. Don't wait until they grow older. Extreme youth is the time to prevent later breakdown. It can be done — with patience, knowledge and examples," she explains.

Pediatricians should be warned that future medical examinations of small children should include registering of family heart disease history, blood pressure and cholesterol levels. If threats of future heart disease are shown, preventive measures can begin at once.

Here are some tips from "Valuable Hints From the American Heart Association Cookbook:"

Use lean meats and trim off excess fat. In roasting meats, use low temperatures (about 350 degrees) to increase the fat drip-off. High temperatures sear the meat, sealing in fat.

Select fat free or low-fat dairy products such as skim milk, cheeses made from skim milk (such as low-fat cottage cheese, Parmesan, ricotta, mozzarella) and use polyunsaturated oils (corn, peanut, safflower) for cooking and salad dressing.

Curry Con Carne Stacks

Casserole quick to prepare

Tonight it's your turn to be hostess for dinner after the basketball game or the afternoon on the ski slopes. This hot casserole is quick and easy to make for guests or for family supper.

CURRY CON CARNE STACKS

½ pound ground beef
¼ cup minced onion
1 (15-ounce) can tomato sauce
1 (1-pound can chili con carne with beans
1/3 cup water
½ to 1 teaspoon curry powder
7 corn tortillas
1½ cups shredded sharp Cheddar cheese
3 stuffed olives, halved

In skillet, saute beef and onion; drain fat. Add tomato sauce with chili con carne, water and curry powder; heat to boiling. Add enough to cover bottom of shallow 1½-quart casserole. Add layer of three tortillas, overlapping to fit dish. Cover with half the remaining chili; sprinkle with 1 cup cheese. Repeat layers of tortillas, chili mixture and cheese. Bake at 350 degrees for 10 minutes. Cut remaining tortilla into six wedges; arrange on top of casserole; sprinkle with remaining ½ cup cheese; top with olive halves. Bake 10 minutes longer. Serves 4 to 6.

You'll love the savings on Jewel's own fine brands!

As a smart food shopper, you're probably always on the lookout for ways to stretch your food dollars — without skimping on quality. Well, that's a good reason to get to know Jewel's own fine brands. They assure you the same top quality as comparable nationally advertised brands. But, they usually cost you a few pennies less. So this week, look for products with names like Mary Dunbar, Cherry Valley, Bluebrook and Jewel Maid. They'll guarantee you quality and savings every time you shop!
